TRUNKS REVEAL SLAIN WOMEN

ARREST BARES $100,000 GRAFT IN POLICE JOBS

Attorney Seized as Ring's Go-Between.

A secret graft ring which sold jobs [illegible] in the police and fire departments and collected probably in excess of $100,000 boodle is under investigation by the state's attorney's office. The police department and civil service commission are also aiding in the quiz.

One man, an attorney, is under arrest and has confessed to participation in the graft, it is said. He is Wilbur J. Sullivan, a former stenographer in the civil service board's employment, who has offices at 79 West Washington street, is being held incommunicado by Lieut. William Blaul of the state's attorney's office. He is reported to have made admissions that he handled perhaps $80,000 during the period of the job selling syndicate. He may be held for five or six years, probably on a charge of "the last administration."

Eighteen Reported Involved.

Other than McGinness are implicated. This was admitted last night by Assistant State's Attorney Harry J. Gabel in charge of the inquiry. The identities of some of the so-called higher-ups are believed known, Mr. Gabel said.

"There is no question that others of importance than McGinness are involved," declared Prosecutor Gabel. "The investigation is going all the way."

"Do you might mean?" he was asked.

"Nothing to the old civil service position," he replied. "It might go further."

Sale of Prices for Jobs.

Under the job selling ring dished out jobs to ordinary policemen and firemen, to police sergeants, and as high as fire lieutenants. The fees paid varied. A man desiring to join the fire or police department paid an average of $1,000 and sometimes higher. Any one desiring to become a sergeant or a lieutenant, of corresponding rank paid between $1,500 and $2,000. To become a lieutenant in other service the purchase price was higher—between $2,500 and $3,000—but sometimes $4,000. Before the job of lieutenant was created, Sullivan acted as contact man, it is believed, dealing directly with the applicants for the various jobs.

Number Involved Unknown.

How many incumbent members of the police and fire departments entered the city service or obtained promotion through graft is not definitely known. The number is at least thirty, according to Lieut. Blaul. Of these only one is willing to come forward, Blaul said in the exposé. Prosecutor Gabel amplified the lieutenant's statement.

"The men are afraid to come forward and talk," he said. "We know the names of quite a few and feel sure they will come in. The state's attorney's office promises these men immunity. It is to the civil service and police departments. They have nothing to fear. It is for their own good as well as that of the departments affected."

Give Witnesses Today.

Some of these men will be questioned this morning at the state's attorney's office, said Mr. Gabel. The witness will not include any old members of the board or any one who held a responsible city position, he said. Grand jury hearings will not be held until the graft ring is cleaned up, he said.

According to Gabel, recent civil service promotion lists will be scanned. Some of them, he said, will be the last remaining list of patrolmen eligible to become sergeants. This list will come under the scrutiny of the defunct police grand jury.

The inquiry into the racket has been under way for several weeks, and was precipitated by repercussions echoing from the complaints on the sergeants' list and by new complaints.

The complaints were, in some instances, from men who had paid initial fees on their job buying fees, but never got into the department. Secret service agents ferreted out the facts, developed them, and finally the evidence was shaped to send the case to Attorney McGinness' office. He was seized late last week. Several days of questioning he broke down and admitted his part in the ring, it was said. Strictest secrecy has shrouded the movements of the investigators, and it was not until yesterday that the scope of the inquiry was indicated, and not until last night that Gabel admitted the progress of their work.

OBEY SWANSON AND MAYOR ON PEACE DEMAND

Work Out Contract Today.

The motion picture theater war, which caused two months of terrorism accompanied by fifteen theater bombings, was settled yesterday. Announcement of the settlement was made by State's Attorney Swanson.

It was understood that the terms of the agreement were virtually the same as those offered a week ago by the operators' union and rejected by the independent theater owners as unreasonable demands. Only the independent movie houses have been affected by the dispute.

Reported Settlement Terms.

It was stated that the details of the settlement were not made public because "to do so at this time would be unfair to all concerned," but according to reports the agreement included the following details:

1. All houses with seating capacities under 400 will be allowed to operate with one union operator. In these houses the owner will be permitted to assist in the booth, provided he obtains a license from the city and a permit card from the union. The remaining houses will use two union operators as heretofore.

2. A blanket reduction of 20 per cent will be made in the wages of all operators. It was understood that this cut will apply to all theaters in Chicago.

3. All imported operators, members of another union, who were brought from New York by the owners on Aug. 18, must be out of Chicago within three days.

4. The new agreement becomes effective as soon as the written contract is signed.

Meet With Officials.

State's Attorney Swanson announced the settlement after an all day conference behind closed doors. Mr. Swanson, Mayor Cermak, Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury and representatives of the union and the theater owners attended.

"An agreement has been reached," Mr. Swanson's statement said. "All points have been agreed on in principle. It will naturally take a couple of days to work out the specific details and close the contract."

Asked if his statement meant that peace had been effected between the warring factions Mr. Swanson said: "Before the conference broke up the theater owners shook hands with the operators, and both groups shook hands with me. All assured me that everything was settled."

Work Out Details Today.

Details of the agreement will be worked out this afternoon at a meeting in the Congress hotel, and the contracts will be signed. Representatives of the larger theaters, most of whom are members of the Exhibitors' association, will attend the meeting, but there will be no lawyers present.

"As soon as the contract is signed," said Thomas Maloy, business agent of the operators' union, "our men will go back to work in the affected theaters. The agreement may affect all other theaters in Chicago."

Officials Make Demands.

At yesterday morning's conference, held in the Criminal Courts building, Mayor Cermak and State's Attorney Swanson are understood to have addressed representatives of both factions in no uncertain terms. Closing of all theaters as in time of an epidemic, stationing of police to see that no show of any type was presented, and arrest of members of the operators' union and the theater owners' group were said to have been threatened if the war did not end.

At the morning conference the owners were represented by Aaron Saperstein, the president, and Theodore Levin, chief counsel. Maloy and Attorney Thomas D. Nash represented the union. The afternoon conference was attended by the same group with the addition of Thomas Reynolds, president of the union.

The general shutdown of approximately 100 theaters of the Allied Independent Theaters' association followed the late performance on Aug. 9. The association, composed principally of small neighborhood houses, locked out union operators when the union refused to permit the theaters to operate with only one man in a projection booth. The owners contended they could not afford to hire two men at the union scale of $90 to $175 per week. They also insisted that two operators were not necessary.

Edison Estate Rated at Less Than Million

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Thousands passed in single file before the bier of Thomas Alva Edison today while the nation looked about for some concerted means of honoring the memory of one of its greatest men. An autumn sun spread its rays through the windows of the high ceilinged library of the Edison laboratory where the inventor lay in a bronze coffin banked with oak leaves and chrysanthemums, while outside special policemen kept the silent throngs in orderly line.

Throughout the country scores of communities made preparations for memorial services and other ceremonies to be held while Mr. Edison's family is attending his private funeral service at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Llewellyn Park home.

New York to Dim Lights.

A move to dim the nation's lights on the day of the funeral met with widespread approval. Mayor Walker of New York said he would issue a proclamation calling for the dimming of all lights for a few moments at 7 p. m. New Jersey cities joined in the move, setting the same hour. From Detroit, Chicago and as far away as Chile came word that tribute would be paid Mr. Edison either by the dimming of lights or halting of trains and electrical traffic for a brief time.

The day set for the funeral marks the fifty-second anniversary of Edison's perfection of the incandescent lamp.

John Ott, Edison's 75 year old laboratory assistant, dropped dead in his home here today. His family attributed the death to sorrow for his late employer, whom he had served for 52 years. On Saturday Mr. Ott paid a last visit to the bedside of his dying chief. As he came out of the sick room, tears running down his wrinkled cheeks, he told newspaper men: "I won't be here long, now that T. A.'s going."

Estate May Not Reach Million.

While the body of the world's greatest inventor lay in state in the library of the workshop where he had passed so many fruitful hours it became known that Edison's dominating motive was creation and not the commercial followup of inventions. It has been estimated that industries valued at billions of dollars have been based on Edison's inventions, while his own fortune is comparative a modest one and likely to total less than $1,000,000.

Many spectacular instances of the manner in which he let great business opportunities slip because he would not reduce the powers of his mind to systematic efforts necessary for business success were recalled. After inventing the motion picture camera, he did not even take out European patents. He allowed rival companies to excel him in the commercialization of the phonograph cylinder and many of his other inventions.

Concrete Houses Failure.

One of his greatest business losses began almost twenty years ago when he conceived the idea of combating the communist influence in this country by building standardized homes for $1,200. His plan was to build the complete framework of the house, stand it up and pour concrete into the mold. Nothing came of the plan, although Mr. Edison is said to have spent large sums in organizing and perfecting the scheme.

The details of the funeral ceremony had not been decided tonight, but the Rev. Arthur H. Brown, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Orange, who repeated a prayer at the bier today, was expected to conduct the services. The family announced that burial will be in Rosedale cemetery, East Orange, and not in Milan, O., the inventor's birthplace, as was reported late last night.

Hoover May Not Attend.

Because of pressing state engagements, it appeared unlikely tonight that President Hoover would be able to attend the funeral of his old friend, but Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone, Samuel Insull and other intimate friends of the inventor will be present.

The people of the Oranges and neighboring towns gathered early today to pay their last respects to the inventor.

At the request of the family, the Rev. Mr. Brown was called in to pray over the bier of the man who had no church affiliations and was known as an agnostic but who was said to have possessed a belief in a "supreme intelligence."

RAISES WAGES $1 A DAY AS A WAY TO OFFSET DEPRESSION

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—A wage increase of $1 a day a man above the minimum scale under which the company has been operating was announced today by Charles G. Robin, president of the Robin Lighting Fixtures company, a contracting firm of West 48th street.

"I think the epidemic of wage cutting, though perhaps necessary in individual cases, has a deleterious effect on the general economic situation," Robin stated.

"The way out of the depression lies in promoting consumer purchasing power, either by raising wages or lowering prices, or both."

Two Bodies Shipped Into Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The dismembered bodies of two women, who apparently had been shot to death in Phoenix, Ariz., were found tonight in two trunks and a suitcase at the Southern Pacific station here. Later two men were taken into custody as material witnesses and police began searching for a woman.

The men taken into custody were Dr. William C. Judd, a Los Angeles physician, formerly of Phoenix, and Burton J. Kinnell, a brother of Mrs. Ruth Judd, wife of Dr. Judd. Detectives began a search for Mrs. Judd, who was said to be on her way to Phoenix. Dr. Judd said he had left his wife in Phoenix eight weeks ago and did not know of her coming to Los Angeles.

In the trunks with the bodies were clothing, including nurses' uniforms, several photographs, and a packet of old letters. On one envelope was written the name of "Hedvig Samuelson, 529 Portland street, Phoenix, Ariz."

Missing Since Saturday.

From the Phoenix authorities the Los Angeles police learned that Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Anne Larol, an X-ray technician at the Grunow Memorial clinic at Phoenix, had been missing since Saturday evening. The two women lived together and investigators accepted the theory that they were the victims of the trunk murderer or murderers.

A portion of one of the bodies was found in a suit case in a restroom at the railway station.

Dr. Judd denied knowing anything about the double murder. He said, however, that he had been a friend to both Mrs. Le Roi and Miss Samuelson.

Police said Kinnell, also known as B. J. McKinnell, who is a student at the University of Southern California, admitted to them he had accompanied Mrs. Judd to the station here this evening when she made an unsuccessful attempt to claim the trunks.

"She's my sister," the police said Kinnell declared. "I don't know where she is, but I hope she gets away."

Baggage clerks had noticed bloodstains on one of the trunks and when the woman called for them demanded that they be opened.

The woman then said she had left her keys at home and would bring them to the station later. She did not return. Baggagemen then called the police and the trunks were opened.

At the Southern Pacific station in Phoenix employés said that the trunks had been brought there late Sunday afternoon by a man and a woman. A ticket to Los Angeles was purchased by the woman and the trunks were checked on this for the 350 mile journey here.

Her Head Bandaged.

The woman, who was coroly and about 25 years old, had a bandage about her head and one arm.

The Los Angeles police were informed later that the man who took the trunks to the Phoenix station on the running board of his automobile had been found. He is H. U. Grimm, owner of an apartment building.

His story was that he was requested by a Mrs. Judd, secretary to a physician at the Grunow clinic, to take them to the station for her. She had resided for a month in one of Grimm's apartments.

"Mrs. Judd was the woman who checked those trunks," said Grimm. "When my boy and I carried them out to the car we noticed they were mighty heavy and I asked her what was in them. She said books. She told me that she had been called back to Los Angeles to join her husband. She said he was a doctor."

The older one, believed to have been Miss Samuelson, was in her thirties and had dark hair. The other, some ten years younger, had red hair. She

YORKTOWN TEXT OF HOOVER PLEA FOR CONFIDENCE

Urges Courage Such as Triumphed Then.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Yorktown, Va., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—On a sun baked Surrender field at historic Yorktown, under the eyes of President Hoover, Gen. Pershing, Marshal Petain of France, and other dignitaries by the score, the vanquished sword of Lord Cornwallis today was tendered to victorious Washington.

While an estimated hundred thousand modern Americans looked on, some three thousand Americans in the trappings and the ruffles of that October 19th, one hundred and fifty years ago, reënacted the surrender scene.

Out on the field came the white flag of France, with Rochambeau and La Fayette, and Admiral De Grasse, struggling America's French allies, in uniforms of white faced with lilac and green and old rose; one dressed exquisitely for war under the Louis.

Underneath the costuming they were army regulars.

Pageant Forms on Field.

Came the colonials in sturdy buff and blue, and some in homespun or fringed buckskin. Washington rode at their head; the flag bore the circle of thirteen stars and the fifes shrilled "Yankee Doodle."

And lastly, over the hill marched the redcoats and their Hessians, their band playing, as history tells, "The World Turned Upside Down."

The pageant formed on the field.

Forgotten were the stormy bickerings of Sesquicentennial committees over the possibility of giving offense to British sensibilities. When at last the long lines of soldiery drew up and Washington took his place opposite Rochambeau for the British to pass between, just the way it's shown in schoolroom pictures, Gen. O'Hara stepped forward and offered Cornwallis' sword to the French leader.

Cornwallis, you'll remember, pleaded illness and so escaped the ignominy of this final act of defeat.

Surrender Scene Reënacted.

True to the historic story, Rochambeau motioned toward Washington. O'Hara held out the sword to the American commander, who directed Gen. Lincoln to receive it—and then to give it back again.

So was reënacted the last scene of the battle of which President Hoover in his speech at the morning's ceremonies said:

"If we judge it by the standard of battles in which the contrary result would have essentially varied the whole course of history, then it becomes one of the very few decisive battles in the history of the world.

"It is extremely doubtful," he went on, "if the struggle for independence could have succeeded had Washington lost at Yorktown. Certainly, with the victory at Yorktown, our independence was won."

That was the all-pervading note of the day, of how the steel of American liberty, wrought and tempered by the fires of Valley Forge, received its final fashioning stroke at Yorktown.

Freed to Its Destiny.

"Here," President Hoover said, "America became free to be America."

The national mind, he declared, had been freed of the restraints put upon it by another and older civilization.

"We acquired the opportunity for unrestrained development of a government and culture that should be our own," the President continued. "It has made possible the realization of those visions of government and organized society which arose among us as a result of individuality of temperament born of the frontiers of a new continent."

As the men portraying the colonial soldiery had passed before the crowded stands, so the marching events of American history passed in review as the President went on:

"If we look back over those 150 years, we see our nation marking progress with every decade. From those communities of 3,000,000 people scattered along the Atlantic seaboard it has grown to more than 120,000,000."

What America Stands For.

He spoke of the cities, the homes, and the farms that have sprung up in the midst of a comfort and security unknown before in human history. He spoke of America's growth in education and knowledge and in the things of the spirit.

And at last, as on Memorial day when he used the lesson of Valley Forge as the text of his summons to American fortitude, the President called for a renaissance in these times of depression, of that spirit which has brought the country ever forward during the century and a half since Yorktown.

"While temporary dislocations have come to us because of the world war, we must not forget," he admonished his hearers, "that our forefathers met similar obstacles to progress time and again, and yet the nation has swept forward to ever-increasing strength. The unparalleled rise of America has not been the rise of riches in lands, forests, or mines; it sprang from the ideas and ideals which liberated the minds and stimulated the spirits of men. In those ideas and ideals are the soul of the people. No American can review this vast pageant of progress without confidence and faith, without courage, strength and resolution for the future."

Descendants View Pageant.

At the beginning of the afternoon's celebrations Marshal Petain, hero of another decisive battle, the battle of Verdun, and Gen. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F., were introduced to the crowd by Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut. White mustached, in uniform of horizon blue and red cap with gold oak leaves, the French marshal drew cheers as he stepped forward and raised his hand in salute.

In the reviewing stand sat other distinguished French officers and civilians, several of them descendants of the famous trio who took America's side at Yorktown. The French ambassador, round faced Paul Claudel, was there, and so was Ambassador von Prittwitz of Germany. There, too, was Maj. Fritz von Steuben of the German reichswehr, descendant of Baron von Steuben.

To France, the ally, and to England, once the enemy, President Hoover tendered phrases of international good will.

Tribute to France.

To France he said:

"In military history Yorktown is distinguished as one of the great battles in which land and sea forces coordinated. The naval cooperation was furnished by France, herself also at war with Great Britain. For that cooperation we have held during these 150 years a grateful remembrance. That sentiment, continuing down through our history, finally flowered in the cooperation which the American people gave to France in their defense against an overwhelming enemy."

To England he said:

"We assemble here to celebrate a victory for our own independence, but not essentially a victory over the British. The long span of history will interpret the American war for independence and this battle more in the light of a struggle amongst English speaking people for the establishment in government of an extension of a common philosophy of human rights begun at Runnymede.

Ideals Not Estranged.

"The principles and ideas for which Americans contended had many adherents and much sympathy in England at that time. The victory of the Americans gave impulse to the new order throughout the world; and while the sovereignties of America and England definitely diverged at Yorktown, yet the march of the ideals for which Americans fought also went forward and triumphed in England itself."

Washington the President lauded as the man without whom independence could not have been won.

Mr. Hoover himself was not without his trial on the field of Yorktown. A brisk wind rustled the sheets of his manuscript and finally whisked them from the reading rack. Smiling ruefully, he was forced to pause twice—once, a long halt—while with a secretary's help he sorted out the disordered pages.

The sesquicentennial at Yorktown was a pageant indeed if that means crowds milling in the dust, silk hats tottering on notable heads, noise and bands and uniforms.

Ceremonies Start on Water.

The ceremonies began early in the morning as the battleship Arkansas steamed in state for an hour up the York river past three miles of warships, flag decked, their rails lined, bands playing the national anthem, and their three pounder batteries banging out an almost endless string of 21 gun salutes.

From the deck of the Arkansas, where the President stood on the bridge, the ship's band answered back.

Past the two French cruisers, the Duquesne and the Suffren, the former flying the flag of Rear Admiral Destottes-Genon, the Arkansas sauntered, and her band broke into the "Marseillaise."

Ambassadors Claudel and Marshal Petain came to pay their respects, and the Arkansas' saluting battery had its chance to return the honors. Nineteen guns for the ambassador. Then, again, fifteen when Vice Admiral A. L. Willard, commanding the American scouting fleet, hummed away in his barge after calling on the President.

The Arkansas dropped anchor close by Old Ironsides, refurnished, with a brand new ensign flying high, but pathetic with her furled sails and a puffing steam towboat lashed alongside.

Riot of Anachronism.

Ashore, the President traveled along Surrender road, lined with every variety of uniform—military school cadets with crimson capes, the Richmond Grays, state police from half a dozen states, National Guardsmen, American Legion posts in blue and green and red and white and yellow. Participants in the pageant strolled about; a red coat climbed into a snappy roadster; one of Rochambeau's boys held a lighter to his cigaret; a lady with lace panties peeping out from below flowered furbelows strolled along wearing an Empress Eugenie hat.

Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia and Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut did the honors. As chairman of the sesquicentennial committee, Senator Swanson introduced the President, and afterward presented to Mr. Hoover a gold medal and to Mrs. Hoover one of silver. During the noonday ceremonies at which President Hoover, Marshal Petain, and Gen. Pershing were given LL.D. degrees by William and Mary college, Senator Swanson was taken ill, but was reported not to be seriously sick.

Widows of Presidents Attend.

Govs. Ritchie of Maryland, Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Buck of Delaware, more senators, three widows of Presidents—Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Wilson, and Mrs. Thomas J. Preston Jr., formerly Mrs. Cleveland, high army and navy officers, cabinet members—Stimson, Wilbur, Adams, members of the diplomatic corps, were all on hand in numbers too many to list.

It was something of a country fair with its tents and side shows, where other thousands who could not get tickets were forced to amuse themselves. It was a grand reunion for societies of this and that, for buxom ladies wearing ribbons and rheumatic gentlemen in bearskin hats.

And it was, too, as stirring as Memorial day. Following the surrender scene came a pageant depicting the growth of America, and lastly a review in which ten thousand men marched past. First the regulars, then the sailors from the fleets, bands playing, colors dipping, "eyes right" as the steady ranks tramped past the President.

French Contingent Honored.

A compact platoon preceded by a bugle corps—a contingent from the French war ships, red pompoms bobbing on the round white hats, slim bayonets glittering on the tall rifles. They carried no flag, but the crowd stood bareheaded just the same.

England's flag was honored with a salute of 21 guns as it came creeping down the mast.

As a final act of the parade, marched crack National Guard, and home guard, and American Legion, and military institute companies from all the states in the original thirteen. And if any color was missed in the uniforms in which they paraded past—well, there isn't any such color.

At 4 o'clock it was over. The President returned to the Arkansas on which he'll reach Annapolis tomorrow morning, and then return to Washington.

EXPLOSION CAUSES LOSS OF $50,000 IN HOME AT WILMETTE

Damage estimated at more than $50,000 was caused early last evening by fire which followed an explosion in the home of Nuncio Russo, 725 Sheridan road, Wilmette. The interior and all the furnishings of the house were destroyed.

Mr. Russo, one of the partners in the concern of A. Russo & Co., wholesale grocers at 466 West Chicago avenue, and other members of the family were visiting in Minneapolis and there was no one in the building when the explosion occurred.

Neighbors who heard the blast believed at first that it had occurred in the basement. Investigation by Wilmette policemen and firemen after the fire had died down convinced them that neither gas nor the heating unit in the basement had any effect in causing the explosion. Instead they believed that the explosion had occurred in the kitchen.

BERWYN COUNCIL DISPUTES ISSUE OF POLICE CHIEF

Controversy developed at the meeting of the Berwyn city council last night after Mayor Frank Novotny recommended the appointment of a Chicagoan, Elbert G. Bullard, as acting chief of police. Members of the council demanded that a resident of Berwyn be given the place.

At present Alfred Marshall is acting chief of the Berwyn force. The council voted to send the Bullard recommendation to the police and fire commission, which is not composed of councilmen, for investigation. Bullard was formerly a sergeant of police in Chicago. He was dismissed by the civil service commission in 1928, but was later reinstated and is now in retirement on a pension.

The council received a protest against the issuance of "I gotta drag" stars, as proposed by the aldermen. The protest was from the Taxpayers Club of North Berwyn. Mayor Novotny said that each person who would get the stars would be responsible and placed under a bond of $10,000. They are to be issued only to watchmen and special policeman, he added. An ordinance to authorize them is now being prepared and the council indicated its intention to pass it.

CERMAK STARTS WORK ON BUDGET FOR NEXT YEAR

The city council finance committee yesterday was informed by its chairman, Ald. John S. Clark [30th], that work on the 1932 city budget will be started about Nov. 5. At that time the committee expects to have before it the tentative budget which Mayor Cermak began preparing yesterday.

The committee approved a contract with the county board under which the county will pay the city 40 cent a day for each county prisoner kept at the House of Correction, the city to pay a like amount for city prisoners kept in the county jail. The county also will pay for water pumped to the Oak Forest infirmary and the forest preserves. A net revenue of $150,000 for the city will result, according to the alderman.

The committee also approved a proposal submitted by state authorities that the state pay the city $10,550 annually for cleaning portions of 32 streets in Chicago which have been turned over to the state.

MISTAKEN FOR BURGLAR; SHOT.

William Preston, 43 years old, 6108 Evans avenue, a switchman, was in the Bridewell hospital last night in serious condition, suffering from a gunshot wound in the chest. He was shot by Ernest McCarthy, 6832 Evans avenue, who mistook him for a burglar.

MAYOR CHARGES HOOVER'S PARTY SNUBS GREETERS

Salute at Naval Academy Termed Illegal.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Failure of President Hoover to recognize an official welcoming party here Saturday when he passed through on his way to Yorktown today led to a formal protest to the White House and abandonment of plans for a welcome on his return trip.

The protest was entered in the form of a letter which Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt directed to the President, asking for an explanation of his failure to recognize the welcoming party, consisting of himself and officers of luncheon clubs.

"There will be no welcome when the President passes through tomorrow on his return to Washington from Yorktown," Mayor Quenstedt said. "We went to considerable pains to arrange the reception Saturday, and failed to obtain even a nod from the presidential party."

Text of Letter Withheld.

The mayor declined to make public a copy of his letter to the White House.

"If a satisfactory explanation is not forthcoming from President Hoover, then I will make public my letter and the answer made to it," he said.

"I made arrangements for the reception with Col. G. C. Drescher of the secret service, who said he was the President's civilian aid. He fixed the hour of arrival and the point at which we were to meet the President."

President Hoover, Admiral and Mrs. W. V. Pratt, and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, wife of the secretary of the navy, went through Annapolis late Saturday, on their way to Annapolis Roads to board the U. S. S. Arkansas, which took them to the Yorktown sesqui-centennial celebration.

Automobiles Speed On.

When the presidential caravan reached the designated meeting point it slowed down, but before Mayor Quenstedt's party could reach Mr. Hoover the machines gathered speed and went on, the mayor complained.

At the Naval academy the presidential party was received by Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent, and a salute of 21 guns. It was revealed today that the salute was illegal, the President's party not arriving at the academy until five minutes after official sunset. Regulations forbid salutes after sunset.

President Hoover's schedule calls for his arrival at Annapolis Roads aboard the Arkansas tomorrow morning. He will follow the same route through Annapolis toward Washington that was traversed Saturday. Any necessary arrangements will be made in regard to traffic, the mayor said, but no official will take part.

Quenstedt, a Republican and an attaché of the Naval academy, is serving his second term as mayor.

PARLEY ON INDIA TO CLOSE; BRITAIN TO RETAIN RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Without having granted India independence, or anything resembling it, the Indian round-table conference will be adjourned on Nov. 10, according to reliable information today. This is the British government's answer to Mahatma Gandhi's reiteration yesterday that the "round-table conference had been a great waste of time, as nothing is being done."

The mahatma was privately informed of the government's decision to end the conference, and he will confer with Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India, about it tomorrow. Sir Samuel, it is expected, will tell him what little Great Britain is expected to give.

It is reported that the government will advise the acceptance of the Moslem terms for a communal settlement, and insist on retaining British control over the Indian army, foreign affairs, and finance indefinitely, even if a sham federal government is set up. The Indian princes have already given up hope of obtaining anything definite here, and their leader will sail home next week.

Mayor Cermak to Receive K. of P. Emblem Tonight

Mayor Cermak will be presented tonight with a veteran's jewel, emblematic of twenty-five years' membership in the Knights of Pythias of Illinois. The presentation will be made by Leslie L. Crouch of Oregon, supreme chancellor of the order, in the ballroom of the Hotel Sherman.

GARY BANDITS GET LONG TERMS IN PENITENTIARY

Judge Martin J. Smith of Criminal court at Hammond, Ind., yesterday sentenced Clifford Mitchell, 28, and Frank Burrell, 29, both of Gary, to 20 year penitentiary terms and disfranchised them for 20 years for robbery.

State and defense attorneys had recommended ten year terms for the two men. In sentencing them Judge Smith said:

"People are up in arms because nothing is being done by authorities to stem crime. We are not discharging our obligations to society if we deal gently in instances like this."

Judge Smith also criticized Gov. Harry G. Leslie for leniency shown to Charles McMahon of Chicago Heights.

JAPAN AGREES TO LET U. S. SIT IN AT GENEVA

But She Still Insists Action Is Illegal.

Japan's Five Points

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 20.—[Tuesday.]—Five points of the terms on which Japan is ready to negotiate directly with China were given out at Tokio today. They include:

1. Recognition by China of all treaty obligations.
2. Confirmation of Japanese railway rights.
3. Cessation of anti-Japanese activities, such as boycotts.
4. Mutual recognition of territorial integrity.
5. Confirmation of Japanese land lease privileges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—The government of Japan today notified the state department that it has withdrawn its objections to American participation in the discussions by the league of nations of the Manchurian crisis. While not accepting the right of the league council to invite a nonmember to sit in at its deliberations except on a unanimous vote, the Japanese government said it would no longer object to the attendance of Prentiss Gilbert, the American consular representative, at the council's sessions.

Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador here, advised Secretary of State Stimson of the changed attitude of his government during a prolonged conference late today. He stated that his government has begun a gradual withdrawal of troops from the occupied zone near the South Manchurian railroad. He predicted that no more hostilities will occur, unless Japanese nationals were endangered.

Tension Is Eased.

The announcement by Ambassador Debuchi was hailed in diplomatic circles as a victory for the diminutive Japanese envoy, as he has been advising his government to take this step for the past four days. The receipt of the new information showing what was interpreted as a more conciliatory attitude on the part of Japan had the immediate effect of lessening the tension in the Manchurian situation.

In withdrawing her opposition to Prentiss Gilbert sitting with the league council, Ambassador Debuchi told Secretary Stimson his government did not recede from its objection on the technical points raised by Japan at Geneva concerning the right of the council, short of a unanimous vote, to invite a nonmember to sit with it.

Fighting Planes Withdrawn.

In reporting an improvement in the actual state of conditions in Manchuria Ambassador Debuchi notified Secretary Stimson that:

Japan has withdrawn all her fighting planes from Manchuria to Korea. These consisted of one squadron. There remain some observation planes for defensive purposes, but they were said not to be equipped for bombing.

Japan has begun a gradual withdrawal of troops by sending a few small contingents across the Yalu river into Korea.

Most of the railroad lines in Manchuria have been reopened and the Mukden station at Mukden will resume operations in a few days. Banks have been reopened.

Though the United States has not joined the league powers in sending a note urging Japan to honor her Kellogg peace pact obligations, it was explained here that thus far no note has been received from Geneva notifying the United States that Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Spain had joined in sending identic notes asking China and Japan to respect the Kellogg pact, although it is known that these notes have been sent.

In the meantime, Mr. Gilbert has dropped back into his rôle of observer and, according to state department officials, will not again join actively in the council's discussions unless action under the Kellogg pact is brought up.

Briand Draws Up Proposal.

GENEVA, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Aristide Briand has formulated a proposal to deal with the Manchurian conflict which he will present to the Chinese and Japanese members of the council of the league of nations.

This proposal, which is sufficiently flexible in form to serve as a basis for negotiation, is to be advanced in behalf of the council, with which Prentiss B. Gilbert is sitting as a representative of the United States.

It was understood after the private council meeting today that the formula to be advanced by M. Briand, the chairman of the council, in talks with Dr. Alfred Sze of China and Kenkichi Yoshizawa of Japan, contains some features which each party can reject to relieve its own feelings.

In addition, it was said in informed quarters, the very vagueness of the Briand suggestions eliminate the possibility of deadlock.

Willingness to accept the league's good offices in supervising security in Manchuria behind retiring Japanese troops was seen in Japan's latest communication, a note issued to the press and subsequently considered by the council. The note said:

"The Chinese government has given assurance that it will protect our nationals and their goods. Japan is extremely pleased with this excellent intention, but she has still some hesitation regarding its realization, especially in the present overexcited state of China herself.

"The league of nations, we are told, would be ready to assume the entire responsibility for the security of our population and their properties after the retreat of our troops. It would obviously be most fortunate if the league could find a way to accomplish this.

"The lives of hundreds of thousands of Japanese people and their goods are entirely too important to permit the Japanese government to run risks which now, unfortunately, are too evident.

"The Japanese delegation ardently hopes that the council, considering the situation in the light of realities, may assist through its deliberate and calm action, its confidence in Japan's good will, and a just appreciation of the circumstances, a real appeasement which is desired by all, and this will be in the eyes of the world a striking proof of moral authority and beneficence of the league of nations."

Envoys Confer with Chiang.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 20.—[Tuesday.]—The American, British, and French ministers to China conferred with the Chinese president, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, at Nanking yesterday. It is believed that Japan's contention that the Manchurian dispute does not come under the Kellogg pact and also the Geneva proposal that Japan withdraw into the south Manchurian railway zone within three weeks were discussed.

Sir Miles Lampson, British minister, called the attention of the Chinese government to its obligations under the Kellogg pact.

The stock market is excited over a rumored clash at Shanhaikwan, near the great wall, between Japanese guards allowed there under the Boxer treaty, who have recently been reinforced, and Chinese railway police holding a portion of the railway.

9 JAPANESE OFFICERS ARE SEIZED IN PLOT; PLANNED HARA-KIRI

TOKIO, Oct. 19.—(AP)—An alleged plot by a group of young army officers to resort to "violent action" to show their indignation against the so-called 'weak kneed' foreign policy has led to the detention of eight lieutenants and one major for investigation.

Information in the hands of the war office indicated that the group of junior officers, under leadership of the major, planned to commit hara-kiri afterward for the purpose of casting the spotlight on what they considered the "national disgrace" in connection with the government's attitude in the Manchurian dispute with China and other foreign policies.

Ceremonies on the Air

Ceremonies associated with the dedication of a room "to the freedom of the press" at Monticello, the Virginia home of Thomas Jefferson, will be broadcast between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station, on the NBC-WEAF hookup.

Principal speakers will be Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Stuart G. Gibboney, president of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation, and James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States.

The celebration this afternoon was planned by the freedom of the press committee and the patriots' pledge of faith committee of the memorial foundation. Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and former President, was a champion of free speech. The festivities this afternoon will be broadcast from the top of Jefferson's "Little Mountain," near Charlottesville, Va.

HOME OWNERS HEAR PLANS TO LIFT TAX LOAD

Revise Laws, Plea of Speakers at Meeting.

Immediate reform to relieve the tax burden was urged last night at a joint meeting of members of the Chicago Real Estate board with the property owners division of the board in the Morrison hotel. Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom and Nathan William McChesney, general counsel of the National Association of Real Estate boards, outlined programs to 1,500 home owners.

The attorney general declared for revision of the assessment, levy and collection of taxes as the solution of the tax problem after adoption of a funding program to forestall collection of two tax bills during the present critical financial condition. Public officials should confine themselves to matters of fact and not of theory, he asserted.

Wants Special Session.

"Property owners should call on the executive of the state to summon a special session of the legislature to draft remedial legislation to lift the tax burden," Mr. Carlstrom said. "The aim should be to provide revenue for necessary expenses with no regard to caution in the chopping off of unnecessary expenses.

"I believed the plan to fund the tax of 1930 to be legal. The plan was forestalled. I still believe it to be legal and believe that it will have to be adopted. When this relief has been won then let us address our efforts toward revision of the taxing machinery and theoretical programs."

Urges Public Thrift.

Mr. MacChesney amplified necessity of drastic retrenchment in public expenditures. Elimination of wastefulness and graft with consolidation of duplication in governments were pointed out as working toward a reduction in taxes of from 30 to 50 per cent.

"Nothing will remedy the situation short of a practical revolution," he declared. "County Treasurer McDonough asks why people haven't paid their taxes. I say because they haven't the money. No public official is entitled to respect unless he realizes the facts and if he does not he is playing politics with your livelihood and future.

"We are in the midst of a financial panic, hundreds of thousands of persons are out of work, we are raising $8,800,000 for relief, never has the city had as many tax defalcations as at present and never have the courts been so clogged with tax objections. It is time for the people to warn public officials they don't propose to have their homes foreclosed and their property taken from them."

Other speakers included Mark L. Levy, president of the board; Hyde W. Perce, chairman of its finance committee; William Wilhartz, attorney for the board, and George W. Nixon, member of the governor's commission. They urged postponement of the penalty date on future taxes and making possible payments in quarterly installments.

BERLIN AND ROME TO DISCUSS ARMS ON GRANDI VISIT

ROME, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Further collaboration between Germany and Italy is expected to result from the visit of Foreign Minister Dino Grandi to Berlin next week-end. Grandi will return the call made by Chancellor Bruening and the then Foreign Minister Curtius at the beginning of August. He will represent Premier Mussolini, who finds himself unable to go until some time this winter. Mussolini has not been out of Italy since 1924.

Two of the problems that were paramount at the time of the German leaders' visit to Rome have since been dissolved, wholly or partly. One was the Austro-German customs union, of which Mussolini told Bruening he disapproved. Another was the prevention of German bankruptcy and the execution of the Hoover moratorium.

Other problems, however, still remain. One is disarmament and another is the spheres of influence of both countries in the Balkans. Since Mussolini's advent Italy has kept a keen eye fixed on the Balkan States, for, in his words, "Italy's future lies toward the east." She wishes to build up a friendly bloc in the Balkans.

BROKER SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Charles L. Abry, 48 years old, 1020 Lawrence avenue, a cotton goods broker, shot himself near the heart yesterday in his office at 323 South Franklin street. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where his condition was described as critical. The motive for the shooting was not learned.

CHICAGO TIED WITH CLEVELAND IN RACE FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION

Washington, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Cleveland and Chicago appear to be leading in the contest for next year's Republican national convention.

Chairman Fess of the party's national committee said today that the party officers would be called into session Dec. 15 to select the convention city and for the date of the convention.

Several cities are bidding for the Republican gathering, including New York, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, San Francisco, Denver, Detroit, Indianapolis and St. Louis.

A subcommittee will be named by Senator Fess to consider the problem of apportionment of delegates to the states in accordance with the reapportionment of the house of representatives. Delegations to the convention have been based on the house membership.

Republican leaders will look to President Hoover in selecting the convention city, but he has indicated no choice. Early speculation centers on the middle west as the logical meeting ground.

CENSUS EXPERT SAYS NEW YORK IS LARGEST CITY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—New York is now believed by census bureau experts to have a right to the title of "world's largest city."

"I think it is fair to consider New York greater than London," said Dr. Joseph A. Hill, acting census director and authority on population studies.

On a strictly area basis, comparisons compiled in New York, and considered accurate by the census experts, were:

New York within a radius swung twenty miles from city hall—9,389,873.

London within a radius of twenty miles from Charing Cross—8,913,017.

The most politically accurate comparison, Dr. Hill [illegible] ween London county the little city of London and its surrounding organized counties—and New York as comprised of its five boroughs. This would make it:

New York, 6,930,446 population in 1930.

London, 4,396,821 population in 1931.

TEACHERS TELL HARDSHIPS OF PAYLESS MONTHS

Talk Over Their Lot at Bridge Party.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

More than 75 Chicago public school teachers gathered yesterday in the offices of the Elementary Teachers' union, 506 South Wabash avenue, to play bridge "to help keep up our spirits," as they explained. Between hands they cited instances of the desperate circumstances into which many teachers have fallen because they have not had a pay day since last April.

None of them spoke of her own troubles, other than laughingly reciting some economies. One woman said she was doing the washing for herself and her parents now. Another pointed with pride to her new $1.88 hat. Most of them are taking their lunches to school with them and when possible walking to and from school, they said. Of the many fellow teachers who are not so fortunate they spoke gravely, however.

Diet of Bread and Coffee.

"One teacher at my school has had nothing at her home but bread and coffee for a week," said one.

"There's Mrs. S——," said another. "Her husband has been unable to work for years. On top of that, she has an invalid daughter. She told me a few weeks ago if the scrip was cut off, she would not have enough to eat."

"A man teacher in our school," said another, "has a wife and three young children. Last week he told the engineer that he now had no means of buying food. The teachers took up a collection of $27. He was painfully embarrassed, but took it for the sake of the children."

"I wonder what's become of Miss E.," said one of the younger players. "She was assigned to a school just two months before our pay checks stopped. When I last saw her, she had assembled what cash she could obtain, and divided it over as long a period as possible, allowing herself so much a week.

"She was living on graham crackers and milk. Eating no more than that, she had figured that she could hold out until sometime in November. She was an orphan and had come here from a small town. She lives in a hall bedroom and has no relatives she can call on."

Husband an Invalid.

"I wonder how Mrs. W. is making out," an older woman said. "Her husband is an invalid. Recently, after the birth of her fourth child, she returned to teaching. Her oldest is 16."

"I suppose she is doing what I am doing," one woman said. "That is, going to the loan companies and borrowing at 2½ per cent a month. I've had to borrow from relatives to pay the interest."

"Two sisters I know are teaching—the only members of their family who have work," another woman related. "Last May their brother died. The day before his death, they lost all the family savings in a south side bank failure.

"Their friends paid for the brother's funeral. The girls' father is an invalid. They were sending a younger sister through college, but she had to come home. She cannot find work, but she helps at home. Finally they had to go to the loan companies. They think they are fortunate to have obtained loans at 2½ per cent a month. Their teacher friends lent them all they could, but that was little."

Grocer Refuses Scrip.

"Mrs. B., a teacher in Homewood, who's been teaching 35 years, has been unable to get rid of scrip; her grocer will not take it, either. She adopted her sister's seven children when her sister died over ten years ago, and some of them are still young. One who is grown is unemployed and another has children of her own and cannot help her. She owned her own place, but was unable to finish the few remaining payments or pay her taxes without borrowing money. She did—at 3½ per cent a month."

A young man, a high school teacher, was mentioned. His wife gave birth to a baby last June and was forced to remain in the hospital a month. He was buying their home, but was unable to make the payments and it was lost. After borrowing money to pay the hospital bill he had to send his wife and baby and the 4 year old child to her parents downstate.

"We know a young girl who was assigned to a school two years ago," said a woman at another bridge table. "She is the only support of her blind father and her mother. The few dollars she owned were lost in the failure of a suburban bank.

"The girl was to be married last June to a young man recently graduated from a university. He made only a small salary. She postponed her marriage when she saw it would be a long time until our pay day meant anything. He could support her, she said, but not her parents, too. She has obtained money at various loan companies, but thought it unfair to burden him. She walks to school and back and takes her scanty lunch."

Clothes Taken by Thieves.

"Mrs. A. is having a struggle, although she never talks about it," said another. "Last spring they were the victims of a robbery, and all her husband's clothing, and most of hers, as well as rugs and other things, were stolen. Then he lost his job. Still, he could take care of their 4 year old son. But the husband is ill with influenza. Mrs. A. is too proud to complain, but I wonder how she manages."

"One of the hardest things, however, is the fact that we simply haven't the money with which to give hungry children lunches as we have done before," said Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the Elementary Teachers union. "Even now we do it when we have the cash. To see children hungry under our very eyes is unbearable."

FAMILY, LACKING FOOD, GIVES SIX CHILDREN AWAY

Teacher Reveals Distress at Leyden School.

Cash contributions to the Hungry School Children's Fund will be received at the following Tribune offices: 1 South Dearborn street, 1101 East 63d street, and 4132 West Madison street.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Each day brings its quota of stories about suffering children in every part of the city. But the most distressing to date concerns the family of the Leyden district, on the far northwest side of Chicago. Six children of this family have been given away because they could not be fed at home and their parents would not let them starve.

A teacher in the Leyden school, 7400 Cornelia avenue, related the circumstances after contact with the family. The district is one that was settled by families of modest means, who almost universally purchased homes and were attempting to pay for them when the depression struck. Conditions in that area for months past have been as bad as in any part of the city.

Father Loses His Job.

The father of the family, who worked as a day laborer, was among the earliest to lose his employment and he failed to find any to take its place. The mother, with a large family on her hands, could not help. Charitable agencies could offer only the most meager assistance. The neighbors were as poor, practically, as the distressed family.

At this stage word came from relatives downstate that if the children could be sent there they could be put into the homes of acquaintances who at least would see to it that they had enough to eat. It seemed the only resource, so the family was scattered, except for the oldest child and a baby born since then.

Other Children Go Hungry.

Such stress as this is close to the homes of several neighbors of the same family. The children who can attend school do so frequently without having touched anything but water, in the way of food, for more than twenty-four hours. Teachers who know of the children's need are powerless to help, having had no salaries themselves for months.

Aid for the Leyden school and for other institutions where similar necessity exists can be given through the Hungry School Children Fund opened by THE TRIBUNE. This fund was raised last year by the teachers and throughout the winter functioned daily to feed thousands of youngsters, for a large proportion of whom it was the only meal of the day. Warm lunches are served and milk is an important item in the menus.

Donations for the fund may be directed to the cashier of this newspaper at Tribune Tower. Those received yesterday were:

AUDITOR NELSON FILES PLEA FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

Attorneys for State Auditor Oscar Nelson and four bankers indicted jointly in the failure of the Waukegan State bank sought a change of venue yesterday when their cases were called before Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady at Waukegan.

Feeling among Waukegan residents over the closing of the bank is such that the defendants could not secure a fair trial there, Albert Fink, counsel for the auditor, told the court. Judge Dady granted the defendants until next Monday to prepare a petition for a change of venue and an additional week to secure affidavits supporting the petition.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith declared he would oppose any move to try the case outside Lake county.

Co-defendants of Mr. Nelson are George Woodruff, former chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, Chicago; Norman Geyer, former president of the Waukegan bank; William H. Miller, former vice president of the Republic bank, and John Murray Connors, former vice president of the Waukegan bank.

There is no Substitute for Quality!

SINCE the opening of the first Pixley and Ehlers restaurant 32 years ago, one underlying principle has been maintained which is largely responsible for their tremendous growth and success—QUALITY. Frequently the experienced buyers for Pixley and Ehlers are offered inferior grades of foodstuffs and substitutes at a much lower figure with the sales argument that this would enable them to cut prices and show a greater profit. True, prices have been reduced as market conditions warrant, but the size of the orders remains the same. Today, the average check at Pixley and Ehlers is 25% lower than a year ago—however, they are proud to say that they have never digressed from their original plan of serving only quality foods.

BANKS EXPECTED TO DENY CITY A TAX LOAN TODAY

Szymczak Cuts Down His Offer of Warrants.

City Controller Szymczak will be notified today, according to information disclosed yesterday, that the Chicago banks at this time will not accept his proposal that they buy $36,000,000 worth of 1930 tax anticipation warrants now held in the city's surplus funds.

The proposal that the banks buy that amount of warrants was advanced by Mr. Szymczak last Tuesday. Yesterday, however, the controller said, he would like to sell $36,000,000 worth of warrants now and similar amounts on Nov. 1 and Dec. 1, a total of $112,500,000.

Amount Will Meet Pay Rolls.

"If the lesser amount can be sold we can meet pay rolls of the city, public library, and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium until the end of the year," said Mr. Szymczak. "Of course, we have $36,000,000 worth to sell and the more we sell the more bills the city can pay."

What effect the modified proposal will have on the bankers' refusal will not be determined last night. If the banks decide to buy the smaller amount of 1930 warrants in the near future the city will use the money to purchase its own 1931 warrants. The advancement will release the money to pay roll purposes.

The bankers' answer to the controller's original proposal will be given today by F. M. Gordon, representing the First National bank; Donald C. Miller of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, and John W. Denison of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

Already Hold $200,000,000.

They will give as one reason for the refusal, it was reported, the fact that the banks now hold more than $200,000,000 worth of warrants, and not because of the tax muddle they cannot obtain definite information as to when these warrants will be redeemed.

Authority to sell the $36,000,000 worth of 1930 warrants, or any portion of them, was given to the council committee. Authority also was granted to issue $8,998,000 worth of refunding bonds to meet payments of principal on bonds due Jan. 1, 1932.

Included in the warrants held by the city are $6,965,000 worth of the school board's educational fund. The sale of these warrants to meet the teachers' pay rolls has been sought by the Chicago Teachers' federation.

Relief Conference Tonight.

Circuit Judge Philip Finnegan yesterday postponed a temporary injunction to halt the issuance of school bond scrip after his proposal for a teachers' relief conference had been accepted. The meeting of the interested parties will be held tonight at the Union League club.

At the court session Thurlow G. Kingston, attorney for the affiliated teachers' unions, suggested that individual tax warrants be given to the teachers in the full amounts due them. The proposal was opposed by President Myers of the school board on the ground that the issuance of warrants in small denominations would destroy the market for them.

Teachers Carry On Fight.

In other actions yesterday the teachers put forward proposals looking toward obtaining their back pay. Resolutions were adopted at a joint conference of teachers' organizations asking the collection of $75,000,000 in taxes now tied up in the county court, and asking Gov. Emmerson to call a special session of the legislature before the end of this month.

One proposal of the teachers to hasten the collection of contested taxes is that the county board bring in a number of downstate judges in an effort to clear County Judge Jarecki's docket of these cases.

A petition for a special session of the general assembly, which has been signed by 18,000 school board employés, will be mailed to the governor today. Representatives of the teachers also are working to ascertain what aid can be had from the $500,000,000 Hoover credit pool.

RICH HINDU RAJAH SUES ACTRESS HE DENIES MARRYING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—An Australian actress, who swapped her American husband for a wealthy Indian maharajah, was a defendent today in a hearing before the privy council in which the maharajah of Tikari appealed against a decision of an Indian court which ordered him to pay her $5,500 annually. The actress' maiden name was Elsie Thompson. She married George Stillwell in Cape Town, South Africa, but was divorced in 1908 in New South Wales.

Later, she became a convert to Hinduism, took the name of Sita Devi, and participated in a marriage ceremony with the maharajah in Lucknow. A document, purporting to bind the maharajah to a perpetual annuity, drawn up in 1917, has been produced.

The maharajah admits he stopped the allowance ten years ago on the grounds of infidelity and his appeal is based on the claim that the woman was never legally divorced, nor was the marriage ceremony with himself legal. Judgment has been reserved.

9 KILLED, 27 HURT IN MINE BLAST; 67 MEN TRAPPED

HERNE, Westphalia, Germany, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Nine miners were killed and 27 injured, a half dozen gravely, today as an entire shift of 67 men were entombed by an explosion in the Mont Cenis coal mine near here. Some of the injured may not recover.

The cause of the explosion, occurring at a depth of 2,000 feet, had not been determined. A combination of fire damp and coal dust was believed to have been a possible cause. Thirty-one miners were brought uninjured to the surface by rescue squads.

RECEIVERS MUST PAY TAXES FIRST, 5 JUDGES WARN

Take Action to Collect Overdue Levies Today.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Five judges yesterday gave assurance of their aggressive support in obtaining taxes from income producing properties now in the hands of receivers.

The judges indicated to the "tax council," consisting of officials concerned with the collection of taxes, that they would remove receivers who have filed objections to levies and will require every receiver to tell why the taxes on the property in his care have not been paid. The five are Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan and Circuit Judges William V. Brothers, Philip J. Finnegan, Joseph Burke, and Michael Feinberg.

Owners Urged to Pay.

No announcement was made of any future meeting of the "tax council." Therefore what they intend to further do to obtain delinquent taxes from wealthy property owners cannot be forecast. It has been urged that the large and solvent property owners who are protesting their bills pay now what they deem is fair and contest only the remainder in the courts.

The judges, however, will act at 9:30 o'clock this morning when the chancellors of the Circuit court meet to draft a notice to all receivers directing them to report in writing the status of the 1927, 1928 and 1929 taxes on each property in their charge.

The discussion yesterday indicated that the judges of the Circuit court when they meet this morning will not only draft the notice to all receivers but will give a list of the receiverships to the county treasurer so that he may ascertain what taxes have been paid in each receivership during the last three years.

Taxes Come First.

"You will have no trouble whatever in getting taxes from receivers who have the money with which to pay," Judge Sullivan told the "tax council." "Any receiver in my court who does not pay will be removed, the taxes paid, and that amount charged against the receiver's fees.

"If any receiver appointed by me has filed an objection against the taxes on property in his charge, he will be removed. Last week I removed a receiver who had protested taxes, told him that he did not understand his duties and withheld his compensation. Taxes come first."

"Show a case of a receiver with cash in hand who hasn't paid the taxes, and you will get action in five minutes," said Judge Brothers. "The courts are ready to cooperate. Tell us what you want?"

At this point in the discussion Edward J. McCabe, office manager of the county treasurer's office to whom the task of collecting information had been assigned, was called on for a report. McCabe mentioned the case of the Midwest Athletic club, for which Mark Shanks is receiver. Judge Brothers phoned to Shanks, who stated he had no money for taxes.

Mr. McCabe also claimed to the judges that in a dozen cases in which Joseph Optner is receiver, no taxes have been paid for 1928, but the list of these cases which Mr. McCabe supplied to the press appeared to be in error. In some instances a part of the taxes had been paid.

Finnegan to Take Action.

"A receiver has no authority to file a tax objection," said Judge Finnegan in the course of the discussion. "Today I have asked the attorney for every receiver who has appeared before me to report whether the taxes have been paid. I intend to send out a letter in every receivership pending in my court, at my own expense."

"I am certain that every judge will cooperate actively and satisfactorily in this tax matter," said Judge Burke, and Judge Feinberg said that a receiver has no right to file a tax objection.

"Receivers will make no disbursements until taxes are paid," said Judge Finnegan later, which means that the receivers and lawyers must wait for their fees.

This morning State's Attorney Swanson will ask a hearing before Judge Jarecki on more than forty tax cases, some of which involve complaints of receivers. Because Hayden Bell, county tax attorney, was in Springfield the scheduled hearing on 32 loop tax cases was delayed until Oct. 26.

State's Attorney Swanson received a letter yesterday signed by 55 teachers of the Haugen school urging him to "speed the collection of delinquent taxes on loop property."

"I am doing everything I can to get the taxes in the treasury," said the prosecutor.

ABANDON GUAM, SAMOA AS NAVY BASES FOR U. S.

Fleet's Ability to Defend Pacific Slumps.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The ability of the United States fleet to wage war successfully in the western Pacific dropped virtually to the zero point today with the announcement by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, that this country shortly will abandon all projects for the defense of the naval bases of Guam and American Samoa. The island of Guam lies 3,300 miles west, and American Samoa 2,200 miles southwest of the Hawaiian islands.

The official disclosure that these once highly important cogs in the American naval defense policy actually were to be completely demilitarized came largely as a sequel to the surrender of the right to fortify these potentially strong bases during the negotiation of the Washington limitation treaties. Their passing served to emphasize the loss of American naval prestige in the far Pacific and by the same token to stress the overwhelming superiority now enjoyed in the Philippine area by Japan.

Experts Didn't Fight Much.

With the military value of Guam largely dissipated by this country's inability to fortify it to the point where it could ward off attack pending the arrival of the American fleet, United States naval experts did not put up much of a fight when the Hoover administration broached the idea of curtailing all naval personnel to the small number which would suffice to govern the island.

The final move to demilitarize the islands completely was decided upon partly for economy reasons and partly out of a desire to make a friendly peace gesture to Japan, which in recent months has exhibited an increasingly unfriendly attitude toward the United States. By removing all naval personnel and material from Guam and American Samoa the Hoover administration will make possible a considerable reduction in marine corps strength. The islands also will be put in a position where any move to bring them back to the strength maintained there up to a few months ago would be certain to arouse suspicion in Japan and possibly result in protests.

An indication of the potential strategic importance of Guam and American Samoa is obtained by a glance at their location. Guam is on almost a straight line from the American Pacific coast to Manila. From San Francisco to Pearl Harbor is more than 2,000 miles. Guam lies almost in a straight line 3,300 miles westward. As part of a chain of mid-Pacific American stepping stones leading from California through the Hawaiian islands to the Philippines Guam always has provided a happy landing place and relay station for cable lines across the Pacific and a base for American vessels plying midway lanes.

Key to Success in Pacific.

Located only 1,500 miles east of the Philippines, Guam long was regarded by American naval strategists as the key to American success in the far Pacific. With this island base as a stepping stone, it was figured that an American fleet operating from Pearl Harbor would have an excellent chance of not only protecting the Philippine islands, but of retaking them in event of their capture while the fleet was far away. The advantage of Guam as a naval base from which cruisers and other warships could operate to protect American trade also was considered of the greatest importance to American sea power in that region.

American Samoa comprises the South sea islands of Tutuila, the Manua group of Tau, Olosega, and Ofu, Rose and Swain's island, and is situated about 2,240 miles southwest of Hawaii. The government at present maintains a naval station at Pago Pago bay, regarded as the "safest and best harbor" in the south seas. With the United States out of this island, Japan reigns supreme in this sector.

The menace to Japanese success in a Pacific war furnished by the potentially strong Guam as well as American Samoa furnished the major motive back of the successful Japanese fight waged in 1922 at the Washington conference for a treaty making it impossible for this country to strengthen these naval bases.

Flying Conditions on Chicago Routes

Following are the flying conditions along the various air routes from Chicago as given out at 3 a. m. by the United States aerological station at the Chicago airport:

KOLB'S DEFIANCE OF SYNDICATE IS CALLED HIS DOOM

Inquest Delayed as Police Hunt for Clews.

More time was asked yesterday by county highway police to investigate the murder of Matt Kolb, head of a beer and gambling gang, who was shot to death in his roadhouse at Morton Grove early Sunday morning, and Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel continued an inquest into the slaying until Oct. 29.

JACOB SCHEWEL.

It was remarked at the inquest, however, that this murder is of that class in which time is of little help—that whereas the general story of the killing may be known, it is improbable that any one will ever be convicted of the murder.

Called Gang Execution.

"It's a gang execution," said Lieut. James Meyering of the highway police station at Morton Grove. Sergt. Francis Donohue of the coroner's office agreed that Kolb was killed because he opposed "the syndicate" in independent beer sales and gambling operations. As officials get the story, it is as follows:

Kolb was affiliated with a Chicago beer gang and about four years ago when his former employer, Charles Graydon, became sheriff, he branched out into the county, trading on his acquaintance with Graydon and profiting thereby. Last spring he was told he was "out" and that Jack Guzik, first lieutenant of Al Capone, was "in." Guzik appointed Rocco De Grazio as his agent in the territory of the northwest portion of the county.

Refuses to Stay Out.

Kolb refused to be dispossessed. He formed new alliances and sold beer and put his slot machines into various roadhouses. He was frequently warned that the "syndicate" would take his life but he relied on the protection of his associates and continued his operations.

He would have been killed sooner, but that would hurt business generally for both factions of the racketeers. The time was selected as the close of the roadhouse season—the present time—and on Sunday morning Kolb was eliminated forever from competition.

Chief William Collins of the highway police denied that one of the murderers had been identified from a picture. No identifications or hints as to the identity of the murderers have been received, he said.

U. S. May Place Al Capone in Cell Pending His Appeal

Al Capone's immediate freedom will be in the balance on Friday when his attorneys appear before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson with motions to combat his conviction for income tax fraud. The date of the hearing, originally set for this morning, was advanced yesterday when Defense Counsel Michael Ahern asked more time for preparation.

JOHN TORRIO.

If Judge Wilkerson refuses to grant Capone a new trial Friday, the judge has it in his power to refuse an appeal bond and to order him to prison immediately. Then Capone's only hope of freedom pending a decision on his appeal would be to ask the Circuit Court of Appeals to grant a bond.

Torrio Under Investigation.

Conjecture on the possibility that Capone may go to prison at once vied for attention yesterday with another development directly connected with the case. This was a new federal investigation of John Torrio, Capone's predecessor in the high councils of the underworld. Torrio's income, it is understood, appears to have been considerably higher than he represented it, both in his returns and his grand jury testimony.

Torrio, who abdicated as chief of the gang in favor of Capone, now lives on Long Island. He was brought here by the government as a prospective witness for the Capone trial, but was not put on the stand. Yesterday Torrio sought permission to return to his Long Island home, but the special intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau would not grant his request. The federal agents had no comment to make on the rumor that Torrio may be indicted for perjury.

See "Conflict" in Verdict.

Mr. Ahern and Albert Fink, associate counsel for Capone, have not indicated what motions they will make on Friday before Judge Wilkerson, but their reactions to the verdict, which makes possible a maximum penalty of 17 years imprisonment and a $50,000 fine, seemed to show that they based hopes of a new hearing on the grounds that the verdict is "conflicting." The conflict, the defense attorneys indicated, grew out of the fact that the jurors found Capone guilty on some of the tax evasion counts in the indictments and not guilty on others.

Although the criminal charges against Capone are not yet disposed of, the government revenue agents are expected to proceed shortly to the business of collecting the $216,000 unpaid taxes they say he owes. Dwight H. Green, solicitor for the bureau of internal revenue and one of the gang chief's prosecutors, said that he will communicate immediately with Commissioner of Internal Revenue David Burnet so that an assessment may be made against Capone.

Proof Is Up to Capone.

This action, as explained by Mr. Green and Assistant United States Attorney Samuel Clawson, is tantamount to establishing a prima facie case and if Capone challenges it before the board of tax appeals he must prove that his income was not great enough to warrant such a levy. The burden of proof would be upon him.

That Capone's troubles are mounting was shown yesterday with the report that more grand jury testimony will be taken on the booze conspiracy indictment, charging him and 68 others with more than 5,000 violations of the prohibition law.

May Call Defense Witnesses.

It is believed that the government will proceed next by placing possible defense witnesses in this case before the grand jury so that their testimony will be on record. This plan was followed in the income tax case with good results, it was said. About forty of the defendants in the liquor conspiracy case are already under arrest and the case is ready for a hearing on five days' notice.

In addition, there is the six months' contempt sentence imposed upon Capone by Judge Wilkerson for failure to appear before the grand jury when summoned on the excuse that he was ill. His lawyers have appealed this and will argue it on Nov. 12 before the Circuit court of Appeals.

D'Andrea Appears in Court.

Capone's bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, was taken before Judge Wilkerson yesterday morning on his contempt charge for carrying a pistol in the courtroom during the income tax trial. His lawyer, Joseph Roach, asked that the case be set for Thursday. This was done. Attorney Roach also filed an answer to the charge along with other routine motions. The answer set forth that D'Andrea intended no contempt and was permitted to carry arms by his appointment as a "peace officer."

This latter assertion referred to D'Andrea's contention that he is a deputy bailiff of the Municipal court, to which position he was appointed by E. W. Snow, bailiff of the court, under the previous city administration. D'Andrea says he was reappointed under the new administration, which is disputed by the present bailiff, Albert J. Horan. D'Andrea is being held in the county jail at Judge Wilkerson's order.

Chris Paschen Case Next.

The government's next income tax prosecution, United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said yesterday, will be the trial of Chris Paschen, building commissioner under the previous city administration.

Mr. Johnson expects to begin the income tax cases against contractors who worked for the sanitary district in the "whoopee days" when he has finished the Paschen case. These defendents include officials of the U. S. A. company and Dowdie Brothers.

3 INDICTED IN POLICE BRUTALITY QUIZ, IS REPORT

Ex-Berwyn Chief Hit by Grand Jury.

BY HAL FOUST.

The grand jury yesterday was reported to have voted true bills against former Chief Thomas Bartunek and Sergt. Joseph Pilat of the Berwyn police. The charge is assault with a deadly weapon. According to testimony of M. M. Brooks, district manager of the Universal Car Loading and Distributing company, he was slugged in a cell at the Berwyn police station early on the morning of Aug. 15 after he had been arrested on a charge of driving without lights.

M. M. BROOKS.

The grand jury also was reported to have voted a true bill against Constable Stephen Gendascek of Berwyn township, charging him with perjury in his testimony before the village civil service board in Chief Bartunek's behalf.

Victim Before Jury.

Brooks appeared before the grand jury with Assistant State's Attorney John Gallagher and Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club. He testified that he was arrested in the rear of his home, 3227 Clarence avenue, Berwyn, by Sergt. Pilat and Patrolman Theodore Michalsky.

Brooks, a former member of the Cicero board of education, was dragged from his automobile, taken to the mission to communicate with his village police station and locked in a cell. He protested and demanded per family. An hour or two later, according to his testimony, Chief Bartunek entered the cell with the two arresting policemen and slugged Brooks with a blackjack.

Patrolman Michalsky signed an immunity waiver and testified before the grand jury. He is reported to have repudiated his former statement and to have corroborated Brooks on the story of the beating. Michalsky is 25 years old and has had only a few months' experience as a policeman. No charge was placed against him.

Calls Testimony a Plot.

Constable Gendascek, as a witness before the Berwyn civil service board, testified he saw Brooks, apparently intoxicated, leave a disorderly house on the night of the arrest. Attorney Braun, at the time, characterized this testimony as part of a conspiracy to blacken Brooks' reputation so as to intimidate him into dropping the prosecution.

Refuting Gendascek's story was the testimony of three business men before the civil service board. They are reported to have told the grand jury yesterday that they had been with Brooks all afternoon and evening before his arrest, attending an outing at the Park Ridge Country club, and that he had not taken a drink. The three are M. J. Murray, vice president of the Transcontinental Freight company; John Bloom, manager of the same company, and Harry Hollander, manager of the foreign department of the Universal Car Loading and Distributing company.

Second Case Prosecuted.

This Berwyn case is the second such affair prosecuted by the Chicago Motor club during the 1931 touring season. On Friday, before Judge John Prystalski, former Chief A. A. Terry of Midlothian will go to trial on a charge of having slugged Dr. C. E. Steckbauer, of the Illinois Eye and Ear hospital, after the surgeon had failed to stop at a stop sign at 147th street and Crawford avenue.

Benjamin Bachrach, as public defender, has filed an appearance to represent Terry, who said he was without funds for his defense.

Man, Wife Kill Selves at Same Time in Suicide Pact

New York, Oct. 19.—[Speical.]—Joseph Bijur, automotive engineer, and his wife, Alice, were found dead today in Long Island city in the plant of the Bijur Lubricating corporation of which he was the founder and president. Police said they had shot and killed themselves by agreement, with ill health the probable cause.

Mr. Bijur was the brother of Supreme Court Justice Nathan Bijur, who died last summer. He was the inventor of many devices for automobiles, including a self starter, electric lighting system and the central lubricating system used in most cars today.

Hunt Them at Friends' Homes.

Mr. Bijur, who was 57 and his wife, 56, left their home about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. They did not return and servants tried vainly to find them at the homes of relatives or friends.

This morning when the factory was opened Charles Neagli, superintendent, found the two in an experimental laboratory in a remote part of the second story. Between a work bench and a row of chemical retorts the bodies were found on two chairs which stood back to back and near each was a pistol with one exploded shell. Each was shot through the forehead. Police believe the two killed themselves simultaneously.

Officials of the plant told police, and a cousin corroborated the fact, that both Mr. and Mrs. Bijur had been in ill health for some time. Mr. Bijur had suffered from arthritis for four years, had been to Arizona in a vain attempt to better his health, had been operated on thirty times, and recently was told by his physician he would have to undergo a major operation.

Inventor of Arc Light.

A graduate of the Columbia university School of Mines and of Worcester Electrical college, Mr. Bijur first invented an arc light and then the small batteries used today in almost all automobiles. He was the first man to start a car by means of electricity.

In 1904 he organized the General Storage Battery company and in 1910 the Bijur Motor Lighting company, which was consolidated with the General Electric company during the war. He founded the Bijur Lubricating corporation in 1923. He invented the Bendix gear system, which made possible the self starting and lighting of cars, and also was credited with the development of the trans-oceanic radio plant at Nauen, Germany. He held 200 patents for his inventions.

Gang Overpowers Guard and Loots Safe of $300

Police are searching for the band of five men who cut open a large safe in the plant of the Belmont Ice Cream company at 3551 Addison street early yesterday and escaped with between $300 and $400. The men overpowered the watchman, Richard Grimm, 4036 Moody street, who said that they worked on the safe for five hours. The gang had a loud speaker apparatus, with a wire running from the car outside where the lookout was on guard, to warn them if any one was approaching, according to Grimm.

COURAGE IS U. S. NEED, SAY CHIEFS OF ADVERTISING

Vigorous selling and courageous advertising are a vital need of the day, according to a statement issued yesterday by the board of directors of the Advertising Federation of America, meeting at the Drake hotel.

Aggressive selling, which includes active advertising, will create lively interest in new and old products alike and wear down depressive factors, the statement said. Advertising, it went on, is ready now to throw the power of its influence into the battle for prosperity and the moment for active sales is at hand.

The federation's directors declared that President Hoover's $500,000,000 pool for the liquefying of credits and the quickening of business presents a definite opportunity and a tremendous encouragement to American industry and business.

CHICAGO PUPILS WILL DO HOMAGE TO EDISON TODAY

Special Services Will Be Held in All Schools.

The half million pupils in Chicago's public schools will commemorate the life of Thomas A. Edison in their assembly rooms tomorrow while special services are being held in the Edison home at Llewellyn Park, N. J.

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, issued orders to school principals directing that flags be flown at half staff and that fitting ceremonies be arranged in every school in commemoration of the achievements of the great inventor and instill in the mind of every child the lessons to be learned from the patience, perseverance, and humbleness exemplified by Edison's life.

"I have asked the teachers to point out to the children the splendid example of Mr. Edison's rise from a humble station to the renown he enjoyed in later life," Mr. Bogan said. "There is a profound lesson for all of us in Edison's career. His character is one to emulate."

Insull Utilities to Do Homage.

The wheels of the Insull utilities, except only the dynamos actually generating electricity, will be stopped for one minute during the funeral services, officials of the Insull companies announced.

Every elevated train and street car in Chicago will be halted. In power plants of the Commonwealth Edison company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and other power companies of the Middle West Utilities, whose existence found origin in Edison's genius, all activities will cease.

Samuel Insull, who rose from a job as Edison's secretary to be head of the utilities system, will attend the funeral. Theodore R. Gerlach, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, will represent that group at the services.

Chicago Friends Pay Tribute.

Other friends of Edison in Chicago, mainly Bernard E. Sunny, retired chairman of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, and Lewis E. Myers, member of the board of education, had statements of tribute to the inventor's memory.

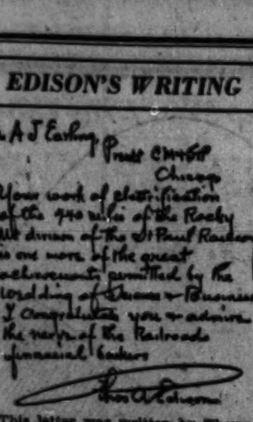
"The world has met one of the great losses of all time in the death of Mr. Edison," said Mr. Myers, a former salesman in the original Edison Electric company. "Millions have found happiness, pleasure, and comfort in his great inventions, the incandescent lamp, the phonograph, and motion pictures."

"An outstanding quality of Mr. Edison was his habit of selecting the impossible problems and then setting about with resolution, patience, and ingenuity to prove them not impossible," said Mr. Sunny. "He has filled an exalted place in science and invention. He will be remembered with gratitude and affection."

Cook County for $20,000 More to Place Children

Representatives of five private relief organizations asked the finance committee of the county board yesterday for an additional $20,000 for the children's home placing fund. The county appropriation of $325,000 to the fund, for placing under privileged children in private homes, has proved inadequate because of the depression, the committee was told, and the additional appropriation is needed to pay for care of the children to Dec. 1. The matter was taken under advisement.

EDISON'S WRITING



Mr. A. J. Earling, Pres't C.M.St.P.
Chicago
Your work of electrification of the 440 miles of the Rocky Mt. division of the St. Paul Railway is one more of the great achievements permitted by the leadership of Science & Business. I congratulate you & admire the verve of the Railroads financial backers
Thos. A. Edison

This letter was written by Thomas A. Edison to the late A. J. Earling, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, about seventeen years ago, after the railway put through its electrification program. The specimen of Mr. Edison's handwriting is in the possession of S. M. Earling, 725 Junior terrace, son of the late railway president.

KEEP BRAIN BUSY, EDISON'S RULE FOR HEALTH

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Edison regarded mental activity as the key to long life, he stated in a letter in 1924 in reply to questions on his rules for daily living. The questions asked of Edison and his replies were as follows:

Q.—What, if any, rule of diet have you followed? A.—I reduced my weight to where I thought it should be by diminishing the daily input of food, and thereafter keeping my weight constant by regulating the quantity of food. Not one person in 10,000 will do this.

Q.—Do you believe that "early to bed, early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise?" A.—This rule produces stupidity.

Q.—Have you ever followed any systematic program of exercise? A.—No special exercise is necessary if the food is diminished in proportion to the lessening of amount of exercise taken.

Q.—Have you found alcohol or tobacco harmful to the system? A.—I think that people should not befuddle their brain with alcohol. It is difficult to think straight with it. Tea, coffee, and tobacco apparently have no effect on healthy men when used in moderation.

Q.—Are we living too fast at present to reach a ripe old age? A.—No. The more the mental apparatus is worked the longer will the normal person live. Retiring from an active mental life is a dangerous thing.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Electrocution for murder is no accident in the eyes of the courts.

In refusing today to review the claim of relatives that they were due double indemnity on life insurance policies because the trip that Harry H. Diamond made to the electric chair in Michigan City, Ind., was an "accident," the Supreme court let the ruling of lower courts that the man brought his death upon himself stand.

Diamond was condemned for the murder of his wife, Nettie. After his arrest he transferred two policies of $5,000 each to Joseph A. and Esther R. Diamond.

The beneficiaries brought suit, claiming Diamond's death was accidental because he was very much opposed to going to the chair but was forced into it.

"Suicide is not an accident," the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals said; "neither is death at the hands of the law."

SUPREME COURT HEARS PLEA FOR LINGLE'S SLAYER

Appeal Arguments Made in Brothers Case.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The Supreme court of Illinois was asked today to put its seal of approval on the conviction of Leo V. Brothers as the murderer of Alfred Lingle.

C. WAYLAND BROOKS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"Seven witnesses have said positively that this is the man," declared Assistant States Attorney C. Wayland Brooks in his arguments to the high court. He received a trial that was eminently fair, and a jury found him guilty and fixed his punishment. "We submit our record in utmost confidence that this court will affirm the verdict in this case."

Defense Opens Argument.

The arguments before the Supreme court, presented in connection with Brothers' appeal from the verdict returned last spring before Judge Joseph Sabath, were opened by James C. O'Brien, defense attorney.

Mr. O'Brien made his principal point on the fact that when the jury was sent to deliberate, a manslaughter form of verdict had been given to the jury in addition to the regular forms submitted in murder cases. This verdict was included by inadvertence, the record disclosed, but Mr. O'Brien argued that the jury might have been influenced by it. The jurors, after many hours of deliberation, sent the manslaughter verdict to the judge, asking if there were any instructions concerning it. The judge, made aware of the mistake made in presenting this verdict, sent for all the verdicts and then returned those properly in the hands of the jury and retained the manslaughter verdict.

Mr. O'Brien argued that this having been done outside the presence of the defendant and his counsel, the court had erred and that the conviction should be reversed and a new trial ordered.

Calls Sentence a Travesty.

The defense attorney also argued that the verdict was not in accord with the evidence; that witnesses for the defense had sworn that Brothers was not the murderer. He asserted that the penalty fixed by the jury—fourteen years imprisonment—was a "travesty" and that it was wholly inadequate as a punishment for a crime as grave as the murder of Lingle.

Mr. O'Brien also attacked the calling of Policeman Anthony L. Ruthy as a court's witness. The state, in asking the court to call Ruthy, admitted he was unsound mentally, and this, Mr. O'Brien stated, made any testimony Ruthy might give unworthy of credence.

The defense counsel charged the state with subterfuge in having the court call Ruthy, declaring that this was merely to prevent the defense calling Ruthy, who had previously named another gangster, Frankie Foster, as the man he had pursued from the scene of the crime.

In reply, Prosecutor Brooks first took up the legal technicality advanced by the defense, the inadvertent submission of the manslaughter verdict. Mr. Brooks argued that the withdrawal of this verdict by Judge Sabath was not improper and that its inclusion with the other verdicts given by the jury could not affect the outcome of the case because it was not shown that the defendant was prejudiced thereby.

Then the prosecutor took up the evidence presented, and the manner of the prosecution.

"We felt," Mr. Brooks said, "that in all the maze of propaganda in this trial, with the courtroom so crowded with newspaper reporters that we had difficulty entering ourselves, we must be fair, most scrupulously so, in our conduct of the case. We believe Judge Sabath felt the same way about it and that the trial was eminently fair."

Prosecutor Brooks then reviewed briefly the testimony of the witnesses in the case, pointing out the disinterestedness of the state's witnesses and the positive character of their identification of Brothers.

"If he wasn't the man," Mr. Brooks asked, "why didn't he come forth and say so? Why didn't he take the witness stand and say where he was when Lingle was murdered, what he was doing and why he was innocent?

"It is easy to obtain negative witnesses who will say a criminal is not guilty, but it is difficult to find people who, knowing the effect of their testimony, will swear to the guilt of a murderer."

Explains Calling of Ruthy.

Mr. Brooks replied to the defense criticism of the calling of Policeman Ruthy.

"Unfortunately Officer Ruthy is dead," Mr. Brooks said. "He's dead probably because he had not the mentality to draw his gun in a crisis and protect himself. The state from the first had no confidence in Ruthy. He was never shown a suspect of all the suspects that were arrested during the investigation. His identification of Foster was made upon an examination of Ruthy by Foster's own lawyers and not through any act of the state's attorney.

"But all the witnesses in this case had mentioned Ruthy as being at the murder scene. We would have been delinquent in our duty to the jury if we failed to account for Ruthy, and, while we couldn't vouch for his testimony because of his condition, we felt that the court should call him so that the jury might see him and know of his impaired mentality.

"Brothers now says he will take the stand if he is given a new trial. He had the fullest opportunity at the previous trial to take the stand and there is nothing before the court to show that he will act differently if a new trial were ordered.

"There is no error in this case. The defendant received a fair trial; a jury heard the testimony, found him guilty, and fixed his punishment. We urge that the court sustain the jury's verdict."

The court took the case under advisement.

WIFE DIVORCES WILL H. HOWELL 'AD' AGENCY HEAD

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday granted Mrs. Bessie Howell of the Bismarck hotel a divorce from her husband, Will H. Howell, head of the Howell Advertising agency at 30 North Michigan avenue. During her brief testimony on the stand Mrs. Howell charged that her husband was cruel and often drunk. She charged that he had torn off her evening gown at a New Year's party in 1928, and had slapped her before guests. The divorce was uncontested and the court granted $300 a month alimony. Mrs. Howell filed a bill for divorce in February, 1929, but dropped it the following March. She was represented by Attorney Ernest Schein.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Friends of Samuel Mather, 80, one of America's greatest capitalists and philanthropists, who died early Sunday, estimated tonight that his estate amounted to more than 100 million dollars.

Mr. Mather had given more than 8 million dollars to public institutions and charities, and two years ago said his will provided for additional bequests of a similar nature.

The will has not been opened, however, and Philip R. Mather, a son, said its provisions were unknown. Mr. Mather made some revisions in the will two weeks ago and gave it, sealed, to his secretary.

MRS. SIMMONS SUES RICH MATE FOR SEPARATION

Charges His Relatives Ruined Marriage.

Mrs. Mary de Diemar Wright Simmons, 44 years old, 6750 Greenwood avenue, yesterday filed a bill for separate maintenance in the Circuit court in which she charged that her husband, Park Edmund Simmons, 72 years old, a wealthy retired lawyer, had been forced to leave her because of the opposition of his relatives to their marriage.

The suit was the second within recent months which involved the couple, Simmons having filed a bill asking the annulment of the marriage in the same court last July 30. In the original action Mrs. Simmons is charged with having entrapped her husband through false statements that he was to become the father of a child. These statements, Simmons asserted, later were proven false.

A Patron of Opera.

Mr. Simmons is the widow of a New Haven, Conn., manufacturer, and for many years was a resident of Evanston and Glencoe. Simmons, who is known as a patron of opera and music, began the practice of law in Chicago in 1882, following his graduation from Cornell university. He is a talented violinist and is the possessor of a fine library and many other art treasures in his home at 1746 Sheridan avenue, Evanston. He is one of the founders and a trustee of the University club and a member and ex-president of the Caxton club.

Immediately after their marriage on Dec. 12 at Geneva, Mrs. Simmons asserted in her bill, she and her husband left on a honeymoon to California. During this time, she said, Simmons often assured her "that he was very happy that he and she had so many cultural and social tastes in common . . . and on all occasions expressed his great love and admiration for her."

Opposition by Relatives.

At the same time, Mrs. Simmons averred, her husband often mentioned that certain of his relatives "who were dependent upon him for support and who expected to receive large portions of his estate" didn't want him to marry. These relatives, she charged, had warned him that they would endeavor to make life miserable for his wife. Once he told her, she said, that his relatives had determined that they would never live together in harmony.

When they finally returned to Chicago on April 15, she said, her husband suggested that she live apart from him for a week while he prepared the way for her in his home. Their relationship was unchanged, however, she said, and she continued to meet her husband every day until April 28.

Impossible to Live Together.

On that day, she declared, he informed her that it was impossible to live together because of his relatives. She would be refused access to his home if she went there, he told her, and begged her to go to California to await him. Her husband persisted in his attitude, Mrs. Simmons said, in spite of her many pleas for him to return to her. He warned her, she added, that he would not contribute to her support.

Although she had been independently wealthy, Mrs. Simmons charged, her investments have shrunk in value until her income amounts only to $155 a month. Her husband, however, she charges in her bill, is wealthy and his income exceeds $27,000 a year from investments and from a $10,000 annuity from his first wife's estate.

Asserting that she saw his income tax report for 1930, Mrs. Simmons avers that her husband owns 375 shares of capital stock of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, 2,444 shares of capital stock of the U. S. Gypsum company, and many shares of the Anaconda Copper Mining company and the Elgin National Watch company. His home, she asserts, is valued at $150,000 and its furnishings, which include many rare oil paintings, antique furniture, oriental rugs, statuary, vases, old ivory and fine silver, are valued at $50,000.

In the bill, which was drawn by Attorney Samuel T. Lawton, Mrs. Simmons explained that she had filed no cross-bill to her husband's annulment proceedings because her own demurrer, in which she charges that his action is void, still is pending.

HUNGARIAN FILM VAMP BATTLES TO STAY IN U. S.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Lya de Putti, the vest pocket size screen vamp on whose pleas a special board of inquiry of the immigration bureau canceled its order that she be expelled from America because her six months' passport visa had expired, now must await the action of the state department, to which the department of labor has referred the matter.

Meanwhile, however, Mme. de Putti has been paroled to pass the time comfortably in the Hotel Buckingham. The Hungarian star, who had returned to America to make movies after she had left in a huff when the talkies came in, had gone to Havana on a visit. When she returned from Cuba yesterday on the United Fruit liner Tolon it was learned the visa had expired meanwhile.

TORTURE BANDIT SEIZED IN COURT, ADMITS GUILT

George Henderson, 27 years old, 5437 Drexel avenue, confessed yesterday that he was a member of the gang which on March 27 tortured Peter Brady, a wealthy farmer living near Ransom, Ill., until Brady told them where he had hidden $36,000 in cash and securities.

Henderson was arrested Sunday night in a raid on a speakeasy, and was just leaving the Wabash avenue court, after being dismissed on a charge of disorderly conduct, when he was arrested by Sergt. Fred Tapscott, who remembered that he had been sought in the torture robbery case. He will be turned over to La Salle county authorities. Two of his confederates, Edward Sheehan and "Slim" Leonard, are already in the penitentiary.

GOVERNOR TO GET PARDON REFORM PROPOSAL TODAY

Board of Five to Replace Present Body Sought.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A proposal to discard the present parole board of nine members and suppiant it with a board of five members to sit continuously is to be placed before Gov. L. L. Emmerson today as one of the first suggestions of the legislative commission which studied prison conditions in England and Europe this summer.

JUDGE SULLIVAN.

The governor is to be asked to include a prison reform item in the call for the special session.

Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet, who headed the research tour, and Judge Denis E. Sullivan of the Cook county judicial advisory council, have an appointment with the governor this morning at Springfield. Besides urging that the special session, when called, be extended to cover a reorganization of the penal institutions, they plan to outline some of the measures which are deemed of first importance by the prison investigators.

Board of 5 Members.

The plan to reorganize the parole board is based on the theory that it should sit like a court in continuous session, instead of a few days a month, and that the members should be given a salary commensurate with that of judicial positions. The proposal as outlined yesterday is for five members at salaries of $10,000 each, to give their whole attention to the subject of pardons and paroles.

The members would be prohibited from being engaged in other business. The commission points out that at present the parole board consists of nine members, the chairman receiving $7,000 and the others $5,000, a total of $47,000. Advocates of the proposed plan argue that it would cost only $3,000 more in salaries and would give a parole body that would be hearing cases in the open five and a half days a week.

Seek Prison Segregation.

A second proposal to be outlined before the governor is that of reorganizing the penal institutions on the basis of selectivity. The basic idea is to keep first offenders from being herded into cells with hardened malefactors.

Members of the commission, which investigated penal systems abroad, declare that they are averse to anything resembling coddling of criminals, but that the great need is to refashion Illinois reformatories on a scientific method of preparing those who can be reclaimed, to reenter society.

One argument put forth is that the state prisons are now "schools for crime" due to the system of placing youthful first offenders with habitual criminals, sometimes in the same cells. It is proposed to rebuild the state prison farm at Vandalia and to use it for minor cases and first offenders. As a second step a probation prison is proposed, into which young prisoners who demonstrate fitness can be promoted.

Want Scientific Study.

Another proposal is that prisoners should be kept under scientific observation to determine those who are capable of going straight when released, and those who are of the habitual criminal type. The investigators declare that the average time served by prisoners at Joliet is four and a half years, and that one potent factor in the crime rate is the way repeaters and habitual criminals are freed under the present system.

Word from Springfield is that Gov. Emmerson is not inclined to place anything in the call for the special session beyond the question of revenue relief and allied matters of finance. In case prison reform is not included, the legislative commission plans to have bills drafted by De Witt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau, with a view to having the subject debated before the next regular session starts in 1933.

SWOPE'S EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IDEAS GIVEN TO SENATORS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Universal employment insurance, operated by trade associations, possibly under government supervision but not financed by the government, was recommended by Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, who appeared today as a witness before a select senate committee appointed to study this subject.

Mr. Swope did not give a concrete plan, but discussed his ideas, after outlining various employment insurance systems tried out by his company, a pioneer among large corporations in this work.

Interspersing his statement with occasional remarks that he might be "too idealistic," Mr. Swope said he would prefer to see trade associations operate the universal employment insurance plan he pictured, but that he was afraid "we never would get universal insurance without government action." The action, he explained, would be entirely supervisory, with corporations and their employés sharing the cost of the insurance.

"Industry should take care of itself," he said.

2 NURSES SLAIN; BODIES CUT UP; PUT IN TRUNKS

had been shot in the head and her face had been crushed, possibly to prevent identification. Neither of the women had been seen in Phoenix since Saturday. Indications were that one of them had been killed on that day and the other possibly before that.

The amateur surgeons who packed the bodies in the trunks had cut the heads off both. One body, that of the younger woman, was in the smaller of the trunks, which bore on one handle a tag with a written message: "Don't deliver until you see me personally." Both the severed heads and the second body, with the arms and legs amputated, were in the larger trunk.

The strange message on the trunk handle, unaccompanied by a name or anything to indicate who the sender might be, aroused the suspicions of the checkroom attendants and caused them to refuse to surrender the trunks.

Packed on the bottom of the larger of the boxes was a green-handled, saw-edged bread knife. It was bent and finger prints were found on it. The police theorized that this might have been the weapon with which the cutting up of the bodies was accomplished.

There was also a woman's purse containing several pistol cartridges and four empty sheels.

Among the photographs in the death trunk was one of an attractive young woman signed on the back "Hedvig Samuelson, Landa, N. D." With it was a diploma bearing the same name, which was issued by the North Dakota State Normal college at Minot in July, 1924. The picture showed a woman in a nurse's uniform, with dark, wavy hair parted on the left side. She was wearing a necklace of large beads.

A photograph of the younger woman showed that she had lighter and wavier hair. Because of the disfigurement of the faces of the victims the authorities were unable to say whether these photographs were actually representations of them.

The younger woman had been shot three times, once in the chest, once in the shoulder and once in the temple. The older was shot only once, in the temple.

A Puzzling Letter.

A letter, dated Sept. 15, found in Mrs. Judd's apartment and on which the signature was not legible referred apparently to the clain women. It read in part:

"I don't want to write a letter to lie around for Sammy and Miss Leroi to read. I hope you will let me know as soon as you can what the chances of your clinic closing or your doctors quitting. I hate to think of you being alone.

"I had supposed you thought so much of those two girls that you would be perfectly happy with them, but if you are not it puts a different face on matters.

"I am not at all surprised at what you tell me. I do not care to write you freely because you are careless with letters."

The packing of the bodies into the trunk had apparently been done in haste. The clothing had been hurled without order on the bodies and the photographs and letters were tossed in at random. So carelessly had the work of the killers been done that blood leaked from the interior to make the stain that aroused suspicion.

At the Phoenix station, also, it was recalled that after the trunk was placed on the train, which left the Arizona city at 5:10 Sunday night and arrived here at 7:40 a. m. today, a blood spot was found on the floor of the baggage room. No attention was paid to this at the time.

Victim Ex-School Teacher.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Hedvig Samuelson, mentioned in connection with a trunk murder mystery in Los Angeles, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Samuelson, farmers, of White Earth, N. D.

Graduating from the Minot State Teachers' college in 1925, she taught for a year at Landa, in Bottineau county, N. D. The following two years she taught in Whitehall, Mont. From there she went to Alaska to teach. A year ago she went to Phoenix, Ariz., for her health, and she is believed to have been a patient in a hospital there.

RUSSIA PUNISHES OFFICIALS FOR STORING GRAIN

MOSCOW, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The soviet government and the communist party moved today to uproot what it charged were opportunistic practices to undermine its "bread giving" program by the action of many collective farms in storing grain for individual needs instead of fulfilling their contracts towards the state.

Disciplinary action was announced against numerous party members assigned to various phases of collective farmwork and an immediate halt to the alleged practices was called for.

Nine officials and members of various local party organizations were expelled for failing to institute proper measures to fulfill the bread giving plan and for failing to organize pressure against Kulak elements. Eight others were removed from the work and warned that further offenses probably would lead to their expulsion from the party. Ten more were recalled from party work in the field and 34 grain producing districts were warned that unless their results were greatly improved in the future harsh measures would be adopted against them.

ACTRESS OPENS FIGHT TO BREAK ERLANGER WILL

Shows 2 Wedding Rings to Prove Status.

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Charlotte Fixel Erlanger, former actress, stripped two gem encrusted rings of platinum and gold from the third finger of her left hand today. She showed them before Surrogate John P. O'Brien as the tangible links which tie her to the $75,000,000 estate of the late Abraham Lincoln Erlanger, theatrical magnate who died in March, 1930.

The rings were produced as two of the three "wedding rings" which the deceased bestowed on Charlotte Fixel, the woman who now claims she was his common law wife for the decade before his death.

The stones in the second ring spell out "dearest," volunteered Mrs. Elizabeth Conger of Atlantic City, the last witness of the day. Mrs. Conger had testified of being entertained by Erlanger and "Mrs. Erlanger" in Atlantic City and Manhattan as far back as 1923.

Stones for Letters.

Lawyers and the Surrogate studied the "dearest" ring and the stones. There was a diamond for "D," then an emerald for the "E," an amethyst for the "A," and then, in turn, a ruby, another emerald, a sapphire and a ruby.

The episode of the ring came at the closing minutes of the opening session in a courtroom crowded with spectators anxious to witness a contest between Max D. Steuer, counsel for the claimant, and his traditional rival, Isidor J. Kresel, representing the estate.

Erlanger's brother, former Supreme Court Justice Mitchell Erlanger, and his sisters are seeking to probate an earlier, 1927, will in which the claimant is not mentioned and which the theatrical magnate specifically writes himself down as "unmarried."

Untermeyer in Case.

Kresel was assisted in court today by Samuel Untermeyer, whose violent feuds with Steuer go back to the days when they opposed each other in the W. E. D. Stokes litigation.

Kresel put three witnesses on the stand who told of taking photographs of Erlanger in his Riverside drive home in December, 1927, when the colonel was living there.

Both Eugene T. Hudson, a photographer, and Miss Ermine O. Baker, who arranged for the sitting, declared that Erlanger said at that time to Kresel:

"I want you to meet my wife."

The witnesses identified the claimant as the "wife" referred to by the colonel on that occasion.

Housekeeper on Stand.

As far as the housekeeper, middle aged Jessie Fiella, ever knew, Erlanger and Miss Fixel were certainly man and wife. They breakfasted and dined together, occupied the same sleeping quarters and referred to one another as "Dearest," she said. Erlanger always referred to the claimant as "my wife" or Mrs. Erlanger," as did callers and those who telephoned to her.

At times the witnesses' voice sank and these occasions caused frequent clashes between Steuer and Untermeyer.

"Everybody else in the courtroom can hear the witness. She's doing very well," Steuer broke out irritably at one of Untermeyer's interruptions.

"Mr. Steuer's witnesses always do very well," replied Untermeyer.

WOMAN SUES CHICAGOAN

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A betrothal party at which her alleged fiancé failed to appear was described to a Supreme court jury today by Vera McCord, former actress, as a basis of her breach of promise suit for $250,000 against Maurice Rothschild, elderly Chicago millionaire.

Miss McCord told of numerous meetings and cocktail parties with Rothschild between 1915 and 1923, when she said he passed out of her life. She testified that she met the Chicagoan while starring in a play in Chicago.

Miss McCord on cross-examination said she was "probably between 45 and 55 years old"; that she was married when she was 15 or 16 and was divorced about two years later.

Tells of Many Presents.

She testified Rothschild gave her many valuable presents.

She introduced in evidence a letter dated Oct. 8, 1923, from the Chicago man's daughter, Frances Rothschild, which stated her prospective stepmother was "giving father something to live for."

She related that in June, 1923, Rothschild told her he was going abroad and asked her to "stage a party" at which he wanted to meet all her friends.

The party was held, but Rothschild did not attend and she never saw him again until they met in court last Thursday, she testified. Telegrams, letters, and telephone calls to him remained unanswered, she said.

ATTORNEY ASKS PRISON STAY FOR EMBEZZLER WOLF

Weiss Appeals Against Board of Trade Trial.

Attorney Louis Piquett, counsel for Walter F. Wolf, confessed embezzler of $3,666,929 from the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, went before Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher in Criminal court yesterday with a motion for a stay of the mittimus under which Wolf was scheduled to be sent to Joliet prison to serve 10 to 100 years.

While Judge Fisher did not grant the motion, he assured the lawyer that he would not sign the mittimus before next Monday. At that time, Mr. Piquett indicated, he would be ready to file a motion for a new trial.

Charges Promise Broken.

Wolf and the lawyer contend his sentence was in violation of a promise given him by the bank that, in consideration of his plea of guilty, he would have to serve no more than eighteen months.

Unless the alleged promise is redeemed, Mr. Piquett said, he will file in open court a statement of Wolf's which will "rock the city." In an interview yesterday Wolf reiterated his assertion that lawyers for the bank repeatedly pledged him leniency and declared that he alone had not stolen the $3,666,929. Asked whether he had accomplices, Wolf was about to reply when Attorney Piquett checked him.

Weiss Appeals to Court.

David D. Weiss, the Clark street tailor indicted as an accomplice of Wolf and charged with larceny by bailee, filed a petition in Superior court late yesterday asking that the governors of the Board of Trade be prohibited from continuing his trial before that body for alleged unethical conduct, at least until the criminal charge against him has been disposed of.

The petition, which was drawn by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson as counsel for Weiss, avers that the Board of Trade, in ordering Weiss to trial, was subjected to pressure by the Continental bank.

Declares Purpose Formed.

Weiss alleges it as his belief that the governors of the board have already formed a purpose to expel him from membership as a result of the bank's influence.

Finally, the petition sets forth, Weiss' expulsion from the Board of Trade will prejudice him in the trial of the indictments voted by the grand jury. Weiss reiterates his previous claim that of the $1,000,000 of brokerage transactions he admits handling for Wolf none was in deals of the Board of Trade.

The petition will be heard this morning by Judge Michael McKinley. Weiss' hearing before the governors of the Board of Trade is scheduled for this afternoon.

MEXICO TO PLACE FEDERAL POLICE IN ARMY'S HANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 19.—The Graflo today stated that the police department in the federal district, including that of Mexico City, and all mounted police, guarding the highways of the republic, will be taken over by the war department. These two branches will be welded into one body, with one directing military head, who will act under orders of the war department.

The police department has been frequently charged with inefficiency. The police commissioner and other officers have often been dismissed.

It is reported that the object of the decision is to place the police under military discipline, and to unite means of protection of cities and towns in the federal district.

ALLMAN SHIFTS 71 POLICE FROM DETECTIVE DUTY

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday issued an order transferring two lieutenants, ten sergeants and fifty-nine patrolmen from the detective bureau to station duty. His object, he stated, was to get as many men as possible in uniform and patrolling the streets.

Lieut. Charles G. Essig was sent to the Shakespeare avenue district and Lieut. John T. Cartan to Chicago avenue. The sergeants and the patrolmen were sent to various districts. Commissioner Allman indicated that he had no present intention of replacing the seventy-one vacancies thus created in the personnel of the detective bureau.

Pepsodent announces a notable new discovery

An entirely new cleansing and polishing material has been developed by Pepsodent Laboratories. It is twice as soft as polishing materials in common use. Teeth are given higher polish, brighter luster—FILM stains disappear completely

THE Pepsodent Laboratories announce a new discovery. A revolutionary discovery contained in Pepsodent Toothpaste for more than six months.

Your dentist will tell you Pepsodent's policy has always been to improve constantly—no "fixed formula" to hamper progress. Research laboratories have a habit, in this modern age, of quickly obsoleting prior ideas. As new dental advances have come, Pepsodent has been the first to meet them.

Now once more Pepsodent advances. This time through a notable new discovery that possesses three exclusive virtues:

1. The new cleansing and polishing material in Pepsodent stands unequalled in removing stained, destructive FILM.
2. The new texture is invisibly fine. As a result it imparts a higher polish to enamel—a brilliant glaze or luster.
3. The new material is safe—this is most important of all. Safe because it's soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

Having made this new discovery we faced an equally great problem. How to combine it in our present formula without altering appearance or sacrificing the famous flavor that has made Pepsodent so long preferred by millions. We mastered this. In taste and in looks it is still the Pepsodent you have always known. In results and safety it is new—brand new.

Keeps teeth cleaner—safely

Pepsodent's new cleansing and polishing material brings a change in teeth's appearance within a few days' time. Newly discovered, it is different, totally different, from any now in use.

These facts are interesting: this discovery followed 7 years of research . . . 3 tons of raw materials were used in laboratory tests . . . we held a competition from among the ablest minds in chemistry . . . new equipment had to be invented, then erected . . . the process is a carefully guarded secret.

The idea was simple: to combine super film-removing power with super safety and yet retain the original appearance and taste of Pepsodent. A paradox! A seemingly hopeless task that has been the goal of every toothpaste manufacturer for the last decade. Pepsodent has solved it!

Pepsodent—special FILM-removing toothpaste

Removing FILM is, and always will be, Pepsodent's chief duty. Today's Pepsodent performs that duty better than any toothpaste ever has before.

FILM is that slippery coating on your teeth. It gathers germs that cause decay. It glues them tightly to enamel. FILM absorbs the stains from food and smoking and makes teeth unattractive. Removing FILM is important for beauty and for health.

Get a tube of Pepsodent today. Note how smooth and creamy. It is safe . . . utterly safe . . . on the softest baby teeth and the most delicate enamel. Pepsodent is today's outstanding scientific toothpaste.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

REAL ECONOMY IN NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

Public support is asked for reduction in the costs of government. The administration can be assured that support will be given any program which takes out the fat. It should not be asked for one which ignores the unessentials of national administration or the impertinences of bureaucracy and impairs the strength of the nation and the real purposes of national government.

True economy would serve two desirable ends. It would stop federal government activities in undertakings outside its province. It would make money available for the government's real functions without the exhausting taxation of the country's productive wealth.

Economy to be desirable and supportable will begin with an examination of the federal government's operations. It will subject them to a test of their worth, their purposes and their consistency with the principles of the federal Union. It will determine what is essential and what is extraneous, what is indispensable and what is not only unnecessary but injurious. Unless this is done economy will be only a means of promoting certain sets of ideas to the detriment of others.

The dominant ideas now come from evangelistic pacifism, regional pauperism and communistic ambitions. The under dog ideas in Washington, but not in the country, are for nationalism, regional responsibility and individual competence. It is plain what the administration means when it undertakes the reduction of government costs. Its first revelation is in the navy cuts.

It can't be forgotten that the federal government has subsidized the winemakers of California to the tune of one-third of what it proposes to save in cutting deep into the strength of the fleet. Three times the amount of the navy cuts could have been saved if the federal government had not undertaken to promote real estate in California by furnishing water out of the Colorado river. The present government deficit just about equals the amount of money spent by the government in trying to substitute itself for an economic force in the wheat and cotton markets.

The ideas which have been on top in Washington have so inflated the federal activities that the cardinal obligations of national government cannot be carried with the income available and at the same time federal revenue runs off in a thousand sluices which never should have been opened. It is typical of this that millions are spent in efforts to coerce the citizens of the various states in their personal habits while the federal dictum that beer is an intoxicating beverage deprives the federal treasury of a productive excise tax.

The printing presses of the Washington bureaus reveal government gone loco, issuing instructions to the citizens as to how to cook goulash, how to plant nasturtium seeds and how to take care of baby's first tooth. The department of agriculture is lost in its own weeds. The mails are carried by airplanes, but the government puts its money in concrete state roads on the theory that the mails travel by port chaise and that the army it will not maintain would be marched, in emergencies which the government will not concede possible, by foot to places of concentration.

The federal government takes over state responsibilities in child welfare, sick cows, noxious weeds and private morality. It yields to every excited sentimentality which finds a humanitarian idea and to every cockeyed radicalism which can find a way to make the public money interfere with private enterprise. It goes soft egg in international affairs and has thrown its money into every quarter of the world, finding it true that gratitude is a lively sense of favors to come and that nothing is so bitter as a sturdy debtor resentful of benefits he has received.

When economy takes stock of this inflation of federal government and aims to do the cutting where both the saving of the money and the stopping of the enterprises will be beneficial then whole hearted support should be given the program.

A REMINDER FROM MICHIGAN.

The Berrien county, Michigan, board of supervisors is preparing a 1932 budget nearly $42,000 lower than that of 1931. It is hoped this will permit a lowering of local taxation.

A small matter, sixty thousands, while we are talking in billions of dollars, but as an example worth many billions. If we could take the action of the Berrien county supervisors as a portent, the sky would be brighter. They point the way out of our chief error and weakness, and it is a way we have no choice but to follow unless we propose to destroy our prosperity. Until the American people put their costs into some proper relation to their means there will be no vigor or permanence in our recovery, but a steady decline toward general bankruptcy.

The whole force of politics is resisting this vital readjustment and will go on resisting. It must be overcome by common sense and determination to face and deal with actual conditions. Everywhere public agencies are spending money regardless of whether there is money to spend, piling up debt upon the shoulders of the people, though the burden today is breaking the productive energies of the nation. We have no excuse for deceiving ourselves in the face of the results a similar folly has produced in Europe. Politics will go on clamoring for more. Public opinion should demand reform and it can compel it.

THE INDICTMENT OF BISHOP CANNON.

Bishop James Cannon Jr. and the woman treasurer of the anti-Smith Democratic committee of Virginia have been indicted by the grand jury of the District of Columbia. The charge is violation of the corrupt practices act. The bishop and his aid failed to report the receipt and disbursement of a campaign contribution of $65,300 given through E. C. Jameson of New York to carry Virginia for Hoover.

Bishop Cannon successfully resisted the efforts of the Nye committee of the United States senate to get from him a statement of how this money was used and stood pat when threatened with contempt proceedings. His pretension of superior public morality has this refusal as a strange background, but the public was left to guess what the cleric had done with the campaign money and why he did not voluntarily make a statement of its exact uses without pressing questioning. There was also interest to discover whether because he was a cleric and had done his work to bring the south into the Republican column he had exemptions which nonclerical politicians could not rely upon.

That was one side of the issue. On the other was the Nye committee constituting itself as detective agency, public prosecutor, grand jury, trial court and final authority in elections. It was setting itself up as a new branch of government, combining legislative, judicial and administrative functions upon the pretext that it was either examining the qualifications of its members or investigating for the purposes of legislation. It was wholly unsatisfactory that the only effort to question Bishop Cannon's use of political funds in a presidential election and to combat Anti-Saloon league pretensions to immunity had to be made by a body itself assuming judicial prerogatives, but it is probable that the political clergy would have been untouched by law if the senate committee had not persisted.

The offense charged against Bishop Cannon, of taking money and concealing the use made of it, is three years old. It has been of common knowledge ever since Mr. Jameson testified that he had given the money to the bishop. The records revealed that it had not been reported under the law and the duty of the department of justice in Washington was apparent, but it also was apparent that Bishop Cannon had been instrumental in delivering Virginia to the Republican party. The reluctance to take the only proper legal methods to determine whether he had violated the law made itself conspicuous over a long period.

The contention in his case is that the corrupt practices act does not apply to the transactions on which he has been questioned and concerning which he has refused to give information. On that issue he is entitled to a trial.

Now that the department of justice has brought a prosecutor into action in this dry case involving the election laws it remains to be seen whether it will be aroused to action in cases in which enforcement agents have violated the criminal laws of states by killing citizens. The protected manslaughter which has marked the promotion of the great experiment has been its greatest scandal, and here is another immunity demanding action by federal justice. Thus far it has sought only to quiet the criticism, deprive the states of jurisdiction and bring the offenders off free. The federal government will not be cleared of the stain on its reputation until prohibition crimes against citizens have been taken up for what they really are and until investigation brings punishment for the guilty and an assurance of protection against manslaughter in the future.

INTERSECTIONAL SPORTS.

Yale's visit to the University of Chicago may be regarded by the eastern seaboard as more agreeable and profitable than the visit of the University of California [Los Angeles branch] to Northwestern will be on the west coast, but the score is not the whole thing in the intersectional contests. It may be the least important thing when the momentary enthusiasms have been spent. Interregional sports serve sentimentally to bring widely separated sections of the country together. From east to west and north to south there is a large expanse of territory included in the United States, with diversities of climate, crops and customs which could bring forth several nations if there were preponderant disintegrating influences.

Competition in sports is a highly sentimental contact, but it chiefly affects young people and their view of the national intangibles. Intersectional contests break them out of regional preoccupations and widen their horizons to include the whole country. It is fairly certain that the eastern tidewater colleges have had a broader and better view of the hinterland since teams from the interior proved they could play football. The process may lack the complete essence of reason, but if it works the fact can be recognized.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO'S UNPAID TEACHERS.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

The public school teachers of the great and rich city of Chicago haven't received a cent of cash since April. Those who chose to accept "scrip" have found that banks do not take this stuff, and that most merchants refuse it. The total debt to teachers is now over $17,800,000. We suppose that the situation is unparalleled in the history of American municipalities.

Civic spirit in the midwest metropolis has ousted Mayor Big Bill Thompson. But his successor, Mr. Cermak, has found the legacy of incompetence too serious to be immediately met by the city. The teachers are unpaid because vast amounts of taxes are unpaid. Taxes are held back because of Thompsonesque overassessments.

The mayor has looked to state legislation to straighten out the tax tangle. He has got no encouragement at Springfield, where party politics and jealousy of Chicago have prevented action. The jealousy is precisely the same that keeps the upstate representatives at Albany antagonistic to the City of New York. In time common sense will prevail. But while the deadlock lasts the plight of the Chicago teachers is a very serious matter.

FLORIDA CONTROLS MALARIA.

THE Florida board of health is interesting itself in malaria control, and with results that are satisfactory. Its records show that malaria increases in wet years and decreases in dry ones. A chart of malaria and rainfall shows that the two rise and fall together. The explanation is that in the wet years mosquitoes find many places in which to multiply. The dry years are those in which there are few mosquitoes.

One county stands out above all the rest for its malaria rate, or rather it once stood out. The people became interested. They put in a county health department and they went after mosquitoes. In certain years the malaria death rate of this county was fourteen times that of the state as a whole. By 1930 the malaria rate had fallen to the level of that of the remainder of the state and the hope is that the 1931 record will be much better still. An old resident of this county told the health officer that he can now sit on his piazza in the evening without discomfort from mosquitoes, and this for the first time in fifteen years.

The plan that is being executed consists of control of mosquito breeding, screening the houses, and in treating all who have malaria until they are no longer capable of spreading the disease. The report of the state board of health gives a method of treating malaria used by Sinton in India, but does not say whether it has used it much in Florida. This treatment is begun with one dose of 2 grains of calomel. This is followed by one ounce of salts dissolved in one ounce of warm water. After this has acted the direct malaria treatment begins.

Mixture A: Bicarbonate of soda, 90 grains; citrate of soda, 40 grains; carbonate of calcium, 2 grains; water to make one ounce.

Give one ounce of this. Repeat in an hour. Repeat again three hours after the first dose. One-half hour after the third dose of this A mixture a dose of Q mixture.

Mixture Q: Sulphate of quinine, 10 grains; citric acid, 30 grains; salts, 60 grains. Water to make one ounce.

After that give one dose of A three times a day. Follow each dose one-half hour later with a dose of Q. Continue for one week. Once a day give one-quarter of a grain of plasmochin. That is all.

Relapsing cases are given the above for one week. In the second week two doses each of A and Q are given daily.

Chronic relapsing cases are given the treatment for one week, as above, except that the dose of plasmochin is increased to one-half grain. It is given in two doses after meals. At the end of one week the plasmochin is discontinued, but the A and Q mixtures are kept up for two weeks.

PROBABLY NOT HARMFUL.

Mrs. O. B. J. writes: The water from the town water supply where I live is clear when it comes through the pipes, but it allowed to stand is almost red with rust and has an oily vari-colored surface to it. There is considerable rust settling at the bottom of any water allowed to stand.

1. I want to know if such water is harmful to drink.

2. Also, how often should water be analyzed to determine its purity. I think the water here is tested about once a year, or maybe less often.

REPLY.

1. My guess is that it is not. It is probably rich in some iron, and this goes out of solution as gases evaporate.

2. Once a year is often enough to examine a water for mineral content. It is not often enough to examine it for organic pollution and bacteria.

CHASING THE WARTS AWAY.

M. W. writes: It is a common practice among stockmen to put shoe blacking on warts, which they claim to be a sure cure.

REPLY.

I am prepared to believe that cases have been thus cured. Many are the wart cures with record of success. I have known of cures following the use of stump water, and also some cured by "conjure."

CITIZENSHIP CLASSES.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—[Friend of the People.]—I am interested to know where in Chicago citizenship classes are conducted and also when, so that I may prepare myself for the final examination. P. M.

You should write to C. J. Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools, 400 South State street, Chicago, who is in charge of citizenship classes, for the information you desire. H. L. ROETHE,

CLOSING ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is it a fact that heirs cannot claim their share of an estate after five years have elapsed from the date of probate? 2. Can estate be sold on auction after an agreement has been signed by all concerned to the effect that it is going to be divided equally as was stated in the will, there being no other reason to sell it on auction than to please the lawyers? 3. Can we make the executrix force the lawyers to close this matter? 4. Can we have her replaced? R. D.

1. There is no such general rule.
2. No, on the exact facts that you state. But it seems possible that you may be mistaken as to some of the facts.
3. Yes, after a reasonable time.
4. You should first appeal to the clerk of the Probate court to bring pressure to bear on the executrix to close the estate.

VENTILATION FAN.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—A small restaurant next door to us installed a ventilation fan in the areaway immediately below my bedroom window. They keep this fan going until 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning, making it impossible for us to get any sleep. Please advise what can be done. L. Y.

An officer was detailed to interview the owner of the restaurant complained of and he reports that the ventilating fan was installed upon orders from the health department. He further states that the fan is operated at a minimum, only at times when smoke exists in the restaurant. His reports that from his observation this fan operates reasonably quiet. It is a new fan and in good condition. The owner promised to reduce the noises to a minimum.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MANCHURIA, PERSONALLY CONDUCTED.

Manchuria! When you mention the word there are lots of people who will ask what is a Manchuria. Admitting for the sake of argument that here and there you will find somebody who knows Manchuria is not a new kind of soft drink, but is an animal fed on baled hay and pats de foie gras that can go seven days without a drink [no, that would be a camel] they still are a little hazy on the subject. I feel that I can talk freely about Manchuria because I lived there fifty years once. I was paid only a year's salary in that time, so it must have been one year, but it seemed fifty years.

With the temperature down to fifty and sixty below in winter and up to a hundred in the shade [a good place here for the old wheeze, and there isn't any shade] in summer makes the time seem long in Manchuria. And in summer the air is often filled with great clouds of sand that roll in from the desert of Gobi over on the west. And the sand is so thick that you can't really speak of the air being filled with sand; it is more in order to say that the sand is filled with air, although the sand largely predominates. Also when we were out there the sand was not only full of air but frequently full of small hunks of lead, as the Russians and Japs were quarreling there then and often became quite rough.

Now Manchuria has jumped into the spotlight this year because the Japanese are after it again. They thought, and not without a little reason, you must admit, that having licked the Russians and driven them out they were entitled to take over Manchuria at the end of the Russo-Jap war. They said that was the way all the great Christian nations of the earth did when they won a war and they merely wanted to follow precedent. But all the great powers immediately discovered that Manchuria belonged to China and also that Japan was not a Christian nation. So there was a long and somewhat acrimonious discussion at Portsmouth, and the Jap delegates said all they got out of the peace treaty was their hotel bills at Portsmouth and a kick in the pants. But the Japanese are never downhearted. They accepted a sort of protectorate over Corea, which they very prettily assimilated and made a part of Japan in a few years without any fuss or trouble. The next step, of course, was to take over Manchuria.

Japan needs Manchuria because she wants another place for her people to go to. Japan is as crowded as a Chicago avenue street car on Saturday night and Japan has to look around to find some place for her emigrants to go. The only trouble with finding some place for the Japs to emigrate to is that they won't emigrate. However, the government has hopes and they want Manchuria.

An impression of Manchuria depends on the time of year you are there. If you visit it in summer when kowliange is growing on their level prairies for miles and miles [and miles] you will say Manchuria is just like the middle west, for kowliange looks for all the world like Indian corn, and if you were dropped down suddenly in Manchuria in late summer you would look around and think you had landed in the corn belt of Iowa. Kowliange [don't look it up in the dictionary, it isn't there] is a small grain that is food for both man and beast. Everybody believes all Chinese live on rice. In Manchuria the Chinese never heard of rice; they eat kowliange, which, ground and cooked, is their staple food.

Arriving in Manchuria in winter time you would be sure you were at either the north or south pole because it's so cold. And if you arrive in June you would think you were in tropical Africa. But it must be a good healthy place, for the Chinese there are a big, tall raw bone lot and very different looking from the much smaller and slighter looking Chinese in the south of China. Ching, my secretary, cook and bodyguard, was six feet seven inches tall. Ching was not handsome, as he had a wide livid scar straight across his face and one eye and most of one ear were missing. Ching had been brought up by his father to be a hun-hutsle, that being then and now one of the most profitable careers for an ambitious young man in Manchuria. The hun-hutsles are robbers or, as we say in Chicago, gunmen or bandits, only the trade is really more profitable here than it is in Manchuria. When the Chinese troops catch a hun-hutsle in Manchuria they remove his head at a point just below the ears, which, of course, is disccuraging. However, the hun-hutsles are light hearted lads who think they will never be caught and so they continue doing a little robbery here or a little there, cheerfully content with whatever they can steal, whether it's a bushel of kowliange or an Imperial jade necklace. They are very proficient at their trade and Ching, for example, showed a professional skill that was little short of genius.

Soon after I acquired Ching I journeyed several versts on a winter night to dine with a Russian general who had just received a fine cheese from his family visiting in Switzerland. The general had invited quite a large party to gaze on the great cheese, which looked as big as a wagon wheel, only much thicker. Ching was standing behind my chair helping to wait on the table, and as he understood English quite well when he wanted to, he heard me say: "General, that's the best cheese I ever tasted. I certainly wish it belonged to me."

The next evening as I sat down in my own modest little house in Mukden there was a great cheese on the table. It had been cut and some taken out, but no matter, there was enough for a regiment.

"Ching," I asked, "where got cheese?"

"Find," answered Ching simply.

A day or two later I met the general who had invited me over to taste his cheese.

"Do you know," he said, "that beautiful cheese my family sent me from Switzerland has disappeared. It's very strange, because it was under guard every minute by two Cossacks. I know my Cossacks; I am sure they would not connive at the stealing of that cheese. It had been put back in the box in which it arrived and the Cossacks were thunderstruck when they found they had not been guarding the cheese at all, but only the empty box."

Of course the idea came to me that perhaps Ching knew something about the missing cheese. However, if I told on him he would have been shot and I would no longer have him for cook, and Ching was a good cook, and everybody knows how hard it is to get a good cook. And besides the general would have taken his cheese back. And good cheese was very hard to get in Manchuria in war times. R. H. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 20, 1915.

LONDON.—The situation of the allies in the near east is so critical that the meeting of the war committee yesterday was attended by Alexander Millerand, the French minister of war; Paul Cambon, French ambassador to London, and Minister Millerand's secretary. Nothing was divulged as the result of the conference. Meanwhile, the cabinet situation does not improve. Earl Curzon of Keddelston, lord of the privy seal, it is understood, has decided to leave the cabinet. Horatio Bottomley, in a speech at Newcastle, predicted the immediate collapse of the coalition government.

LONDON.—Italy's declaration of war against Bulgaria, the cutting of the Nish-Saloniki railroad at Vranya by King Ferdinand's men, and the bombardment of Dedeagach by the allied fleet were the outstanding features in the Balkan situation.

NEW YORK.—A New York morning paper will say tomorrow: The Chicago National league baseball team was sold in Cincinnati by Charles P. Taft, who owned nearly all of the stock. The names of the purchasers and the price were not disclosed. John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is said to have put over the deal for Taft and to have been promised 5 per cent of the purchase price for his work.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 20, 1901.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The brigands who abducted Miss Ellen Stone are now inclined to surrender to the Bulgarian government. This information was conveyed to Charlemagne Tower, United States ambassador to Russia, by Dr. Dimitri Stancioff, Bulgarian representative here.

JOLIET, Ill.—The Joliet Driving club has won the distinction of promoting the first automobile racing meet and the first event of this character to be held under the rules of the Automobile Club of America west of Detroit. The prized trophy was won by E. E. Shaw of Chicago, who made a remarkable 40 mile run from Chicago to Joliet against a strong head wind, covering the distance in one hour and thirty-two minutes. Robert Shaw captured the 25 mile track race cup, and Mrs. Charles H. Tucker, after an exciting race and a "Garrison" finish, ran away with the trophy for the mile dash arranged for women.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 20, 1881.

WASHINGTON. — Senator Logan and Gen. Grant are reported to be very active in impressing President Arthur with the desirability of retaining Robert T. Lincoln as secretary of war. It is quite probable that former Senator F. T. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey will be named for secretary of state. Ex-Senator George S. Boutwell probably will be attorney general and former Senator Sargent of California expects to be either secretary of the navy or postmaster general.

YORKTOWN, Va. — President Arthur held a reception in Lafayette hall in connection with the centennial of the battle of Yorktown, with Secretary of State Blaine acting as master of ceremonies and Senator Hawley of Connecticut introducing the visitors to the President. The French and German delegations were in full uniform. Speeches were made by Marquis de Rochambeau and Baron Steuben.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—The great dog fight between the New York English bulldog Pilot, weight 27¾ pounds, owned and backed by "Cockney Charley" for $1,000, and Cribb, a fine white specimen of bull terrier, weight 28 pounds, and owned and backed by Louis Kreger of this city, came off on a farm six miles from town. The fight began at 9:25 a. m. and lasted until 10:50 a. m., when the referee, William Harding, pronounced Cribb dead and Pilot the victor. The fighting was desperate for the first twenty minutes, after which Cribb began to weaken, and from then on Pilot had all the best of the horrible contest.

THE MASSACRE MONUMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—If your editorial, "Placing the Massacre Monument," had been entitled "Placing the Mrs. Helm Monument," then you would have been entirely correct in saying that "the actual spot of the attack was never known"; for the spot of the attack against Mrs. Helm was certainly never known, not even to Mrs. Helm.

While there is the best documentary evidence that the story of Mrs. Helm's heroism and rescue is nothing but fiction, the internal evidence in the story itself is sufficient also to place it in the fiction class. There are several impossibilities in the story. For instance, if the tomahawk landed on the shoulder of Mrs. Helm, as stated in Wau-Bun, it would have produced a serious wound; but Mrs. Helm did not receive the least wound during the Fort Dearborn massacre. ERNEST BRADSHAW.

FAILURE CONFESSED.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The board of education, through the agency of Mr. Savage, has admitted in open meeting that it has failed in its job, that it sees no way out of the dilemma in which it has placed the teachers. Instead of urging the teachers with oratory to back it in its cryptic plans, why doesn't this body of civic spirited gentlemen withdraw and make a new deal possible for the teachers?

Why do these gentlemen cling so tenaciously to this office for which they receive no remuneration and, according to Mr. Savage, plenty of abuse? And why doesn't every unpaid teacher sign a petition humbly requesting the resignation of those who so simply and candidly admit they have failed?

M. E. J.

THE PRINTERS' CONTRIBUTION.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—The employed members of Chicago Typographical union have voluntarily individually contributed since Jan. 1, 1931, 4¼ per cent of their gross income [total earnings] toward relief for its unemployed members, which amount was collected and disbursed weekly. The total is now over $550,000.

Many of those contributing have averaged less than $40 per week for the entire year.

Will any local philanthropist match this contribution on the same percentage? CHARLES BROAD.

THE GANGSTERS' INCOMES.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—In today's TRIBUNE I read: "This, taken in connection with other evidence definitely putting Capone in the gambling business as a source of income . . . of more than half a million dollars in 1924, 1925, and 1926 . . . is the body of the prosecution."

What becomes of THE TRIBUNE'S persistent claim that prohibition was the source of the gangsters' huge income? Isn't it about time for THE TRIBUNE to start a campaign for the repeal of the corrupting and demoralizing anti-gambling laws? Perhaps in your opinion half a million dollars derived from gambling is not so corrupting as half a million dollars derived from liquor law violations. If so, please expound the difference. C. M. JANSKY.

THE NEW GAS RATES.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Various Chicago papers have recently given notice to users of gas, both for house heating and domestic purposes, that a specified reduction in rates would result from using manufactured and natural gas, but please take into consideration that there is an added "service charge."

I have paid dearly for many years for gas heating and never before have had all the cubic feet of our home measured whether I use it or not, including radiation measure whether used or not. I found from request at the house heating department of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company that my "service charge" would be about $17 a month for six months, adding $100 plus to the reduced gas price.

If I close part of my house, which I have done for the last two years and must continue to do, I find that the cost is not for gas alone. The chief of the house heating department cannot give a reason for that service charge except to tell you the gas is more potent. I wonder what sayeth the utility committee to this charge.

DANIEL H. CUNNINGHAM, M. D.

THE LEAGUE AS PEACEMAKER.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 12.—Suppose it does become necessary for the civilized world (excluding the U. S.) to take warlike measures against some outlaw nation of Asia or Europe which disturbs the peace of mankind, won't it be a charming spectacle to see our righteous Uncle Samuel skulking in the shadows of the background? Lapping up juicy profits during and after the carnage will perhaps atone for this lack of charm in the group of "headstrong men" and newspapers who kept us out of "Wilson's league."

The warlike and the wise Taussig knows its bellicose human race (so called) and that the world might precipitate itself into two or three such catastrophes as the great war in a single generation. May we not hope that after a second or at most a third such holocaust a wiser and less warlike Taussig would consent to our entering a council of all the nations different from Wilson's league only in that it wasn't Wilson's?

We may not!

Unless, that is, it and the Lodges, Borahs, and Johnsons of that day received every assurance that it was a good G. O. P. measure and that the Democrats had no hand or part in it. JOHN GAMFORD.

YOU WERE WRONG.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Can any one tell me if there is such an expression as "Rule of thumb method" and its correct meaning? I used this expression in a recent letter to designate adherence to a stringent policy and it caused quite a discussion. H. O. M.

A PREDECESSOR.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—James O'Donnell Bennett and his article concerning Mundelein college stated that it is the first Catholic college for women in the city of Chicago. May I say that St. Xavier College for Women, located at 4928 Cottage Grove avenue, opened its doors to the Catholic women of Chicago in 1917? M. T. TIERNEY.

LAVAL ASKS U. S. GUARANTEE AS PRICE TO DISARM

Wants Hoover to Agree to Economic Blockade.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. ILE DE FRANCE, Oct. 19.—Optimism pervading the French delegation over the complete success of the coming visit of Premier Laval of France with President Hoover strengthens reports that preliminary conversations between the governments, through diplomatic channels, indicate a certainty of full accord in the questions to be discussed.

The French premier himself stated today that unless he had been practically certain of reaching an agreement on the outstanding points he would not have undertaken the trip. He explained his confidence by pointing out that the President is just as interested in obtaining a solution of the problems which are distressing the world as he.

Fears Results of Failure.

Laval makes no effort to conceal his apprehension over the dire developments which he believes would follow a failure of the United States and France to get together. His intimates assert that he realises there is an ever growing distrust and dissatisfaction with the capitalistic system throughout the world. The sinister alternative, he believes, is bolshevism.

The French mission is concentrating almost entirely upon finance and disarmament, and they will seek to have the two linked with security in a common bargain. Laval is worried over America's belief that France is militaristic and an obstacle to a real reduction in armaments and he intends to try to explode that belief by offering deep cuts in the budgets of the army, navy, and aviation if the President is willing to counterbalance this with some sort of security guarantee.

Wants Consultative Pact.

The French realize the constitutional impossibility of the United States pledging itself in advance to declare war and forming military alliances promising support, but Laval believes that effective and satisfactory results can be obtained by agreements between the governments which congress would be asked to ratify if hostilities broke out.

A consultative pact to define the aggressor is about the limit Laval expects of America, but the instrument might be so worded as to imply certain assurances of the attitude of the United States towards a belligerent power deliberately forcing war.

Would Exert Moral Pressure.

Although America might not agree to abandon neutrality, it is believed a formula might be worked out providing that she would not aid the agressor with financial or material means—meaning that she would not lend money or sell munitions, foodstuffs or supplies. Such an assurance from the United States would be a powerful deterrent to any nations harboring warlike projects against France, Laval believes.

As to a prolongation of the moratorium on war debts and reparations, Laval expects to reach an amicable accord with Hoover and he is also willing to pledge a reduction in the war budget of as much as 25 per cent, if other terms are agreed upon.

There is also the question of an international conference to examine the gold and credit questions, and to which the silver question may be joined in seeking a bimetal solution to open eastern markets.

France Wants Gold Agreement.

France, with more than two and one-half billion dollars of gold, intends to seek an ironclad accord with the United States to protect and perpetuate the maintenance of the yellow metal as the standard of values in the world.

With 90 per cent of the earth off the gold standard, it is realised that a powerful, concerted drive to outlaw gold might develop among the nations suffering from a lack of bullion.

While Laval does not share Hoover's belief that armaments are the crux of the world depression, he is willing to coöperate with the President along the lines of his disarmament scheme, as the premier is enough of a politician to comprehend the President's domestic worries and his anxiety over the coming election.

Insists on "Ring of Steel."

Regardless of the progress made in disarmament, however, Laval intends to stand by the execution of the Poincare plan to weld a steel ring around the country, and construction of a vast series of fortifications will be carried out. Laval insists that the fortresses will prove themselves to be defensive adjuncts and not offensive.

An additional two and one-half billion francs [$98,500,000] will be required in the supplementary budget for carrying on work on the fortifications, which is the principal reason that Rene Massigli, French delegate, rejected the Italian proposal for a year's truce in armament building during the arms conference at Geneva.

EDGE EXPRESSES HOPE LAVAL'S VISIT TO U. S. WILL BENEFIT WORLD

PARIS, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Ambassador Walter E. Edge invoked the spirits of Washington and Lafayette as an inspiration for the conversations between President Hoover and Premier Laval in an address today to the military order of foreign wars commemorating the anniversary of the battle of Yorktown.

"Representatives of France are on their way across the Atlantic again," he said, "this time not to help subdue an enemy, but to coöperate again with the United States in the broader interests of all the world's peoples.

"May the unselfish spirit and devotion of Washington, Rochambeau, Lafayette and De Grasse be an inspiration for the statesmen who soon are to discuss problems the equitable solution of which is imperative in order that a sick and disturbed world may resume its march toward progress and peace."

ONE KILLED, FOUR HURT AS AUTO, TRUCK COLLIDE

Youth Dies in Crash After Party.

One man was killed and two women and two men were injured early last evening when a truck and an automobile collided at the Lincoln and Governor's highways, west of Chicago Heights.

OLIVER MESSIA.

Frank Jones, 48 years old, Centerville, Mich., driver of the truck, was the victim who lost his life. The injured are Frank Senesac, 50 years old, 269 South Dearborn street, Kankakee; his wife, Louise, 49 years old; Mrs. Minnie Lewis, 55 years old, who lives with the Senesacs, and E. M. Durand, 60 years old, 1595 Schuyler avenue, Kankakee. They were all in a car driven by Senesac.

At the St. James hospital in Chicago Heights, where the injured were taken, it was said Mrs. Senesac's condition was critical.

Youth Dies in Crash.

A youth, homeward bound from a party in celebration of his own engagement, was killed early yesterday when two automobiles collided at Grand avenue and Wells street. His fiancée and an occupant of the other car were seriously injured.

The man killed was Oliver Messia, 21 years old, 2837 Melvina avenue, a banjo player at the Kit-Kat club. The injured are Miss Renee Bigando, 20 years old, 3101 Nordica avenue, and Edward Peverley, 65 years old, 4457 Lincoln avenue.

Riding in Rumble Seat.

Messia and Miss Bigando were riding in the rumble seat of a coupe driven by Nello Del Cerro, 2841 North 74th court, Elmwood Park. With Del Cerro were Miss Estelle Green of Forest Park and Miss Bernadine Becker, 5524 Haddon avenue. The car in which Peverley was riding was driven by Lawrence Shiffer, 106 Mill street, Joliet.

The Shiffer car, north bound, struck the rear end of Del Cerro's and hurled it against a post. Messia, seeing the crash could not be averted, clutched Miss Bigando and rose in his seat. He was hurled to the pavement, striking on his head, and died a short time later.

Miss Bigando, who also fell out, suffered cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries. The right shoulder of Peverley was fractured. Shiffer was held for the inquest into Messia's death.

Toll Nears Thousand.

These two deaths and three others in Cook county raised the 1931 toll to 997. The other victims:

Mrs. Marie Michaels, 62 years old, 3731 North St. Louis avenue. Fatally injured at Elston and Berteau avenues by an automobile which did not stop. She died at the Belmont hospital.

Henry G. Buchholz, 41 years old, 424 Sunset avenue, La Grange, well known automobile dealer in western suburbs. Died at the Hinsdale sanitarium of injuries suffered last Wednesday when he veered his car off the highway at Rand and State roads, two miles north of Palatine, to avoid a collision.

Mary Daley, 5 years old, 3430 North Albany avenue. Killed by the car of a hit and run driver in Elston avenue at Albany avenue. She was taken to the Ravenswood hospital where she was pronounced dead.

Mildred Lindquist, 16 years old, 877 Cornelia avenue, died at the St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, yesterday from injuries sustained Sunday when the automobile in which she was riding overturned in the ditch on Morrow avenue near 32d street, North Chicago. Lillian Anderson, 17 years old, 807 Newport avenue, who also was a passenger in the car, is in the hospital. The driver, F. E. Thomas, a Great Lakes Naval Training station sailor, was not held when he told police that the lights of an approaching car blinded him.

Three Killed, 4 Injured as Automobiles Collide

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Three are dead as a result of an auto collision north of Peru. The dead are Mrs. Edward Guenther and Miss Alice Peart of Mendota and J. S. Christmann, 73, of Rossville. Four other persons were injured.

CELL FOR DOPE LAW VIOLATOR.

James Keith, 25 years old, of the Metropole hotel, was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth penitentiary yesterday by Federal Judge Lindley for violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act.

WAR DEBTS ROOT OF BRITISH CRISIS, MacDONALD SAYS

Tells Voters He'll Demand Their Revision.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Stabilization of the pound sterling, restoration of the nation's trade balance, and reconsideration of the war debts, the chief points in the national government's policy, were outlined by Prime Minister MacDonald in an election speech in the Scottish Harbor division today.

"Vote for Ramsay MacDonald—a man who sticks to his ship," was the burden of his address.

Speaking of war debts, Mr. MacDonald declared:

"We must come to international agreements regarding the debt payments imposed after the war and which have had such devastating effect upon the trade of the whole world."

Urges a United Stand.

The prime minister declared that the restoring of the nation's trade is essential if Great Britain is to escape bankruptcy. He appealed to the nation to stand together.

"If we do this we shall soon see the end of the temporary crisis," he said.

Mr. MacDonald returned from his week-end holiday this morning and addressed several meetings in various parts of his constituency. He met with very little interruption. At Shotton, a mining center, where he was heckled down last week, he received cheers. In response to queries by the miners as to whether he favored tariffs on imported foodstuffs, the prime minister replied:

"I certainly will not agree to any step which means the lowering of the people's standard of living."

Mr. MacDonald will leave early tomorrow for the Bassetlaw division to speak in behalf of his son, Malcolm.

Hoots Down Premier's Son.

The prime minister's younger son, Malcolm MacDonald, met a hectic reception at a meeting in Tilbury tonight where he attempted to speak in support of Felix Greene, National Labor candidate. Each time MacDonald opened his mouth, the audience pounded desks on the floor or cheered for the Labor candidate, J. R. Oldfield, an Eton graduate. The noisy demonstrations forced the meeting to close. MacDonald and Greene were escorted to their cars by squads of police. Fists were shaken in the face of the prime minister's son as he left the hall. Others cried "Traitor!"

Another disturbance occurred at Sir Oswald Mosley's New party meeting in Glasgow tonight when a crowd of several thousand stormed the hall but were unable to gain admission. Police clashed with the crowd. Eggs and beers were hurled at Sir Oswald, whose voice was drowned out in the din.

He insisted on attempting to address the surging crowd outside from the top of his car, but his appearance was greeted with the singing of the "Red Flag" and shouts of "Let's get hold of him—we'll throw him in the River Clyde." At this point police, fearing bloodshed, fought their way to Sir Oswald's car and advised him to return to his hotel, which he and his bodyguard of boxers and footballers did. Sir Oswald insisted he would repeat his visit to Glasgow's east end tomorrow.

Issue Summons for His Arrest.

Sir Oswald was charged with assault and battery today when two summonses were issued for his arrest by a court in Birmingham as a sequel to last night's stormy political meeting. The summonses were issued on the complaints of Richard Cornwall and Walter Jennings, two of the spectators of an audience of 12,000.

The case against the founder of the new party will probably be tried next Monday, the day before the British election.

The two plaintiffs alleged they were beaten by Sir Oswald's bodyguards during the riot in which Sir Oswald was cut and bruised after being struck by stones and bottles.

Stanley Baldwin, conservative leader, will leave London tomorrow on a speaking tour of north England and Scotland and will not return to London until the election eve.

Betting Favors Government.

Betting on the stock exchange is showing increasing optimism regarding the prospect of victory for the national government. A big jump occurred today in the election "majorities," which rose to over 200 seats in the house of commons—an advance of 30 since last Friday.

Concentration of airplanes to be used by politicians at the Heston airdrome is under the direction of a woman who is aiding the National government and Conservative candidates in the election campaign. All are privately owned. There are at least a dozen pilots of social and political prominence who have volunteered to assist the government candidates in their air campaign.

The airport is in charge of Mrs. R. R. Bentley, who participated in two flights to Africa. She keeps tab on the available machines, assigns the pilots and arranges the schedules.

Temporary fields have sprung up over the country, and frequently as many as a dozen planes leave in one morning to aid the National government's drive for votes.

Leo Russell, son of Lord Ampthill, and Geoffrey Mahoney have been assigned solely to fly Mr. MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, about the country. Among the other pilots are Lord Amherst and Gordon Selfridge Jr.

BRITISH COTTON MILLS REOPEN; ONE AFTER A FOUR YEAR SHUTDOWN

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 19.—Two big cotton mills in Lancashire resumed operations today, one after a shut down of four years and the other after three months. Between them are operated about 200,000 spindles. Another big factory in the Manchester textile district, with the consent of its employés, shifted this morning from a basis of 48 hours of work weekly to 55 hours for the next ten weeks for the purpose of getting out a rush order for export.

The new trade impetus in this industrial section of northern England is directly traceable to the financial "disaster" which the national government failed to prevent.

"Within two days after we were off the gold standard, I booked the largehead that have been idle for a long time."

est order for cotton yarns for shipment to Germany that I had had for years," one of the biggest manufacturers in Manchester said today. "It was a clear case of cause and effect. The mills are just beginning to feel the effect and soon the benefit will reach the owners of ships in the Manchester canal, Liverpool and Birkenhead.

Another cause of the improvement is the Chinese boycott on Japanese cotton goods. Lancashire is just beginning to feel the commercial benefits of that situation in the far east.

YOUTH JAILED FOR RUM GIFTS TO SCHOOLGIRLS

Pupils Tell of Flat Full of Liquor.

Charged with furnishing intoxicants to Hyde Park High school girls, James McNulty, 21 years old, 6317 Blackstone avenue, was sentenced to sixty days in the House of Correction by Judge Joseph Graber in the South State street court yesterday.

The high school authorities reported to the police that parents of two girls complained that they came home apparently under the influence of liquor. Later the parents of Ruth Hughes, 15 years old, 4121 Lake Park avenue, and Mildred Bryan, 17 years old, 6322 Blackstone avenue, swore to complaints asserting that McNulty was contributing to their delinquency.

Girls Tell of Liquor.

Ruth, called to the stand, testified that on several occasions she and other girls from the school had dropped into McNulty's apartment to smoke cigarets and chat. Drinks were always available, she added, but otherwise the parties were innocent.

Mildred corroborated her testimony, and added that McNulty "always had an icebox full of liquor and was free with it."

Police Confirm Stories.

Policemen who went to the flat to arrest McNulty stated that they found the supplies and that Mildred had not exaggerated. Before the raid was made a search warrant had been obtained.

A charge of violating the Illinois prohibition law also was placed against the defendant, but this was continued until Nov. 12.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley issued an order yesterday that "Big Joe" Moran, bank robber, be brought back on Oct. 28 from his cell in the Stateville penitentiary for a hearing on his writ of habeas corpus. Moran was convicted by a Criminal court jury in 1918. The petition for the writ sets forth that there is nothing in the court records to show that the trial judge sentenced Moran, who is serving from one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

HELD FOR BANK ROBBERY.

Samuel De Stefano, 21 years old, 1025 South Winchester avenue, who has been identified as one of the bandits who robbed the Halsted Exchange National bank of $16,310 on Oct. 10, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $30,000 by Municipal Judge Samuel Trude yesterday.

Pebeco costs more to make than any other dentifrice. The expensive ingredient which comprises 40% of every tube results in an unusual type of tooth paste.

But if you let "the crowd" choose your personal dentifrice you will probably never try Pebeco. It is obviously not for the masses. It does not appeal to them—they like things more of the usual type, things that befit the mass mind.

But if you do a little independent thinking, you will realize that Pebeco's unusual taste and its "bitey" tang are sure signs of its different purpose and its different result.

Then you will try Pebeco and learn for yourself that its reputation is founded not upon advertising claims, not upon meaningless candy-like flavors, but on the way it keeps your teeth clean and white, and the way it brings your mouth cool, refreshed comfort.

Just think about this today —and give Pebeco a trial.

TWO ALKY RINGS FIGHT TO QUENCH FINLAND'S THIRST

Estonian, Danzig Fleets Vie for Business.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 19.—For the first time in the history of Finland's 13 years under the prohibition law, gang war has developed between two smuggling "trusts," which are fighting for the monopoly of providing Finland with liquor. With the opening of the smuggling season this month, when the long nights decrease the possibility of cargoes falling into the hands of Finnish coast guards, the fight between the syndicates became intensified.

While the only fatalities to date followed the mysterious explosions of three motor boats, which cost nine lives, open conflict is expected between the crews of 12 alcohol ships, stationed at various points in the Finnish gulf from spring until the freeze up in January.

Low Grade Alky Sold.

Estonian smugglers claim that the "Danzig trust" is selling low grade spirits in cannisters, bearing a fake Estonian trade mark, which they are obtaining from Danzig. This group is said to consist of 60 smugglers. All have deposited a $500 forfeit not to purchase Estonian alcohol. At present they are purchasing alcohol from German, Polish, and Czecho-Slovakia distilleries in the Free State of Danzig for five cents a liter (1.0567 quarts), and retailing it at 10 cents off the Finnish coast, a price which Estonians find it difficult to meet.

Arnold Erik, organizer of alcohol export activities of the Estonian Egg company, named "Ovo," has stated that his firm delivers Estonian alcohol in 10 liter cannisters for the convenience of Finnish bootleggers for 10 cents a liter, and that the Tallinn smugglers are retailing it for 15 cents a liter in the Finnish gulf.

Because the supply of Estonian alcohol sometimes runs low, Erik claims the Estonian trust made an agreement with Hungarian distillers who maintain supplies in Danzig of cheap Hungarian spirits to furnish some alcohol for the Estonians.

During the present year the Ovo company, according to Erik, sold upwards of two million liters of alcohol to smugglers, and with smuggling on the increase he hopes to dispose of another million liters.

Rival Gangs at War.

Erik denounces an exposure in the Estonian press, alleging government complicity in alcohol smuggling, as a deeply laid plot, hatched by the "Danzig trust" which aims to put the "Tallinn trust" out of business by forcing Finland to take diplomatic steps against Estonia's alcohol exports.

"Estonia is fighting for the right to sell and export alcohol like Danzig, which made huge profits during the six years Estonia stopped her export of alcohol," he said.

Erik claims that Estonia has the right to use every article of export possible, and alcohol is the first standard article in general use.

"We also don't see why we should take over the duties of the Finnish police and fight smuggling," he continued. "Compared to American rum runners our smugglers are very delicate, fighting with bribes and lawyers instead of machine guns. Large bribes are also being paid to the Finnish police and coast guards. So long as Finland keeps her prohibition law she will annually consume fixed quantities of alcohol, and if Estonia did not supply it somebody else would."

Newspapers Attack Minister.

Like Jaan Hunnerson, Estonia's minister of the interior, Erick claims the newspapers have been bribed to attack Estonia's alcohol exports. The largest Estonian dailies have already dared Hunnerson to repeat his charges outside parliament, where he is exempt from prosecution, by calling him a slanderer. They also point out that Finland is Estonia's best friend, and charge that for the sake of retaining small profits on its alcohol exports, the present government is endangering this friendship.

H. M. BLACKMER OIL FINE CASE REOPENED IN THE SUPREME COURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The case of Harry M. Blackmer, the self-exiled oil millionaire, was reopened today when the Supreme court of the United States decided to review decisions of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, under which Blackmer was fined $60,000 for refusing to come to this country from France and testify in the Sinclair-Fall criminal trials.

H. M. BLACKMER.

The Supreme court's action was purely formal. Alang with other court orders, it handed down one granting a petition for writs of certiorari in the two cases in which Blackmer was found guilty of contempt under the so-called Walsh law.

This law, passed by congress to apply directly to Blackmer and the late James E. O'Neil, allows seizure of recalcitrant witnesses outside the borders of the United States, after they have been served with subpoenas by government officers, usually consuls.

In Blackmer's case the federal marshal for the District of Columbia seized Liberty bonds worth $100,000 belonging to the oil man, and out of these the fines of $30,000 in two separate cases and costs of court proceedings will be taken if the Supreme court upholds the Court of Appeals.

Reopening the Blackmer case means a constitutional test of the Walsh law, for it was upon this question of constitutionality that Blackmer's counsel, headed by George Gordon Battle, founded their petitions. Mr. Battle contended the Walsh act violates the fourth and fifth amendments.

Blackmer was one of the moving spirits in the formation of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., the Canadian concern, out of whose profits the government alleged, a bribe was given to Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, for granting the Teapot Dome lease to Harry F. Sinclair.

FLOOD RELIEF SUIT PUT UP TO ATTY. GENERAL

Judge Tells His Stand on Donor's Petition.

Judge Robert E. Gentzel of the Superior court told counsel yesterday that Attorney General Carlstrom should bring legal action to compel an accounting of the $139,000 Mississippi valley flood relief fund collected under the last Republican city administration.

He did so in connection with an advance indication that he would sustain a demurrer to a suit for accounting filed in the name of a donor to the fund of 1927, Charles Smith, who has asked that the balance of the fund, estimated at $103,000, be turned over to the American Red Cross or some similar organization.

"Up to Attorney General."

Without putting his ruling into the final effect of an order, Judge Gentzel said from the bench that a single donor to a charity fund of this character had no standing in court.

"If the allegations of this bill are true," said Judge Gentzel, "the attorney general of Illinois is the law enforcement officer who should institute proceedings asking for the removal of the trustees of this fund on grounds of malfeasance in office."

The judge granted five days to the petitioner's counsel, Frederick O. Mason, in which to file citations of authority sustaining the right of a single contributor to a relief collection to demand an accounting, but he left no doubt in the minds of his auditors as to what his ruling on the demurrer would be next Monday.

Represents Old Regime.

The former city administration was represented by E. C. Higgins, former assistant corporation counsel, who presented the entire argument for the defense, and by John G. Drennan and James W. Breen, both former members of the city law department, who joined in whispered conferences at the counsel table. But Attorney Breen was present, he said, as a defendant, because he was named as one of the incorporators of the Flood Control and Waterway Association of the Mississippi Valley to which the $103,000 was turned over just before George K. Schmidt resigned as city controller early this year.

At the conclusion of the proceedings it was found that Attorney General Carlstrom's office was represented by Attorney Alvin Landis. Gibson E. Gorman, assistant corporation counsel, who represented Mayor Cermak in an effort to have the $103,000 unexpended balance turned over to the state commission for the relief of unemployment, also was in court.

WOUNDS AUTO DEALER; TRIES TO SHOOT WIFE

Leon Griges, 3505 Euclid avenue, Berwyn, yesterday shot Charles F. Raming, an automobile dealer, three times in Raming's salesroom at 6729 Ogden avenue, in the suburb. Griges then hurried to Raming's home and attempted to shoot Mrs. Raming.

He pulled the trigger four times, but his weapon failed to fire, whereupon he struck Mrs. Raming over the head with the gun. He was captured by police as he fled from the home, at 2823 Clarence avenue, Berwyn.

The shooting resulted from a quarrel over money, Griges told police that he had invested $800 in Raming's business, and charged that he had been defrauded.

Raming will recover, it was said at the Berwyn hospital.

Husband and Wife Killed by Gas Fumes in Home

Adolph Meister, 54 years old, a cooper, and his wife, Gertrude, 49 years old, were found dead in their home at 3958 West 16th street yesterday from gas fumes. The police said they believed the deaths were accidental.

472 Jobs Filled in Week by Employment Office

The Illinois free employment offices in Chicago filled 472 positions during the week ended Oct. 17, according to figures made public yesterday by John Keane, general superintendent. Applications for jobs totaled 2,011. During the previous week the ratio 699 jobs were filled and there were 3,755 applications. In the corresponding week in 1930 there were 661 jobs filled and 2,069 applications. Of the total hired during the week 163 were men and 309 were women.

EMBEZZLEMENT CASE DISMISSED.

Indict 28 Bank Directors, State Official in New York

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Joseph A. Broderick, state superintendent of banks, and twenty-eight officers and directors of the defunct Bank of United States, were indicted today by the grand jury investigating the bank's affairs on misdemeanor charges arising from the closing of the bank. Mr. Broderick pleaded not guilty and was held in $2,500 bail.

Four indictments, three for neglect of duty and the fourth for conspiracy, were found against Mr. Broderick.

A blanket indictment against the twenty-eight officers and directors charged fraudulent participation in the failure of the bank.

Included in the conspiracy indictment against Mr. Broderick were Bernard K. Marcus, president of the bank; Saul Singer, executive vice president; Isidor J. Kresser, counsel and director of the bank; C. Stanley Mitchell, chairman of the board, and Simon H. Kugel, vice chairman. The last five were mentioned also in the blanket indictment.

Two Recently Convicted.

Mr. Marcus and Mr. Singer are now out on bail pending trial of an appeal from their recent conviction in the 160 million dollar failure. Mr. Kresser is awaiting trial on a previous indictment as well as on a charge of perjury growing out of his testimony in the prosecution of Mr. Marcus and Mr. Singer.

The directors named in the blanket indictment included Frank Hedley, president and general manager of the Doterborough Rapid Transit company; Herman A. Metz, Arthur W. Little, and Edward B. Lewis, all of whom were witnesses for the state in the trial and conviction of Mr. Marcus, Mr. Singer and his son, Herbert Singer.

Among other directors mentioned in the blanket indictment were G. C. Van Tuyl Jr. and Henry W. Pollock.

Granted Charter to Banks.

Mr. Van Tuyl is a former state superintendent of banks. In that capacity he granted the charter of the Bank of United States, a name which, according to the state, was designed to deceive depositors into the belief that the bank was a federal institution with all the government backing that this implies.

Mr. Pollock was tried together recently with Mr. Marcus and the two Singers, but escaped conviction when the jury disagreed in his case.

A superseding indictment charging a felony, was filed by the grand jury against Mr. Marcus, Mr. Pollock, Mr. Kressel and the two Singers. The new indictment supersedes an earlier one based on the $8,000,000 transaction of Jan. 13, 1930, which formed the basis of the conviction of Mr. Marcus and the two Singers. This was the transaction whereby the bank paid to itself with its own money a debt of $8,000,000 owing it from two of its subsidiaries.

"I had a Chrysler, model 77, 1930 sport coupe. I saw the selling of this car as the only means by which I could raise the amount needed, and it was of particular importance that I obtain the highest price possible. Phelps of Yale Calls British Better Authors

Talk to Women Here Arouses Interest.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

WHEN William Lyon Phelps lectured here on Saturday morning he brought to Chicagoans the most popular literary figure of the east. Dr. Phelps is better known to almost ten generations of Yale undergraduates as "Billy Phelps." If that "ten generations" seems too long a time for credence, remember that a college generation is only four years. Dr. Phelps has been a teacher at Yale for thirty-nine years.

WILLIAM L. PHELPS.

He has been a foster parent to many of the outstanding literary men of the age. He said that at the same time as his class he had Philip Barry, one of the most prominent of the young American playwrights; Stephen Vincent Benet, who wrote in "John Brown's Body" a genuine epic poem of his native land, and Thornton Wilder, who is not only an American novelist of distinction, but internationally recognized as a genius. Dr. Phelps is well known as a critic as well as a teacher.

In his lectures Dr. Phelps combines his two successful vocations. He treats his audiences as if they were members of a class in English literature and he gives them his critical reactions as if they were readers of his columns. And the audiences love it.

He discussed a few of the newest books among them Clara Clemens' life of her father, "Mark Twain." Most people are afraid to die nowadays, he said, for fear somebody will write a biography about them since Lytton Strachey introduced irony into lifewriting as written in English. He advised his audience first to read a man's diary, if they wanted to know the truth about the man. If a diary didn't offer a collection of his letters was the next best indication of him. And if either was to be had, a biography written by a member of his family was most likely nowadays to tell the truth about him. It would take either another great humorist or some one who knew how deeply lovable Mark Twain was to do justice to him, Dr. Phelps said, and since there wasn't a humorist great enough to do the job, then Clemens' volume was as near to real Mark Twain as another person could present. Mark Twain wrote an autobiography, you remember, and his letters also were published, so that this about the life and thoughts of our foremost humorist are not lacking.

The letters of Bernard Shaw and Ellen Terry—the love letters of a love which Dr. Phelps termed a "wireless in which there was no contact"—contained information hitherto unknown and extremely significant fact, he declared. In one place Shaw tells of taking a walk with his father, who acted so queerly that when he returned home he said to his mother, "I think my father is drunk today." To that his mother replied, "Drunk today? When was he NOT drunk?" Shaw told the incident in reply to Ellen Terry's calling him a teetotaler.

Dr. Phelps, however, did make one statement which will cause much postmortem conjecturing. He said English literature, as produced in England, is on a whole much finer than English literature produced in America.

He said that was due to the constant creation of a writer associating with other writers in a country the exact size of the state of Michigan. G. K. Chesterton once said England is so crowded with writers that he can hear H. G. Wells changing his mind. But nowhere in the world was there such a group of women novelists as there are in the United States, Dr. Phelps declared. And then he chose the best for his audience. That claim will be discussed at length, disagreed or agreed with violently. I should say. He named "Edith Wharton, Edna Ferber, Anne Douglas Sedgwick, Dorothy Canfield, Zona Gale, and another one, I seem to have forgotten her name." That other one, whose name was supplied to him from the audience, was Willa Cather, the supreme artist of the six! What do you think of that list? Tell me, I'd really like to know.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"Alexander Hamilton," adapted from the play by George Arliss and Mary Hamlin, which appeared on Broadway in 1917, would have been a heap better picture if the hero had not been so persistently tinsoddened and if Thomas Jefferson had been vouchsafed an honest break.

The suave, sardonic, patriotic, feudalistic, legal-minded Hamilton, who, with reason, possessed the confidence of Washington, is a compelling historical figure, but what about the flaming democrat, Thomas Jefferson? In this movie Hamilton's exploits shine with purest ray serene, while Jefferson becomes little more than a talking lay figure on which to drape the former's sly humor, and verbal barrages, shrewd and noble. And Mr. Hamilton's speeches are made, one must report, directly at the camera.

Great is Arliss! But I have discovered that he is much greater at some times than at others. "Alexander Hamilton" is a very little brother to "Disraeli."

It is said that the star personally supervised each detail of this production, choosing cast and director. The story is based on an actual episode in the life of the American statesman and economist who was secretary of the treasury under Washington.

Hamilton, while a most devoted husband and father, had an eye for a trim ankle and a come-hither smile. His occasional lapses from marital fidelity were no secret and, in 1791, his intrigue with a Mrs. Reynolds brought on its trail blackmail by her rogue of a husband. Hamilton's dealings with Reynolds were misrepresented by the former's political opponents. Had he not dared, in order to save his Assumption bill, and that his handling of the treasury funds might not be impugned, to come out with the true story of the affair, his brilliant career might have ended in ignominy. As it was, the man's courage gave the people and his President added confidence in him, and the matter reacted disastrously on the men behind the cabal. James Monroe was one of those whose reputation suffered.

Mr. Arliss plays the aristocratic, barbed-tongued, lightning-thinking Hamilton in smooth, quietly effective fashion. Even when spouting he is superior to most spouters. Montague Love does his best with the written down rôle of Jefferson. Morgan Wallace plays Monroe with no particular distinction. The most honest characterization is Dudley Digges' portrayal of Senator Timothy Roberts, who wanted HIS and little cared how he got it.

You will find Doris Kenyon beautiful enough as Mrs. Hamilton to keep any husband's eyes from wandering. June Collyer portrays the seductress expertly. Alan Mowbray is briefly and aptly present as Washington.

Direction is intelligent and staging and costumes are pleasing. Only DID they use chain locks on doors in the 1700's?

The action moves at graceful tempo and Mr. Arliss is a pretty sight in his tight panties and lace frills. In his outer garments he makes you think of a mischievous grandmamma.

"DIE DREI von der TANKSTELLE."

[The Three of the Filling Station.]
Produced by UFA.
Directed by William Thiele.
Presented at the Cinema Theater.

THE CAST.

Willy ..... Willy Fritsch
Kurt ..... Oskar Karlweis
Hans ..... Heinz Ruehmann
Consul Cossmann ..... Fritz Kampers
Lilian Cossman ..... Lillian Harvey
Edith von Turkoff ..... Olga Tschechowa
Dr. Kalmus ..... Kurt Gerron
His secretary ..... Gertrude Wolle
A ballif ..... Felix Bressart

Ich bin sehr froh das ich kann recommend "Die Drei von der Tankstelle"! As musical comedies go es ist ein Kunstwerk!

I think it möglich that the theme song of this opus will be as popular as has been "Zwei Hertzen in ¾ Takt." Ganz schön! And how Willy Fritsch does put it over!

The German Maurice Chevalier, this Willy Fritsch! Winning personality! Able actor! And, unter uns, he sings, I am sure, as well as some of the angels.

This picture's distinguishing features are its smoothness and exuberance. The story unreels swiftly, surprisingly, and the musical numbers melt melodiously, harmoniously and unostentatiously into action. A beautiful job of direction.

The narrative ist kein slouch either! It concerns the fortunes of three young men who return from a motor tour to discover that the sheriff has attached their belongings and that there's no bank balance left. Was zu thun?

Well, die Jünglings do not give way to kummer. Nein. They sell sein automobil and start operating a highway service station. Attracted by their youth and verve [I know French, too] pretty Lillian Cossmann becomes a constant Kunde. Each of die Knaben believes she nur liebs ihn, but nur ein ist recht. Ja, Willy is der chosen one.

With the aid of a certain lovely lady in whom Lillian's Vater is interested, the zwei discarded suitors are made resigned to their fate. But when Willy discovers how his beloved has been coquetting with his pals, he ist sehr böse, and tells both the flirt and her Vater was he denks of her.

"O pfui!" sagt er, and gangen forever. Or so he believes. . . . And so on and on and on.

This production is acted zu den neuns by an A1 cast and has an engaging and "different" Ende.

Take die Kinder mit, this woche when you visit the Cinema. The feature will tickle them and there's an animal "short" das wilt freut alles.

FIRST RUN TALKIES LOSE ON BROADWAY, FOX CORP. ARGUES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The Fox Film corporation has found exhibiting first run pictures along New York's Broadway generally to be a losing venture.

It told the United States board of tax appeals today that $96,919 was lost on its first Broadway showing of "What Price Glory?"

The corporation petitioned for a redetermination of $154,564 deficiency in income tax for 1928, assessed by the bureau of internal revenue. It reported net income of $4,125,647 for that year.

Bureau investigators increased the amount to $4,596,666, disallowing a reduction of $437,682 credit issued the Fox theaters for securing to the corporation the right to exhibit its new pictures at Roxy's theater.

The Question of Entries.

There is nothing quite so important in the play of the hand as the question of entries, a question often decided in the play to the original lead. Our hand yesterday was a beautiful example. Yesterday's problem hand was:

NORTH
♠—6, 3
♥—Q, J
♦—8, 7, 4

WEST
♠—9, 4
♥—10, 8, 7, 6, 3
♦—K, J, 9, 5
♣—6, 3

EAST
♠—Q, J, 10, 8
♥—9, 4, 2
♦—10, 2
♣—Q, 8, 5, 4

SOUTH.
♠—A, K, 7, 5, 3
♥—A, K, 5
♦—A, Q, 6, 3
♣—K

South opened the bidding with two spades. He held 5½ high card tricks (the singleton king not counting) and two low card tricks, making 7½ tricks in all—more than enough strength, since the minimum requirement for an original suit bid of two (Game Invitation) under the new official system is 7 tricks, at least 3 of which must be high card tricks. (Holding 7½ high card tricks, only 6½ are needed.)

West passed, and North, of course, took out with a bid of three clubs. (He knew his partner would rebid if he, North, did anything else but pass, since the new official system demands that the original declarer rebid if his partner responds to the original declaration.) South immediately saw that the final bid of the partnership probably would be no-trumps, but, due to his excessive strength and the remote possibility of a slam, bid three diamonds to see what further information he could obtain from North. West again passing, North rebid his clubs. After East's pass South went into no-trumps with a bid of four, which ended the bidding.

West led the 6 of hearts, the jack went from the dummy, the 2 spot from East, and South played the king. For South foresaw that without the club suit in dummy he could count on only two tricks in spades, two in hearts, one trick in diamonds, and one trick in clubs. In order to take his ten tricks, then, it would be necessary to make at least five tricks in the club suit in addition to the five sure tricks in his own hand. To do this he had to have an entry, and the only possible entry outside of the club suit itself was the queen of hearts. If he had put his 5 of hearts on the good jack instead of taking with the king, that entry would be blocked.

South then led the king of clubs and overtook it with his ace. He then led the jack of clubs and continued the clubs until East played the queen. East returned the 9 of hearts and South allowed the dummy queen to take, playing the 5 spot from his own hand. He then ran the rest of his club tricks and, after the lead of the last good club from dummy, took the diamond finesse, which lost to West. Regardless of West's return, South now takes in his ace of diamonds, his ace of hearts, and his ace and king of spades, making five odd.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

Chicago Opens Another Season of Shakespeare

"Merchant of Venice" Is Well Presented.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Those faithful disciples of Shakespeare gathered at the Majestic theater last night again to hear the lines of "The Merchant of Venice" spoken across the footlights.

Ten, twenty, thirty years ago a first night of the Shakespeare season would have filled the theater. Last night that was not so. Perhaps many of the old guard were first-nighting elsewhere. Be that as it may, the smaller assembly took keen pleasure in the tragi-comedy that always is a favorite with those who never grow tired of a Shylock or a Portia, or the foolish pair of Gobbos, father and son.

For the third season Fritz Leiber spoke the lines of Shylock. Three years ago Leiber was the motivating power in the newly formed Chicago Civic Shakespeare society. He then began the tedious task of reviving Shakespeare's plays in Chicago. If popularity be measured in strength of applause, Fritz Leiber should have felt himself rewarded last night.

Helen Menken was a star in her own right.

She was greeted happily as Portia. More than one spectator remarked that there was something about Helen Menken recalling Mrs. Fiske, her hands, or was it the deep way of speaking?

Portia did not enter the court of justice in Venice in a scarlet robe thereby giving tradition a jolt. She fared forth, the small fragile Helen, as a manly Portia with a long stride, wearing the robe of black. But as the robe blew back, however, there was a glimpse of red lining.

Whitford Kane as Launcelot Gobbo, the clownish servant to Shylock, and Frank Peters as old Gobbo, his father, did well enough to steal more than one round of applause and laughter. Others give an entirely satisfactory performance.

Tyrone Power as the Duke of Venice and William Faversham as Antonio were warmly received.

"The Merchant of Venice" will continue through the week. Next week "Julius Caesar" will be presented and the final week of the engagement beginning Nov. 2, will be "Hamlet."

The Chicago Civic Shakespeare society was founded and is sponsored by Harley L. Clark. Before opening here the cast presented preliminary engagements at Fort Wayne, Cleveland, and Detroit.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

MISS BARRYMORE'S revival of that mellow and witty showpiece of Georgian comedy, "The School for Scandal," which came to the Grand Opera house last night, is emphatically in the imperial manner, so far as its staging is concerned. "Such costumes, egad!" said I to myself, in the style of my ancestors, as the parade of opulence marched slowly by my fascinated gaze. "This must be the court of Louis le Grand on some ceremonial occasion, such as the festivities in honor of the Dauphin's baptism!"

The ladies were dressed like crown princesses, and the gentlemen—even plain old Sir Peter and Sir Oliver—were festooned and beribboned like dukes of the blood royal at a coronation. That sly and retiring fellow, Joseph Surface, wore the customary black of a true hypocrite at his first appearance, but in a style that the prince of Wales might have envied, and his seduction suit for the screen scene was an eyeful of amorous lavender. So far as its spangles are concerned, this is a classic revival that will cause Flo Ziegfeld to suspect that he has been neglecting the opportunities offered by the masterpieces of English dramatic literature.

Miss Barrymore floated into the backbiting party at Lady Sneerwell's in the first act as an apparition in white satin, mystic and almost supernaturally glamorous. In the second act, for the marital quarrels in the Teazle family, she was a vivid picture in cherry and blue. When she called upon Joseph, in the third act, for a glance at his books and perhaps a slight conjugal misstep in order to be in the fashion, her color scheme was black and gold, and her Gainsborough chapeau was a flaunting triumph in the manner of Joseph Urban.

I dwell upon the visual aspects of the performance in order to emphasize the fact that this is no casual revival placing its faith entirely upon the fame of Richard Brinsley Sheridan and the reputation of a First Actress. It is a bravura production in which the scene designers, dressmakers, costume inventors and upholsterers have been given carte blanche. It is a brave and shining extravagance of the "legitimate" stage which seems to say:

"Come now, the cinema palaces are not the only places in which an audience may be regaled with splendor. The much neglected classic drama is also capable of lordly magnificence."

Miss Barrymore's Lady Teazle is dazzling as a picture and somewhat reserved as a characterization. She plays the gay young country wife aping the fluttering manners of the world of Georgian fashion in a way that suggests Masterlinck oftener than it expresses the high, garrulous spirit of Sheridan's dialogue. This is a dreamy Lady Teazle who uses the light voice of a sentimental ingenue. A Lady Teazle who refuses to bounce, and prefers to float through the play in a contemplative and ethereal mood.

This treatment of the character leads adroitly up to the immortal scene and permits Miss Barrymore to strike the play's one emotional note in a decidedly effective way. I have laughed with many a Lady Teazle, but not with Miss Barrymore's. On the other hand, I have never felt a touch of emotion with any Lady Teazle—until Miss Barrymore revealed herself with the downfall of Joseph Surface's bachelor screen.

McKay Morris as the Joseph, Walter Gilbert as the Charles, and Charles H. Croker-King as Sir Peter are other principal members of a well chosen cast. Mr. Morris' cunning schemer is a decidedly handsome and persuasive figure in the comedy's intrigue.

Odd Fellows to Meet.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Illinois Odd Fellows and Rebekahs headed toward Springfield today for the annual convention that will bring 3,000 of them together tomorrow.

CONTRACT REPRINTS

Charles True Adams began his series on Official Contract last Sunday. Some early editions of THE TRIBUNE of that date did not contain the article. The first article will be published next Sunday in those editions from which it was omitted last Sunday.

Wrigley Gives $100,000 for City's Jobless

$2,500,000 Raised to Date Here.

A contribution of $100,000 by William Wrigley last night raised the joint emergency relief fund to $2,513,505. Announcement of the gift was made by Robert M. Hutchins, chairman of the special gifts division of the committee that is seeking to raise $8,800,000 for the relief of Chicago's unemployed this winter.

That the relief fund will go far past the $2,000,000 mark today was predicted by those in charge of the campaign. Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the division on trades, industries and professions, expects a large amount of money in subscriptions to be reported by the fifty-seven group chairmen at a meeting at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Union League club.

The campaign was speeded up yesterday, with hundreds of workers scouring the city for contributions. The women's division was organized at a meeting presided over by Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy.

Honor roll posters proclaiming "We Gave" were received at the campaign headquarters in the Otis building. The posters will be distributed to stores and other business establishments which have contributed to the $8,800,000 fund through the trades, industries and professions division. The first business house to display the window poster was Halsey, Stuart & Co., which gave $100,000 to the fund in behalf of the company and its employes two weeks ago.

The forty Kiwanis clubs of Cook county will stage a rally in the Hotel Sherman on Thursday for the purpose of pledging their united support to the relief fund. More than 1,000 Kiwanians are expected to attend. Speakers will be Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the fund, Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the campaign, and Mr. Dewey.

A number of workers are concentrating upon the wealthy citizens of Chicago in an effort to induce them to join Julius Rosenwald, who gave $250,000 on condition that five other persons give the same amount. If the additional five contributions are provided, a total of $1,500,000 would be given by six individuals, or nearly one-sixth of the $8,800,000 sought.

Samuel Insull Jr. was appointed chairman of a special committee to aid Episcopal church charities by Bishop George Craig Stuart at a meeting attended by prominent Episcopal laymen at the Cathedral Shelter yesterday afternoon. Among those present were Britton I. Budd, John M. Cameron, Angus S. Hibbard, Eames MacVeagh, John V. Norcross, and William F. Pelham.

In accepting the appointment Mr. Insull pointed out that the formation of special committees by the churches and charitable organizations was in accordance with the policy of the joint relief committee which has urged private organizations to work for the relief of the poor through their own organizations and also through the joint relief fund.

Draft Horses Vie at County Fair in Chicago Stadium

Draft teams owned by Chicago transfer companies were exhibited in pulling contests yesterday afternoon and last night at the Cook County fair in the Stadium as a program feature judged by Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America.

Teams owned by the Willett, Chicago Cartage, Dixon, and Walter Barger companies pulled, for a given distance, loads equivalent to starting 10 tons on a granite block pavement, with the Willett entry slightly better at pulling than the others, according to Dinsmore. A similar demonstration is scheduled for other teams this afternoon and evening, with the finals Wednesday evening.

"Miss Cook County" is to be selected next Sunday night, it was announced yesterday. Any single girl in the county is eligible, with the entrants appearing each night before the audience. Ten thousand cans of fruit are being displayed as part of the International canning contest held last week at Aurora.

LENZ VS. CULBERTSON 'CONTRACT' BATTLE TO TEST RIVAL SYSTEMS

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The crucial battle of the contract bridge war approached today as Sidney S. Lenz accepted a challenge of Ely Culbertson for a pair match of 150 rubbers.

Lenz is the exponent of the "official" system of contract bridge, while Culbertson advocates his own "approach forcing system."

Lenz's partner will be Oswald Jacoby, whom he described as one of the youngest ranking players in the country. Mrs. Culbertson will be her husband's partner, although Waldemar von Zedwitz and Theodore Lightner will substitute for her in one-fourth of the rubbers.

Dates for the games were not announced, but it was agreed that a minimum of eight rubbers would be played at each session. Lenz and Jacoby will use the "1-2-3" system of bidding and the Culbertsons will follow their own.

"Although I am somewhat disappointed that Mr. Lenz did not choose to accept the challenge for a team of four match, which is a more decisive test of skill," Culbertson said, "I am delighted that he has at least accepted some sort of challenge.

"My check for $5,000 is up and will be immediately turned over to the referee. Should I win the $1,000, which is Mr. Lenz's part of the wager, I shall give it to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children."

Lenz said if he won his prize would go to the unemployed relief fund.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Irma Corbin, while playing a week's vaudeville engagement in Thrace, an upstate New York town, is showered with invitations by Bill Fitzroy, friend of her pianist, and Wallace Graham, a widower friend of Bill's. Before the week is up Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's proposal to her is of a different nature. Irma quarrels with her dancing partner and quits the act. She marries Wallace and settles down to a dull existence with him. Wallace has a young daughter, Mildred, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. A baby son arrives to compensate Irma for any flaws in the marriage system. The baby becomes the center of her universe. Wallace's lifelong ambition is a European voyage. A paid up endowment policy makes the trip possible. Irma reluctantly leaves the baby. She is upset by a letter received in Paris from Aunt Tessie. They meet Russell Byrnes, a wealthy bachelor from New York, through friends from the boat. He has a cabin on a boat sailing in two days, which Irma persuades him to sell to Wallace. Back in Thrace they find the baby well, but Mildred planning a eugenic marriage with Scott Avery. Wallace refuses his consent to the marriage.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

IRMA IS MADE GUARDIAN.

Wallace paused then and looked swiftly at Irma as though to gage how his performance was being received. She whispered a sudden rush of silly, meaningless words to the baby and buried her face in his warm little neck to conceal her smile. The slow precision of Wallace's words proved that he felt slightly tight and was afraid of a blunder which would detract from his dignity.

Aunt Tessie was staring anxiously at him expecting him to banish Mildred to a home for incorrigibles but Mildred herself examined her nails and pretended not to hear the self-conscious voice of her father.

"I am going to treat you like a child now, Mildred. You have proven that you can not be trusted with freedom. You are now being served notice that you are no longer permitted to go out in the evenings no matter what the circumstance or event. Do you understand?"

"Yes," with elaborate boredom.

"You did not intend to continue school after your marriage, did you?"

Mildred looked at him with surprise. "Why no, of course not."

"Then we'll assume that school is not important to you. You're not not to go any more. Do you understand? No more evening jaunts and your only excursions in the daylight will be taken with Irma. Understand? Not with Jane or Aunt Tessie, who loves you too insanely to be sensible, but with Irma. Go to your room now."

Mildred turned and walked upstairs. Obviously this new, unexpected development had stricken her speechless. She did not reply when Aunt Tessie called, "Do you want me, dear?" But Aunt Tessie, who always took Mildred's silence for consent, bustled up after her.

In the room below Wallace extinguished his cigaret and turned to his wife with a self satisfied nod. "That'll soon knock the nonsense out of her," he said.

Irma did not answer.

"You won't mind keeping an eye on her, will you, dear?" he pursued. "Yes, I certainly will. You have a hell of a nerve making a watch dog out of me after I offered today to handle this situation for you. You were trying to think then what Anne would want, if you remember. You had no interest in hearing my plan or advice. You went ahead and botched the matter up to a fare-you-well and now you expect me to play prison guard. I ought to say no."

"How do you know I'm not married already."

"But you will do it, won't you, Irma?" His voice sounded very tired and baffled.

"Certainly, I have to do it. If I back out Mildred will see that she's not the only one who thinks you're a fool."

"Will you promise to watch her well?"

"I'll promise nothing. I didn't ask for the responsibility."

"What was your idea for breaking it up?" he asked meekly.

"This is a hell of a fine time to ask, isn't it? What's more, I didn't say I'd break it up. All you've been able to think of is separating Scott and Mildred. I was thinking of a way to determine what was best for Mildred. You hadn't thought of that though. You know there is a chance that Scott is a fine fellow and that Mildred recognizes the fact.

"Well, I'm sorry." He smiled a thin, half embarassed smile. "But I have put the kibosh on her getting married, haven't I?"

"O, you're a fine father," Irma said impatiently. She picked the baby up then and whisked him swiftly upstairs as though to remove him from Wallace's clutches.

"Perhaps I don't see all the fine distinctions of the problem," he murmured at her retreating back, "but I certainly lay low all the ones I do see." He couldn't help but feel that the matter had been handled with speed and competence.

Mildred presented herself to Irma after lunch next day. "Will nursie please take little Willy-Nilly for a walk" she asked. "Little Willy-Nilly's just about nuts from hanging around the housie-mousie."

"I can't now," Irma said curtly.

"Well, my stars, don't be so sore about it. I don't want to go with you any more than you want to go with me."

"Sorry, kid." Irma patted Mildred's hand repentantly. "I'm a little riled today about one thing and another and I'm just naturally nasty. Wait till I change my clothes and we'll walk down to Princess street. I wanted to get some things at the store anyhow."

"I'll get some books at the library," Mildred said. "It looks like a big season for reading."

The girls did not speak to each other during the first part of the walk except for a comment on the weather and a remark or two about the pleasures of having an accessible automobile. Mildred walked with her usual free, easy stride and Irma, who held the slow toddling, oft falling baby with one hand and pushed his stroller with the other, wondered if at one time she had walked with such graceful unconcern.

Two blocks of walking was fortunately as much as the baby enjoyed. After that he was delighted to be placed comfortably in the little stroller and to sit back lazily watching the scenery after the manner of a tired business man in an Atlantic City roll chair. Once the baby was thus comparatively out of the way it was a simpler matter to keep up with Mildred and to talk to her.

"You said," Irma ventured, "that it looked like a big season for reading. Don't you intend to give in?"

"What do you mean?"

"Aren't you going to promise your father that you won't see Scott? You could go back to school then and take up a normal routine again."

"I told my father last night that I'm going to marry Scott and I mean it."

"How are you going to do it, darling, with me tagging along? Besides you're only seventeen."

"I'll do it. How do you know I'm not married already?"

Irma considered the matter. "If you were," she finally said, "you would have told us so."

Mildred laughed. "Yes, I guess I would have. No, I'm not married, but I'm going to be."

"Look here, kid. What's all the excitement about getting married? It's no fun. Honestly, it isn't. It's a whale of a lot of responsibility and work and it's dreary, too. When you're single there's new man coming along to vary the monotony, there's new interests and the hope that just ahead there's something romantic and adventurous waiting for you. That's all over when you're married, kid. You don't want it to be over at seventeen."

Mildred said nothing.

"I know that you think marriage with Scott would always be romantic and adventurous. But it couldn't be. Humans aren't built that way. I think you're sensible and not the average seventeen year old girl at all but, good God, Mildred, do you realize that the world is full of charming men? You owe it to Scott to get a look at some others before you marry him. Think how he'd feel if you met someone afterwards that you'd prefer."

Irma, you're looking at Scott and me as though we were the average case. Do you remember that first time I mentioned him to you, you were surprised because I didn't speak of the cute way he danced or his wavy hair? We're compatible mentally, that's what he calls it."

Irma laughed. "O, that's what he calls it? Well, it's just a new name for an old idea."

"It isn't. I like the things he says and thinks."

"You're drawn to him because he's brilliant?"

"Yes."

"Might I suggest that somewhere there might be a more brilliant man? Did it ever occur to you that by the time you're twenty-five Scott may appear empty headed to you?"

"No."

"Well, think about it."

"I would suspect my father stooed you on me except that he wouldn't have in ten years the ideas you get in ten minutes. You're keen, Irma. You'd like Scott, too."

"No."

"Why not?"

"I don't think he has a sense of humor."

"Well, for heaven's sake, neither has my father."

"Certainly he has."

"Maybe you have to be married to him to notice it."

Irma laughed but Mildred had a feeling that she was laughing at something that no one else knew anything about.

Keep a Beau Reserve.

Here's Way to Look, Dress When Having Your Picture Taken

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Who am I to be telling you how to look when you get your picture taken? I haven't learned the trick myself yet. I'm one of those poor unfortunates who accept a picture taking order as a hanging verdict. And look it.

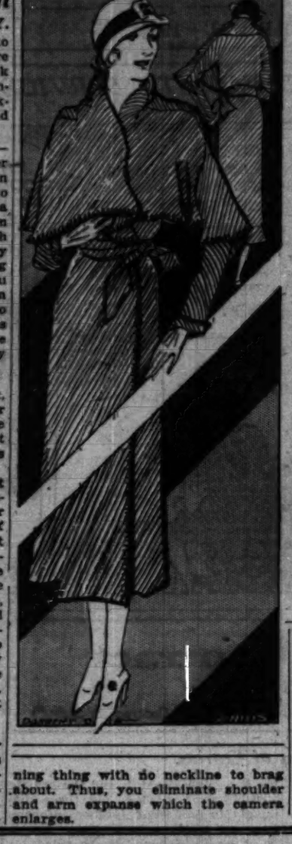
So let the photographers tell you—not to put on a face that was never seen above your chin line before when you face that camera eye. Not to expect makeup to do for you with a photographer what it has been known to do to gentlemen not identified with the business of picture taking. They don't like it—during picture taking hours, anyway. They say it robs you of your native charms. That men take better pictures than women do because they wear their complexions au naturel. (That may not be the reason at all. They're just naturally 'ansum devils and they can't help it.)

But, with rouge dabs on the cheek, we're warned to watch for queer cheek contours in the finished picture and for great coarse lips if we insist upon reddening them up into cupid's knots. The red takes black.

And HOW the photographers do not like the "fresh from the hairdresser's" look to the locks. They'd sooner you'd come unwashed and unwaved of head. Those wave lines that may not seem hard to you behave in a noticeably hard boiled manner after the camera takes them in. And since the hair, even at the photographer's, keeps on being the frame to aid and abet the facial glory, we're asked politely to do our waving early, even to a couple of days before the trial by camera. Fluffy hair isn't so welcome either. It means a lot of retouching, catching up on stray wisps that don't belong in the picture.

And about the dress. Don't wear your grandest. Your simplest stands up best under immediate and future scrutiny. The dress with a simple, becoming neckline is most desired. More so than the formal evening thing with no neckline to brag about. Thus, you eliminate shoulder and arm expanse which the camera enlarges.

Furless Coats Will Be Chic for Winter Wear



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Lots of chic coats are going without any rations of fur this winter. Perhaps it's the hard times, but these coats lose no whit of their cachet because they have no fur, and they are being worn for practical pursuits, such as shopping and traveling, by women with three or four fur coats in their wardrobes.

The Lyolene coat, sketched today, is one of the new furless breeds. It is made of a woolly, diagonal material and is a dark plum red in color.

The shoulders of this coat are made practically as warm as if they were laden with fur by a cape and yoke arrangement that gives a double layer of the heavy woolen material. The front cape, which reaches from shoulders to elbows, is attached to a seam on top of the sleeves, from the elbows to the shoulders, where it becomes a round yoke at the back of the neck, this yoke mounting in a big fold that replaces an actual collar. At the crossed closing in front the cape is also attached, and it dips down in a point to the waistline, where it is sewed to the body of the coat. Instead of a hem, this cape has an embroidered edge done in dark red wool.

Set into the coat, across the back of the waistline, is the belt, which is brought across the front and tied in a knot at the left side front.

Down the front of the coat to the hem the edges are embroidered in wool, and the narrow cuffs on the edges of the sleeves are also embroidered in wool.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My small brother, Peter, on his first visit to Chicago, stood on the shores of Lake Michigan and reflected: "My, it would certainly take a lot of kettles of water to warm this up." M. W.

Doris Scans Reasons for Breakup of Many Time Tested Unions

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What IS the answer to all these recent-day exposés of husbands grown tired of the wives to whom they've been married for years? I doubt if a day goes by but there is a report of another mate either walking out on his spouse or threatening to.

Always, of course, as the case is presented to me by the wife, she is the innocent victim of a hard fate. She's always been a good wife, true, loyal. She's worked hard, saved her man's money for him—and away he goes with another woman.

If one were to believe all one reads, you'd be convinced that the way to hold a mate is not to be good, true and loyal. Not to work hard and save his money. But, then, there is always the other side to be heard from, to be deliberated upon. There's always that large question of just how much love ever went into the marriage, how much survived the first year, two, five, ten. And why the man turned to some other woman.

It's possible that some of these unions were marriages of convenience, hasty marriages; marriages made with little or no knowledge of the true character of the mate. They may be marriages where the woman has been good and true, loyal and a hard worker, but who, in spite of all her virtues, is still an unlovable individual. There are women who wouldn't break one of the commandments knowingly, yet who manage to make life terribly drab and lonesome for the other half.

I'm not trying to find excuses for the man, but the very surety with which women vouch their superior-women claims just makes me wonder if their virtues aren't irritating. That if they'd mix in more of the human qualities, even to mistakes, they wouldn't be more companionable humans. There's something about a woman who, in her own opinion, always does the right thing that is frankly irritating. Probably it is her lack of understanding of human frailties that makes her hard to live with. There is such a thing in married life as taking things so seriously there isn't time for a laugh; there isn't time for a lapse from the cleaning and the money saving urge.

Men may be the brutes, the ingrates, the ruthless ones who walk out on the woman after years of marriage. But before they're sentenced as monsters, women must search the other side of their own souls to see if they honestly have made life pleasant for their husbands.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

His Office Wife.

Two of my business friends launched into new offices. One day I found them all settled with the exception of a secretary. "Get a good looking one," I admonished as I left them. A few weeks later I dropped in to see how their new business was going. A young lady [the new secretary] was near the door. Upon entering my friend's private office I remarked, "I see that the best you could do" [meaning outside, whereupon he replied, "That happens to be my wife, Jane."

Splashed the Soup.

It was in one of the popular afternoon theater restaurants, at a time when the place was quite crowded. We were preparing to leave, and as I reached for my overcoat, the large belt fell across the table, the heavy brass buckle falling into the bowl of the gentleman sitting across the table from us, and splashing every one at the table with gravy. I never could remember how I got out of that place.

Agnes Amberg, George Fielder Are Engaged

BY THALIA

Mr. and Mrs. John Ward Amberg of 1311 North State street announce the engagement of their daughter, Agnes, to George Fiedler of 80 East Elm street, son of Mrs. Bernard Fiedler of Minneapolis Point, Wis.

Miss Amberg was educated at the Sacred Heart academy in Lake Forest and Mr. Fiedler was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and the University of Wisconsin law school. He has been practicing law in Chicago for the last five or six years. The wedding is to take place this autumn, the latter part of November, to be exact.

Miss Amberg will be the fourth of the child Mrs. Amberg's 11 sons and daughters to marry within the last year or so. Her brothers, Bertrand Ward, married, respectively, Miss Ward Keeley of Madison, Wis., and Miss La Valley, and the former Miss Mary Amberg is now Mrs. Charles Fiedler. An interesting angle to the romance is the fact that some of Miss Amberg forbears came from Minneapolis Point, where Mr. Fiedler was born.

Miss Amberg has been active in the affairs of Madonna center, of which her aunt, Miss Mary Agnes Amberg, and Miss Marie Piamondon are directors, in the Big Sisters and numerous other charitable and social organizations.

"Losing Russia with Shaw."
Tells Ivy Gertrude Ely.

Talk to Mrs. William G. Hibbard for a few minutes about Gertrude Ely of Philadelphia and you just can't wait to hear her informal talk, "Seeing Russia with Bernard Shaw," at the Ivy Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 3, under the auspices of the League of Women Voters. Miss Ely is a perfect-ly good person who has been in all sorts of places and knows all about the world's affairs. She was in London when England went off the gold standard, attending parliament and meetings, has been in on league of nations conferences, was a strenuous worker during the war, and is a marvelously good talker. She's never spoken professionally, however, and is only going to make speeches this winter for the benefit of the League of Women Voters, in which she is an active worker. She is a sister of the late Charles Tiffany. Mrs. Hibbard, who roomed with her at Bryn Mawr, touched her on long distance in Philadelphia just about 10 minutes after she'd arrived from Europe and asked her to say she'd come on and talk about her experiences with the Shaw party in the U. S. R. R.

Sponsors of the talk, all of them Miss Ely's good friends, are the Laurance H. Armours, the Arthur Cables, the A. A. Carpenters, Mrs. Clyde Carr, the Charles A. Dawes, the Kellogg Fairbanks, the Wilmot R. Hales, the Frank Hixons, the Norris L. Johnstons, Col. and Mrs. Glenn T. Langhorne, the Donald Manning, the Carroll H. Sudlers, and the Ada Paul Wellings. Miss Ely is living with Mrs. Hibbard for the few days she is in Chicago, and since loads of pals want to "do something" for her program will be crowded and the meeting is open to the public, the tickets cost $5, and they can be had from Secretaries, Inc.

The League of Women Voters, incidentally, is intending to have another informal series of lectures in January similar to the very popular group that sponsored last winter, and in March Maurice Hindus is to speak under the league's auspices on Russia.

Mrs. Hibbard, who traveled extensively in Russia herself this last summer, admits that her impressions are very complicated, but that it was all agreeably interesting. She is to give some of her observations before the Scribblers at their meeting on Nov. 5.

Regatta Ceremony Today for Miss Florence Lowden.

There will be two special railway coaches on the train going to Oregon, Ill., today to take the guests to the comparatively small and informal wedding of Miss Florence Lowden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, and Dr. C. Philip Miller, to take place at the Lowden's Stanislaspil farm. Several of the bride's friends among the Lake Forest "young marrieds," including her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John S. McIlvaine [Margaret Pullman] and Mr. and Mrs. William A. F. Pullmans, plan to motor to Oregon, as also are the John T. Dukes and their daughters, Miss Adrienne and Miss Elizabeth. Mrs. William C. Pullman will go by train, and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener is to come from Lake Geneva. Only relatives, close friends and some of the bride's and groom's mutual friends at the University are to attend the ceremony and the country style informal luncheon to follow.

There already has been so much talk about the St. Luke's fashion show, to take place this afternoon and evening at the Stevens hotel ballroom, that there's really nothing more to say. The pulchritude of the mannequins, the magnificence of the clothes, jewels, furs, hats, and shoes to be displayed, the demand for tickets, all has been prophesied in the superlatives that previous fashion shows have seemed to warrant.

Invitations have been received in Chicago for the wedding of Miss Kate Hanna, daughter of the Howard M. Hannas of Cleveland, O., and kin to Miss Ruth Hanna McCormick, and Warren Bicknell Jr., also of Cleveland, to take place on Nov. 4. Jacob Haish of the Ambassador East is to be in the wedding party. The prospective bride and groom decided last Nov. 4 was a good wedding date. "At least," they say, "we'll remember our wedding anniversary every year."

The Dante Alighieri society is to have a dinner at the Belden-Stratford hotel on Oct. 23 for the Rev. Robert I. Kelley, S. J., president of Loyola university. Prof. France Bruno Avenati is to lecture on "The Spirit of Florence and Siena in the 14th and 15th Centuries."

Some of Lake Forest and Those Who Reside There.

Lake Forestering—The Roy W. Carpenters have come into town for the winter, but are still spending weekends in the country . . . the Winter Club is to have a class in boxing and orthopedics for boys beginning shortly. . . . James Gamble Rogers of New York is living with his grandfather, Albert M. Day, while he is attending Northwestern university. . . . Mrs. James Minotto and the Minotto children are to go to their ranch in Arizona about the middle of November. . . . Mr. Walter Byron Smith is to close his Lake Forest residence today and move into his apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive. . . . Miss Florence Underwood, recently returned from California, is staying at the Deerpath Inn until mid-November, when she is going to Florida. . . .

Kenwood Social Service
Benefit Proves Successful.

The Kenwood Social Service club's benefit at "The Third Little Show" last night was as gay and successful as any we've seen this season, and the hard working group of south side women who sponsored the event were highly gratified with the turnout.

Most of the audience arrived early [a tribute to the show and the brilliant cast that benefit audiences seldom pay]. Every seat on the main floor and in the boxes was filled, and everybody had a grand time, from the opening number to the finale, when Walter O'Keefe extemporized about the noble work of the Infant Welfare society and the health giving qualities of cod liver oil.

Most of the members of the play committee had dinner parties beforehand. The president, Mrs. Ralph Johnson, had a large party of guests, as did Mrs. Kenath Sponsel, Mrs. Harold Gordon, Mrs. C. H. Veeder, Mrs. Cyrus Mark, and Mrs. Willson Killough.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—The French ambassador and Mme. Claudel today issued invitations for a dinner party Thursday evening at the embassy and a reception for a large company at ten o'clock that evening in honor of Marshal Petain and the French delegation to the celebration at Yorktown.

The commercial counselor of the British embassy, and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart gave a dinner last evening in honor of Lord Cornwallis, descendant of the vanquished leader at Yorktown, and Lady Cornwallis, who were in Washington over the week-end. Lord and Lady Cornwallis were guests at a tea given yesterday afternoon at Chevy Chase club by former Representative and Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey.

Mrs. Samuel H. Valentine has closed her season at Narragansett Pier and will be at 5 East 67th street until she goes to Palm Beach.

Food Talk.

Morning hardly seems the proper time to perform magic, does it? Usually wonders of the mystic art are accomplished in the middle of the night by the dim light of fireflies, the moon, and the stars. But muffin magic works much better when an inquisitive sun peeps through your gay kitchen window curtains to see what you are making for breakfast.

Whether it is muffin magic, pop-over magic, or magic applied to any one of the many light breads, the charm is one which does work "wonders" with family dispositions so early in the morning. Muffins and pop-overs may be varied easily with the admission of a little fruit or cheese to the recipe. Cheese pop-overs are exceptionally good. They may be made with any pop-over recipe—use your own favorite, or I'll forward one to you. Simply drop one teaspoonful of batter into the hot gem pans, then a teaspoonful of any grated cheese, and finish with another teaspoonful of batter. Bake in a very hot oven, as usual. Once again, the admonition, don't open the oven door during the first twenty minutes of baking.

BANANA MUFFINS.

2 tablespoons of shortening
¼ cup of sugar
1 egg [well beaten]
1 cup of milk
1¼ cups of bran
1¼ cups of flaked bran
3 teaspoons of baking powder
½ teaspoon of salt
½ cup of chopped banana

Cream the shortening. Add the sugar, and cream together. Add the beaten egg, milk, and bran. Sift the salt and baking powder with the flour, and add the banana. Add to the first mixture, and stir only until the flour disappears. Baked in greased muffin tins in a moderately hot oven [400 degrees Fahrenheit] for 20 to 25 minutes.

Yield: 12 medium sized muffins.

The following recipe for bran muffins may be changed by the admission of dates or raisins to it—use about half a cup of either for the proportions given. A new twist is to place a small slice of apple, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon, on top of the muffin batter just before baking, the result is most appetizing.

BRAN MUFFINS.

½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons of shortening
¼ cup of sugar
1 egg [well beaten]
1 cup of sour milk
1 cup of bran grain
1 cup of flour
1 teaspoon of baking powder
½ teaspoon of soda

Cream the shortening; add the sugar, and cream together. Add the egg and sour milk. Add the bran, and let soak until most of the moisture is taken up. Sift the soda, salt, and baking powder with the flour and add to the first mixture, stirring only until the flour disappears. Fill greased muffin tins only two-thirds full, and bake in a moderately hot oven [400 degrees Fahrenheit] for 20 to 25 minutes. [If the recipe is changed to sweet milk, omit the soda, and use 3 teaspoons of baking powder.]

Yield: Eight medium sized muffins.

A variation of a good muffin recipe is given below. Substitute dates or other fruit, in the same proportion, if you don't care for bananas.

ORANGE SOUFFLE.

1 cup of milk
5 tablespoons of flour
4 tablespoons of butter
¼ teaspoon of salt
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites
½ cup sugar
4 tablespoons of orange juice
1 tablespoon of lemon juice
Grated rind of half an orange
1-3 cup sugar

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, and milk. When it is cool add the beaten egg yolks, sugar, and flavorings. Fold into this mixture the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a well greased baking dish about one hour in a moderate oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit]. The baking dish should be uncovered and stand in a pan containing about one and one-half inches of hot water.

Althouse Sings an Opera on Train as He Nears Chicago

Whether it was the urge to work or just a good press stunt isn't told in this story of a grand opera tenor and a stage director who rehearsed "Tristan und Isolde" on the Twentieth Century en route from New York to Chicago.

Paul Althouse and Dr. Otto Erhardt were the principals, and the doctor, newly arrived from Germany for his second season with the Chicago Civic opera, bulletined that he was already at work when he stepped from the train yesterday morning at the La Salle Street station.

Dr. Erhardt had other bits of gossip, including the opinion that as a card player Dr. Hugo Eckener of Zeppelin fame was a good weather prophet.

Althouse included in his baggage a rowing machine which he has carried with him everywhere this summer, including Cuba and Mexico, and through which he lost forty pounds for which he had no use.

Althouse will sing his first Italian opera in Chicago the third night of the season, Wednesday, Nov. 4, when he appears as Rhadames in Verdi's Aida.

Longer Hair, Close Fitting Curls Are Styles This Autumn

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A new fall coiffure, one that requires longer hair, has been decreed by hair stylists at the American beauty congress.

The coiffure for daytime has turned from the straight bob to an abundance of flippant curls and narrower waves. It must, however, be done in the more practical tailored mode. The evening mode allows of greater elaboration, but, it must be a sophisticated elaboration.

"The smart coiffure," one leading hair stylist declares, "avoids fluffiness. Although curls are quite fashionable, they are not the fluffy type, but neat, plastic curls that fit close to the head."

A Polish hair stylist who is expected to arrive in America this week, is bringing with him a collection of the new lacquered coiffures and varnished wigs inspired by the Eugenie revival and the colonial exposition in Paris.

ATHLETIC MEET FOR WOMEN IS CANCELED BY ITALIAN COMMITTEE

ROME, Oct. 19.—(AP)—There will be no women's athletic meet at Naples on Nov. 1 because the Italian olympic committee has canceled it on the principle that in Italy woman's place is still in the home.

Sports for women, the committee rules, must be limited to "educational gymnastics" for young women.

The schedule for Nov. 1, and all others of the kind, the committee's announcement said, are "not within the comprehension of Italian women," and competitive contests "as practiced in other countries of different mentality and habits do not accord with the character of the Italian people, who are determined to defend family unity and who do not wish excessive liberty to be given to girls and women."

Three and a half years ago Pope Pius, in an open letter to the vicar of the Rome diocese, roundly condemned athletic competition for girls, asserting that "after twenty centuries of Christianity . . . the delicate care due the young women and girls . . . has fallen lower than in Pagan Rome."

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The sleeve fullness below the elbow is a pretty style for an afternoon dress. Black crêpe satin combined with white satin is a practical and smart color scheme, and was used for the original model. For less formal wear a sheer printed wool voile in brown with a vivid shade of red for contrast will be chic.

The pattern, 3213, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with 1 yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Jews Say Colleges Try to Bar Them; Repeat Their Protest

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Resolutions condemning alleged discrimination against Jews in American colleges and universities and bearing on the welfare of the people in foreign countries were adopted today at the ninth annual convention of the American Jewish congress.

The resolution on discrimination in colleges stated that the committee studying the subject had obtained during the year additional information "substantiating further the previous evidence of discrimination."

It urged that the congress "strongly condemn the present discriminatory policies by which some American college and university authorities are guided and reiterates its former position that no consideration other than that of merit be regarded as a standard for admission."

The committee was asked to continue its work.

In a resolution on Palestine the congress congratulated Lieut. Gen. Sir Arthur Waucope, high commissioner of Palestine, and Nahum Sokolow, Zionist leader, on their work, and assured them of support of American Jewry in the upbuilding of the Jewish national home.

KLEENEX

Disposable Tissues

DURING colds, if you use a handkerchief more than once, you do so at your own risk!

Scientific tests discovered 240,000 germs in a handkerchief used one time! Such a germ-carrier is a menace to your health. Don't touch it to your face! Don't put it in your pocket or in a laundry bag.

Use Kleenex and destroy

The safe thing to do is this: Use a Kleenex tissue and destroy. Thus you destroy countless germs. You use a clean, safe tissue every time. You avoid self-infection.

Don't think this is expensive. Kleenex is made of a marvelous substance, rayon-cellulose, that costs very little, but is softer than linen, and far more absorbent.

Kleenex comes in dainty squares, handkerchief size. Children like these gentle tissues, and should always use them. Children are particularly susceptible to nose and throat infections — and so careless with handkerchiefs.

A wonderful convenience

Try Kleenex for polishing spectacles. For manicuring. For applying medicines and bandaging minor wounds. Keep a package handy in the kitchen, bath and bedroom—and an extra package for the car.

For removing face creams, Kleenex has no equal. Its absorbency is necessary to blot all dirt and make-up from the pores. Kleenex is sold at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

DISEASE GERMS that thrive in handkerchiefs used during colds include the Pneumococcus, Streptococcus (pus germ), Staphylococcus, and Catarrhalis, bacteriological tests show.

KLEENEX Disposable TISSUES

Dirty handkerchiefs are a menace to society!

Avoid Stupid Brand of Conversation When Dealing with Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I have a theory that small children should not be made too self-conscious of their conduct. I don't believe in a lot of things for children, such as:

Have you been a good little girl today?

Have you been a bad little boy today?

Do you think you've earned a gold star for today?

Nor do I believe in systems of fines or penalties, such as:

Five cents every time you get a spot on the tablecloth.

Ten cents every time you use a "swear word."

No dessert if you're late for meals.

I'd rather be slower getting my results than to get them quickly in those ways.

I do not believe that children should be forced to think of themselves in moral terms—either to rate themselves as good or bad, or to be rated that way by any one else.

They may be made to realize keenly that being late to meals is an inconvenience and a discourtesy—that carelessness in eating is unappetizing for others and also causes extra work, and so correct themselves.

They may be made to understand that whining is an abomination to other people and makes them unpleasant in themselves, that always leaving their toys around is unfair to the one who has to put them away, that rudeness usually hurts people's feelings—and so be led to stop doing these things. But they shouldn't be constantly forced to estimate their behavior, and to think of themselves as bad or good, or as deserving a penalty or a fine or a nice gold star.

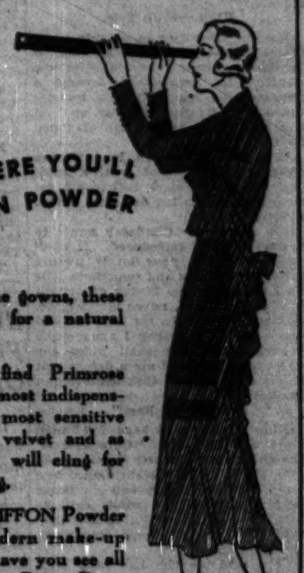
How Do Women in the Movies Manage?

Filming a picture means weeks of work without a pause. The star can't stop because she is "indisposed!" Monthly sickness does not excuse her. If you know some woman who is in pictures, she will tell you how Hollywood women manage on days they menstruate. Try to find even an "extra" girl who doesn't carry Midol with her!

Midol is a marvelous discovery. It isn't harmful. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes—ends all menstrual pain or discomfort for hours at a stretch! Just ask for Midol at any drug store.



These lovely, feminine gowns, these off-the-face hats call for a natural looking make-up.

That's why you'll find Primrose CHIFFON Powder almost indispensable. Made for the most sensitive skins, it's as soft as velvet and as delicate as chiffon. It will cling for hours without caking.

Because Primrose CHIFFON Powder so perfectly fits modern make-up needs... we'd like to have you see all of the lovely shades—Beige, Rose-Petal, Ivory, Natural, Brunette, Primrose Tan and Orchid.

EX-PASTOR SAYS ACTRESS BROKE $50,000 HEART

Tells Lovelorn Tale to the Court.

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—While a vividly attired actress sat smiling in court today, a former priest, Benjamin Chudacek, took the stand in his $50,000 breach of promise suit against her and said she had broken his heart by refusing to marry him.

He met the defendant, Betty Randolph, he said, after seeing her picture in a newspaper and writing her a "letter of condolence over her troubles."

The evidence showed that Chudacek, a native of Austria, served as pastor of "Independent Czecho-Slovakian" churches in Wisconsin and later was pastor of an Independent church which he founded in Johnstown, N. Y. He testified he resigned the pastorate there so he might marry the actress.

His Lovelorn Tale.

Ignoring the jibes of defense counsel, who termed him a "male flirt," a "religious gigolo," and a "fortune hunter," he testified he became a physical and mental wreck because the actress "failed to show up" on two occasions when he had arranged for their wedding.

Miss Randolph, in a long flowing gown, a brilliant red coat, a sable neckpiece and a black turban did not have a chance to tell her story before adjournment.

The first letter Chudacek wrote to the actress was introduced. It read:

"I have seen your lovely picture in the newspapers and something tells me I shall take the liberty of writing you. I am single, never married, 44, healthy, 190 pounds, six feet one and very strong. They say I am a good-looker. Well, you shall judge me when you see me. I am a descendant of one of the oldest Czecho-Slovakian families."

"Call Me Bart."

Other letters were headed "Sweetheart Honey" and "Cute Heart." The one arranging their meeting said:

"I know it will be thrilling. And I am sure my heart will go pitter pat-pat. I wish you would call me Bart." Today after relating how they went to Miss Randolph's apartment, Chudacek said:

"She told me she had been married three times and was now all alone in this great world. She said she wanted someone to save her. She started to cry and proposed to me."

He testified he arranged for their marriage in Greenwich, Conn., June 5, 1928, and Sept. 14, 1928, but she failed to appear on either occasion.

The former priest under cross-examination was asked:

"Did you know the defendant's income was $62,000 a year?"

"Yes."

"Did that have any bearing on your interest in her?"

"It was purely love."

Britons Keep Methodists Off Prohibition as Main Issue

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19.—(AP)—British delegates today blocked efforts of stanch prohibition advocates within the Methodist church to force a separate pronouncement on the liquor question before the general ecumenical conference.

The liquor issue came to the fore in a group meeting to which several questions had been assigned for discussion. It was the objection of the Rev. C. Ensor Walters of London that finally prevented a division of reports, after Bishop James Cannon Jr. had addressed the meeting and had been termed "a martyred and persecuted man."

"We Britishers sympathize with you in your liquor problem," Mr. Walters said, "but we have come a long way to join with you in this great conference and feel that the questions of modern marriage and unemployment are equal in the church with prohibition.

Oppose "Undue Prominence."

"I am personally with you in the fight, but these other matters should not be relegated to the background and one subject given undue prominence, which you seek to give it."

Mr. Walters had previously received applause when he declared that the "church should change its marriage vows, containing the phrase 'Until death do us part,' or decline to permit divorced persons to receive the blessings of the denomination." He said he was opposed to birth control "because the use of contraceptives of any kind is against God and the church."

Earlier in the day the general conference offered prayers that "God may give power to the peace producing efforts of the league of nations" in dealing with the Sino-Japanese situation. The conference also paused to express sorrow over the death of Thomas A. Edison.

The group meeting was one of a series and had for its general theme "The Christian Social Order."

Four Questions Considered.

On opening the meeting the Rev. Dr. Orien W. Fifer of Indianapolis, chairman, was authorized to appoint a committee to consider the four questions up for discussion—amusements, marriage, employment and temperance. The last was interpreted by Ernest H. Cherrington, of Westerville, O., as meaning prohibition.

A period was set aside for discussion and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the church, was called upon to speak.

Dr. Wilson said the Methodist church must do what it started out to do—put the liquor traffic out and keep it out. Although there are many who are of another opinion, I say that prohibition has done more to clean up the politics of this country than anything in the past century."

Cannon Asked to Speak.

At this point an unidentified person said Bishop Cannon was a "martyred and persecuted man."

Amid applause Bishop Cannon took the floor. He said:

"I don't think any civilization can be called Christian that permits people to go hungry. It is up to the church to lead in aiding the unemployed.

"The question of modern marriage is equally as serious. I have been pondering for years, without success, to determine what methods should be employed in meeting the changed conditions. I think it is up to the general ecumenical conference to determine the question.

"In regard to prohibition, the church should speak out. The law shall be obeyed. There is no going back. It is still the curse of nations."

It was then that a request was made for a committee of five to report back separately on prohibition, which was later withdrawn after Mr. Walters' remarks.

WATSON URGED ROWBOTTOM BE PAROLED BY U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Senators James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson, both Republicans of Indiana, were among those who recommended the parole of former Representative Harry E. Rowbottom of Indiana from his year and a day sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary, it was learned at the justice department today.

JAMES E. WATSON.

Rowbottom will be released on Nov. 9 as a result of the parole ruling, whereas his term normally would not end until Feb. 9, 1932. He was convicted of accepting bribes for patronage jobs in the First Indiana district, which he was representing in congress.

Other recommendations in favor of releasing Rowbottom before the expiration of his full term were made by Circuit Judge Charles E. Woodward, who sentenced the former representative, and by Judge Vanderburgh of the Probate court of Evansville.

District Attorney George I. Jeffery, who prosecuted Rowbottom, was opposed to the parole, the justice department said.

BOMB DAMAGES FURNITURE PLANT ON GRAND AVENUE

Damage of between $700 and $1,000 was done early this morning by a bomb explosion at the front entrance of the factory of the Le Moyne Parlor Frame company, 2612-16 West Grand avenue.

No motive for the blast was assigned either by police or the owner, John Kleszyk. The latter informed police that he employs forty-five woodworkers who are not union men because there is no union of that craft. He also said he had recently discharged an employe.

Windows in the two story building were broken, the front door was splintered, and other property damage done. A watchman, Michael Lazarski, 2319 Rice street, was in the plant at the time, but was uninjured. Lieut. John Buckley of the West North avenue station and Sergt. Michael Touhy of the bomb squad are investigating the bombing.

IRISH FIDGETY; FIRST 'TREASON' ARREST IS MADE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, Oct. 19.—There is an atmosphere of nervousness and apprehension everywhere today, with the main topic of conversation the Draconian provisions of the new public safety act. Talk is carried on in whispers, every one seems to dread eavesdroppers and people in the streets glance at each other suspiciously. Social life is momentarily at a standstill.

Adding to the general depression, the first arrest for sedition since the passage of the dreaded act was made in Tipperary county, where Superintendent Turtin, with a young farm laborer, James Ryan, was murdered a few months ago.

Today John Condon, son of Alderman Condon of the Clonmel court, was charged with posting seditious placards Aug. 15. The presiding justice expressed the opinion that he was not empowered to deal with the case owing to the active terms of the public safety act.

Voice writing

ANSWERS TWO QUESTIONS . . . . . THAT EVERY FORWARD LOOKING EXECUTIVE IS ASKING:—

THE QUESTIONS 1. How can I be assured that my organization is functioning as economically as possible?

2. How can I get my key men to become more effective under present conditions?

THE ANSWERS During the first six months of this year, 3893 business houses in 211 cities adopted voice writing to accomplish those very objectives. Each firm cooperated with us in making a simple survey of its office methods and of the undeveloped executive possibilities of its organization. (There is no obligation for this phase of Ediphone service.) The Ediphone voice writing investigations revealed to the executives of these 3893 firms that voice writing provided them with new opportunities to think—to plan—and to act. As a result, when they adopted voice writing, new ideas, new plans, and new policies essential to the growth of their individual businesses were preserved, developed and promptly applied.

Furthermore, these investigations proved to each firm that it was paying over and over again for the cost of voice writing service—without getting any of its benefits.

If you are interested in progressive economy and in increasing your own effectiveness as well as that of your executives, we invite you to telephone or write for our interesting new booklet—"Now—How About MY Business?"

Autos, Clothes, Etc., Bought as of Old.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 19.—On the evidence observed in two Saturday afternoon football journeys, I am inclined to suspect that quite a number of our citizens have been doing some serious reading for new automobiles, new furs, new hats and coats of both genders, and even for liquor, also, presumably, fresh new.

The Yale-Georgia game at New Haven was my first of the season, and the Yale-Georgia game was redolent of old as one of those early games which people turned to only in half of something better to do. It is a dollar football game, and last year the Yale Athletic association threw open the gates, or portals, as they call them, admitting free of charge all the New Haventownies under 12 years of age who wished to come. Several thousand responded, attracted principally, no doubt, by Albie Booth, himself a New Haven boy who went to Yale and made the team. But even with the free kids, the crowd did not appear to fill more than half the bowl. This would have been, roughly, 40,000 head.

Like Yale-Harvard Game.

A week ago Saturday the volume and speed of the traffic on the Boston post road as early as 11 a. m. were equal to that of a turnout bound for a Yale-Harvard game, and by game time there were about 60,000 people inside. The attendance continued to swell during the first quarter.

Possibly seven of last year's patrons had figured that there would be little traffic and a small crowd and therefore had started late. By the end of the first quarter the two ends of the field were almost full and the attendance finally was estimated at 70,000 or so.

Being by nature not very optimistic, I had anticipated a crowd smaller than last year's and had expected to see most of those patrons clattering along in dingy repaints on tires bound with courthouse and string. They would be a threadbare lot, the girls in vintage hats and the gents all more or less obviously darned and seedy, and their laughter would come in loud, determined blurts, for they would be conscious of their fall from opulence and not really happy but merely game.

Crowd Gay as of Yore.

It was astonishing then, and one was excited no end, to observe big new limousines as long as street cars rolling along with more bright work than an admiral's launch, on tires with whined as only new tires can, and full of people being very gay and ingratiating before.

I do not mean to suggest that they were exhibiting a constant cackle of any laughter, as the football censors are very up to date and have read or heard most of the jokes and laugh only at that provocation. But they were quite as merry and bright and all that sort of thing as ever they were in the season of 1928, when even newspaper office boys that I know of were spending too much of their time in the phone booths talking with their brokers instead of running copy to the desk.

In authority on style of the newsman of furs, myself, I had no mean authority on such matters to inquire, and one advised me that most of those were indeed new hats and costumes and unbelievably expensive, and assured me that many of the furs were recently expensive, too.

In regard to the automobiles I needed less assistance. I know which cars cost $535, $1,165, $1,475, $2,250, and $3,600, f. o. b. extra extra and I will report there were as many of the forty-eighties as ever before, with customary extras, many of them with final shipments and some with crews of two. They wheeled into the parking in prosperous array, their radiators gleaming like all silver cornet bands in the United States of America, and the Yale boys working on the parking detail were constantly riding back and forth. "O, Eddie, can you get change for a big brutal bill?"

Army Stadium Filled, Too.

The traffic to West Point where Barry Wood of Harvard played his second game to beat the Army, was not as heavy as the Yale-Georgia traffic, of course. Michie stadium holds only 37,000, it is a long climb afoot from the automobile limit and the hosts are not accustomed to the military sendaway, which the majority of civilians regard as closed premises where one is likely to be pricked with a bayonet for stepping on some colonel's private onion bed. Still, they filled Michie stadium and the general appearance of the crowd and the cars they came in was the same wealthy, theatrical appearance worn by the crowd up at Yale. But of course they were not the same crowd. They were Harvard's and the Army's New York following.

Dr. Julius Klein, the assistant secretary of commerce, who has tried to survey the length, depth and general commercial bulk of the sport industry, has pointed out that the price of admission to the Saturday games in the east is only an index to the total expenditure for football by the patrons. They buy chrysanthemums, feathers and gasoline or railroad tickets, they lunch and they dine on the way, they pay parking fees and

Columbia Coach 'Broke Back' to Beat Dartmouth

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Coach Lou Little literally broke his back to produce the Columbia varsity that made football history on Morningside heights by whipping Dartmouth Saturday.

His home for the last month has been a hospital room because his back is encased in a steel brace and he cannot sleep in any other than the raised position of a hospital cot. Around his neck is another brace locking his head in an immovable position. Sandbags are his pillows at night.

But all this doesn't keep him off the football field and it did not prevent him from moulding from the youths who took a 52-0 defeat at Dartmouth's hands last fall the eleven that raced out Saturday to overpower the Hanover Indians, 19-6, for the first time since 1889.

Over a month ago because tackles, like all other material at Columbia, were scarce, Little filled in against the varsity in an early scrimmage. The youngsters tossed him for a loss. But it wasn't until ten days later, when the injury had been aggravated by neglect, that he discovered that one dorsal vertebrae was fractured and the nerves were badly inflamed.

Little, battling to lift Columbia out of the set-up class, braces, pain, discouragement and all, stuck to his coaching. He must still spend his nights in the hospital.

Yost Reports as Michigan Aid de Camp

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost appeared at Michigan's football practice today in the rôle of assistant to Coach Harry Kipke, and it was evident that he intends to take an active part in preparing the team for its game with Illinois at Champaign Saturday.

Touchdown plays occupied the attention of the squad following last Saturday's failure to cash in on two scoring opportunities against Ohio State. The Wolverine coaches had the squad on the five yard line for an hour, sending backs over and through the reserve forward wall and calling for pass plays across the goal line.

The plays clicked with precision and gave indication that Illinois may have some trouble in attempting to halt proceedings near its goal.

Fay on Sidelines.

The regular lineup was intact, except that Stan Fay was on the side lines because of a slight injury. Newman, Heston, Everhardus and Capt. Hudson worked in the back field. Hewitt, Goldsmith, La Jeunesse, Morrison, Hoser, Samuels, and Williamson, were in the line.

Harry Newman was given considerable exercise in passing throughout the afternoon, a passing drill for the backs and ends having preceded the scrimmage. Only Newman was used on the throwing end of forward passes.

Kipke and Yost gave some indication that they believe place kicking may have a part in the engagement at Champaign, as Goldsmith was used for a long period making tries for placement.

LIGHT DRILL FOR ILLINI

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Illinois football players today resumed practice for the homecoming encounter with the Wolverines Saturday.

Bob Zuppke reviewed probable Michigan plays and afterward directed a light drill.

Tomorrow Zuppke will increase the pace. The Illini already have had the advantage of one week's work studying the Wolverine offensive.

The freshmen, with the best passer enacting the rôle of Harry Newman, will attack the varsity this week. The Illini know they must break up Newman's passing if they are to triumph.

UPSETS LEAVE WILDCAT ELEVEN ON TITLE "SPOT"

N. U. Faces New Threat at Ohio State Saturday.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It isn't often that a favorite contender for the Big Ten football championship sees its two main rivals knocked off before it has played its first conference game. This year, however, Northwestern is in that very spot, what with Purdue and Michigan, other summer book favorites, now smarting from severe wallopings accorded last Saturday by Wisconsin and Ohio State.

Of course the Purdue-Wisconsin and the Michigan-Ohio State upsets do not establish Northwestern as the undisputed champions, for, despite their late start in their own league, the Wildcats must meet five Big Ten teams on succeeding Saturdays, beginning next Saturday with the new dark horse and undoubtedly their most dangerous remaining foe, Ohio State.

Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, of course, was quick to appreciate that his Big Ten opener is virtually his championship game of the season, and in accordance with this realization canceled the usual Monday off for his regulars.

Will Stress Fundamentals.

He told the entire squad that he was dissatisfied with the way the team last Saturday exercised its knowledge of football fundamentals, such as blocking and tackling. It was said that Coach Hanley probably will bear down all week in the rudiments, foregoing, in a measure, the policy of adding new plays. There will, however, be detailed defensive drill against the plays which Ohio State used in giving Michigan a 20 to 7 blistering, with especial attention being paid to talents such as those possessed by Carl Cramer, the Buckeyes' sensational soph quarter back.

All hope of an early return of Full Back Reb Russell was destroyed yesterday when it was announced that an examination of his injuries revealed that he would not be able to rejoin the team for another two weeks at least.

No changes are contemplated in the Wildcat lineup, which scored three touchdowns against California of Los Angeles last Saturday, though Rentner and Olson were unable to practice yesterday because of minor injuries. These two, in addition to Potter and Meenan, will make up Northwestern's starting back field. Other starters will be Fencl and Manske, ends; Marvil and Riley, tackles; Evans and Dilley, guards, and Weldin, center.

Ohio State's preparation for next Saturday's game opened with a speech by Coach Sam Willaman, according to dispatches from Columbus.

No Hard Work for Regulars.

"Meeting last year's co-champions on successive Saturdays is no mean job," Coach Willaman said. "But take it from me, we licked one of the 1930 champs and although I consider Northwestern tougher than Michigan, I believe we've got a better chance than most people think."

It was said that Coach Willaman will keep his regulars away from hard work most of the week through fear of injuries.

It is reported there will be little change in the starting Buckeye line, if any. There was some doubt as to the status of his ends, but Gillman and Nasman performed so well in the Michigan game that there is little possibility of them being shifted.

The remainder of the line last night as it ran through practice signals, working on new plays for the Wildcats, was Bell and Haubrich, tackles; Gailus and Varner, guards, and Smith, center.

Cramer Best at Quarter.

The half back positions are the only really doubtful places on the team. With Bill Carroll and Lou Hinchman, right and left half backs, respectively, performing in such great style, Willaman may replace Capt. Stu Holcombe in the starting back field aggregation.

Of course, Carl Cramer at quarter back will not be displaced by any talent that has been shown so far this season, while Mickey Vuchinich, Serbian full back, has won his spurs.

"Take Hinchman, for Instance"

Lewis Hinchman, with one year of conference experience, will cause Northwestern more trouble than in 1930 when the Buckeyes and Wildcats clash at Columbus Saturday. He's a half back.

At Boston, Mass.—Jack McCarthy, Boston, stopped Harry Allen, Brockton [9].

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Tommy Loughran, former world's light heavyweight champion, tonight beat Johnny Risko of Cleveland for the third straight time. Conceding 13¼ pounds to the Cleveland baker boy, Loughran did not show anything out of the ordinary, but he was entitled to the ten round decision. A crowd of 3,000 saw the fight.

It was Loughran's eleventh straight victory in his heavyweight campaign. Risko had four decisions in a row before making his first Philadelphia appearance.

Sixth, Seventh Even.

Loughran won six of the ten rounds with the sixth and seventh even. Most of Risko's wild rushes were met by Loughran with a series of left jabs and occasional right crosses. In the ninth round Risko hit Loughran low, but no damage was done.

Billy Jones, Philadelphia colored light heavyweight, knocked out Joe Banovic of Binghamton, N. Y., in the seventh round.

George Pavlok of Cleveland beat Rattle Kitchline of Phillipsburg, N. J., in six rounds. Chester Martin of Brooklyn gained a six round decision over Fred Caldora of Philadelphia, and Joe Stanley of Catasqua stopped Jack Blumberg of Philadelphia in the first round.

MILLER KNOCKS OUT RITZ.

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Ray Miller, Chicago lightweight, knocked out Solly Ritz of Brooklyn in 40 seconds of the first round of their scheduled eight round bout tonight. Miller ended the entertainment with a left hook to the chin.

Vincent Hambright, Cincinnati welterweight, outpointed Eduardo Duary, Cuban star, in a six rounder. Hambright was dropped for counts of nine, six, and three in the first round. Duary previously had won all 16 of his bouts in this country by knockouts.

STRIBLING STOPS RUGGIRELLO.

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 19.—(AP)—W. L. [Young] Stribling returned to the ring here tonight for the first time since his technical knockout by Champion Max Schmeling last July, and knocked out Salvatore Ruggirello, New York, in the second round of a scheduled ten round bout. Stribling weighed 184½, Ruggirello 199.

CAMPOLO WINS BY K. O.

New York, Oct. 19. — [Special.] — Vittorio Campolo's right hand knocked out Ralph Ficucello, Brooklyn heavyweight, tonight in the eighth round at the St. Nicholas arena. The punch to the jaw dropped the Italian in his own corner where he was counted out by Referee Jack O'Sullivan after the round had gone two minutes and 37 seconds.

Up to the time the finishing blow landed the South American, a head taller than Ficucello, with advantage in reach and a 25 pound pull in the weights, fought the Brooklyn Italian evenly.

WALLACE WHIPS SEVERO.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Billy Wallace of Cleveland, veteran lightweight, unloosed a right hand punch in the first of six rounds with Lou Severo of Philadelphia here tonight, and from then won a well earned decision. Both weighed 135 pounds.

Wallace sent a left to Severo's body early in the first round and followed it with a right to the chin that sent the Philadelphia youngster to the canvas for the count of nine. Wallace was given every round.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BIG TEN TITLE.

FIVE conference football games have been played on the 1931 schedule, yet there are only four elevens among the ten which have not been defeated or tied. That is unusual for so early in the season with so few games decided.

Those four unbeaten and untied elevens are Ohio State, which downed Michigan; Wisconsin, which upset Purdue, and Northwestern and Minnesota, which have yet to face conference opposition. It is possible from the schedule to develop an undisputed champion, and it is likewise possible to develop a scramble with some of the defeated teams back in the running through mishaps to these four leaders.

Northwestern and Ohio State have the toughest assignment for Saturday at Columbus, when one of the other will be eliminated. Thereafter Northwestern takes on Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana, and Iowa on successive Saturdays, at least two of them dangerous. Ohio State has Indiana, Wisconsin, and Illinois, hardly a bed of roses.

Wisconsin, now with high title hopes, has yet to play Minnesota in the stronghold of the Gophers. Illinois, Ohio State, and Chicago, all apparently dangerous except the Maroons. Minnesota's chart consists of Iowa, Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Michigan, no sinecure for Crisler's team.

Under this schedule of games it is, of course, possible for a championship tie to result, but that seems unlikely, unless each eleven receives one or more defeats. That also is not impossible. Early games indicate better balance with seven of the ten conference members having at least average chances in every contest. It looks like a great year from the viewpoint of competition.

Song of the Second Raters.

We are the host that is almost up
Before we stop bemused;
For our putts circle the rim of the cup
And we drop the sets that are deuced.
The winner shivers and takes our hand,
And he says: "I thought you were in";
And we hear the sigh of the packed grand stand
While we hide our sharp chagrin.
It's no fun to lose the sets that are deuced,
But we hide our sharp chagrin.

Our plunge is stopped on the half inch line;
They don't misjudge our flies;
And youngsters who, drawn to play us, pine,
Then beat us with some surprise.
But this is the story of our pay clan—
That we lose without a smirk,
That we keep on battling while we can,
And we make the champions work.
Youngsters beat us with some surprise,
But we make the champions work.
The Thundering Herd.

Football Retrospect.

The Wake football forecast Saturday had 35 winners, 14 losers, and 3 games resulted in ties. While this average was not bad in a day of upsets, some of the estimates looked terrible, even foolish, after the games were over, notably Columbia with Dartmouth. Season to date: 171 winners, 31 losers, 11 ties.

Charles Webb Murphy Will Be Buried Today

Wilmington, O., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held at St. Columbkilles Catholic church here tomorrow for Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Chicago National league baseball club. Burial will be in Sugar Grove cemetery. Murphy's body was brought today from Chicago, where he died Friday.

LEAGUE KEEPS SIX TEAMS IN PLAYOFF SERIES

Refuses Plea of 3 "Outlaws."

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Directors of the National Hockey league decided today to make no change in the playoff system although the circuit will have only eight members this year.

Thus, in effect, the playoffs will amount to little more than an extension of the regular playing season. The regular season schedule will eliminate only two teams from the championship playoffs.

Under the playoff system which again will be operative, the first three clubs in each division will meet a team of equal standing. The winners of the second and third place series will engage in a match to decide which sextet plays the first place victor for the Stanley cup.

Adopt Playing Schedule.

Adoption of the playing schedule, clarification of a number of rules, and various minor changes in the regulations comprised the rest of the directors' program today.

The league season will open Nov. 12 with the following schedule:

Chicago Blackhawks at Toronto Maple Leafs.
New York Rangers at Montreal Canadiens.
New York Americans at Detroit Falcons.

The Boston Bruins and Montreal Maroons will open their season two days later at Montreal.

The full schedule will be released later this week.

Applications for reinstatement from three players who were with the American Hockey league last season were turned down and the following motion dealing with players who have joined "outlaw" organizations was passed:

"Players now under contract or option to clubs in organized hockey who play in any outlaw organization will be permanently barred from organized hockey."

Change Penalty Faceoff.

The applications for reinstatement were from Paddy Byrne of the Kansas City team, and Sid Ancaster and Stan Fuller of the St. Louis club.

An incident in the final game in Boston last season between the Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs was responsible for a change in the rule regarding penalty faceoffs. At that time Clancy of Toronto was out of position and one official blew his whistle just as the faceoff occurred. Boston scored but the goal was disallowed.

An amendment, adopted today provides that if a player on the defending side is out of position on a penalty faceoff and a goal is scored it will count. If there is no goal another faceoff will be provided.

Hawks Get Lowrey.

A penalty faceoff will be ordered if any player other than the goalie falls on the puck within ten feet of his team's goal. In the future if a player takes up a position in or near a goal so as to interfere with or impede the view or movement of a goal tender while in the net a faceoff will be ordered five feet beyond the nearest blue line.

Only one player deal was reported. The Chicago Blackhawks purchased Jerry Lowrey from the disbanded Philadelphia club.

HARVARD DAILY'S ATTACK ON ARMY GAME DISMISSED

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The attack of the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, on the Harvard-Army football game, today was dismissed with scant consideration by William J. Bingham, director of the Crimson's athletics.

"Athletic relations between Harvard and West Point have been, and always will be, I hope, cordial. Harvard only asks that its opponents certify players who meet its own scholastic requirements. The Army always has done so.",

ARMY OFFICIALS SILENT.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Army athletic officials were silent today on the suggestion of the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, for a severance of football relations between Army and Harvard.

Maj. Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, was not available until tomorrow and his assistant, Capt. L. M. Jones, said he had "no comment to make."

The Crimson brought up the old question of eligibility of Army players who enter the academy after a college athletic career, and classed the relationship between the two schools as "fundamentally artificial."

CANZONERI MEETS CHOCOLATE FOR TITLE NOV. 20

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden's new matchmaker, announced today that his first match, to be staged Nov. 20, will bring together Tony Canzoneri and Kid Chocolate for the lightweight championship of the world.

If Tony elects to come in at 130 pounds, there will be three titles involved, Tony's lightweight title and his synthetic junior welter crown, and Chocolate's equally synthetic junior lightweight championship.

OCTOBER RAINS AID WATERFOWL ON ILLINOIS RIVER

All Kinds Join in Fall Congress.

BY BOB BECKER.

Waterfowl which have dropped into the Illinois river valley are finding a pretty fair stage of water in the lowlands this year in comparison to the conditions which prevailed last fall. October rains have been a big help in putting the marshes and sloughs in the shape that the mallards, teal, pintails, widgeon and other puddler ducks want for resting and feeding.

Right now there is an interesting mixture of birds in the marshes of the lower Illinois, according to Lou Barkhausen, a Chicago sportsman, who has just returned from a survey of conditions near the junction of the Sangamon and the Illinois rivers. On some ponds it looked like a fall duck congress, what with mallards, widgeon, a scattering of teal, many pintails, baldpates and even a small flock of redheads in attendance.

Wood Ducks Furnish Noise.

The choral work for this congress was furnished by the noisy wood ducks, of which there are thousands along the river.

Barkhausen reports that the owls have been doing so much raiding of the decoy pens on his property that he was forced to resort to a campaign to cut down the losses of live birds. His experience may be a tip to other sportsmen along the Illinois who are losing birds through the attacks of the owls.

During the last few weeks it was noticed that the count of tame decoys in the pens has not been checking up. It was thought that birds got away and while remaining on the property they stayed outside of the pen, footloose and free.

Pole Trap Works.

Mr. Barkhausen, having had experience with the raids of owls on his farm near Green Bay, was pretty sure that the birds were getting some of the tame ducks, so he rigged up a pole trap near each decoy pen. This is a simple contrivance consisting of a 15 foot pole with a steel jump trap set on top of it. Owls and hawks like to perch on such high places from which they can survey their hunting grounds. When they light on the pole they immediately spring the trap.

In four days' of trapping the big fellows right at the decoy pens 12 owls were caught. The majority of these were great horned owls, the big fellows that prey upon many kinds of bird life, including both song and game birds.

DE PAUL FINDS RESERVE POWER FOR HASTINGS

Enthused over the fine showing of the De Paul university reserves against St. Mary's, Coach Eddie Anderson devoted most of yesterday's practice session to developing the second stringers. De Paul faces Hastings college Saturday at Soldiers' field in a charity game.

Among the reserves who started the victory drive against St. Mary's were Jack Kelly and Bert Lanum, centers; Bud Borrelli, Schuster, Rold, and Baskett, guards; Condon, Roche, ends; Eddie O'Brien and Jim McGuinn, half backs.

Art McGivern, the veteran full back who started the St. Mary's contest as a reserve and finished as a regular, continued to hold his first string job yesterday.

Hal Cherne, tackle, and Heine Coan, end, were absent from drill. They were injured in the St. Mary's game and may be out for the remainder of the week.

Eli Game Past, Maroons Told About Defense

Somewhat less bouyant and a little more meditative than they were last week, Coach Stagg's Maroons assembled at practice yesterday to hear a thorough airing of their shortcomings in the Yale game and to rebuild for the Indiana match at the Midway this Saturday.

The program for the week will include plenty of defensive work, particularly on forward passes, since three of Yale's touchdowns resulted directly from long tosses which passed cleanly over the heads of the Maroon rear guard into the arms of Blue receivers. Zimmer was caught flatfooted on two of them and Mahoney was outstripped on the third. Both are inexperienced so Coach Stagg will do what he can to give them, and all the other Chicago backs, pass experience.

Maroon Tacklers Weak.

The only work against Yale which was satisfactory to Maroon coaches was in the center of the line, where Hamberg, Parsons and Horwitz performed ably. Yale rode rough shod over the Maroon tacklers in the latter part of the game, but again Coach Stagg's only therapy is more experience for his two starters, Spearing and Cassels. The ends were informed of their marked tendency to be drawn in so far that they can be blocked out of plays readily.

Three casualties of undetermined importance developed from Saturday's game. Capt. Sam Horwitz will be kept out of scrimmage for a few days to nurse an injured elbow; Bernie Wein, regular end, has a wrenched shoulder, and Joe Temple, half back, suffered a renewal of an old leg injury.

PURDUE BATTERED

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Purdue's already large hospital list was swelled here today when an X-ray examination revealed that Howard Letsinger, pony guard who played a brilliant game against Wisconsin, had a fractured bone in his hand and would be unable to play when the Boilermakers meet Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh Saturday.

Letsinger suffered the injury in the middle of the second quarter, but played for the remainder of the game.

Among others injured are, in the backfield, Alex Yunevich, with a strained shoulder; Roy Horstmann, with the after effects of a badly dislocated elbow; Jack White, with the same charley horse that kept him out of the Wisconsin game; and Jim Purvis with a bad shoulder. Fred Hecker and Paul Pardonner, the speedy sophomores who took a pounding at the hands of the Badgers, are not expected to be in the best of shape.

Coach Noble Kizer gave the squad a layoff from drill this afternoon in an effort to get rid of some of the bumps and bruises. He announced that shakeups in both line and backfield will be in order following the poor showing of some of the veterans in the early part of the Wisconsin game.

M'NAMARA WILL COMPETE IN 6 DAY BIKE RACE HERE

Reggie McNamara, who has competed in more than 60 six day bicycle races and won 14, again will be a starter in Chicago's twenty-sixth grind, which starts in the Stadium Nov. 6. It would not seem like a six day race without the veteran Reggie. He has been a fixture in every Chicago and New York race for the last 15 years.

McNamara still is ranked as one of the leading riders.

McNamara has had more spills and had falls than any other six riders. During his long career he has won races in Australia, Germany, France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, and America.

He has suffered a fractured skull, broken jaw, broken nose, had his collar bone broken five times, his leg once, and it would take an adding machine to list the falls he sustained.

EBBETS SCORES 7 KNOCKDOWNS AS HE WINS DECISION

Harry Ebbets, Brooklyn middleweight, outpointed Buck Easterling of Wichita, Kas., in an eight round bout at White City last night. Ebbets knocked Easterling down seven times and won every round.

Matt Adgie, Philadelphia veteran, scored a technical knockout victory over Marion Matusnack of Chicago in the second round of another scheduled eight rounder. A bad cut over Matusnack's eye caused the bout to be stopped. In the third eight rounder Dick Evans, 161, of Youngstown, O., outpointed Bud Saltis, 160, of Chicago.

Eagles' Friday Boxing Card Is Completed

Three bouts, two six rounders and a four rounder, will support the two ten rounders which will bring together Willie Oster and Sid Novak and Bud Saltis and Jerry Crano at the West Side Eagles' arena on Friday. Joey Freeman and Benny Goldblatt will meet in one of the six round fights. The other will have Lou New, Milwaukee 145 pounder, and Brownie Segerro. Davey Day and Tod Kelley will meet in the four rounder.

Billy Petrolle, Fargo, N. D., boxer, engaged in his final bout when he fought Jimmy McLarnin at New York last summer, according to Jack Hurley, Petrolle's manager. Hurley, who left town last night for Duluth, Minn., said yesterday that Petrolle is having trouble with his eyes and nose because of sinus trouble and may not fight again.

The first of a series of amateur boxing shows for charity will be staged on Friday at 3242 West Roosevelt road under the auspices of the 24th ward Democratic organization. They are sanctioned by the Central A. A. U. and Illinois athletic commission. Active members of the organization will be Moe Rosenberg, Jacob Arvey, and Davey Miller. Harry Weiss is matchmaker. They hope to develop a strong team of boxers for the Golden Gloves tournament in February.

Promoters of the Eddie Shea-Prince Saunders ten round bout at St. Paul last week lost $3,500 on the show, which drew $3,700. Shea received a flat guarantee of $3,000 and Saunders $2,000 less. They have leased the new city auditorium at St. Paul for a show on Dec. 8.

COACH WARNS NOTRE DAME OF PITTSBURGH LINE

Easterners Better N. U., Anderson Says.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—For the first time this year Coach Hunk Anderson has started an effort to key up the Notre Dame football team. The players keyed themselves against Northwestern and it wasn't necessary for him to say much that is an inspirational way.

A time of overconfidence among his men following the easy victory over Drake was indicated by Anderson as he again started practice for the game with Pittsburgh here Saturday.

"Last year," he told his players at their night meeting, "we beat Pittsburgh, 21 to 13, because we demoralized them with a touchdown on the first play. They made a great comeback in the second half against our third string, and half of you varsity men were in there when they scored their three touchdowns. This year they have all but two men back, and we won't be upset by anything that happens."

Pitt Has Veteran Line.

Pitt's veteran line, from which only Capt. Tilly is missing, is believed by Anderson to be stronger than Northwestern's. "In MacMurdo and Hinkle," he said, "they have two backs as good as Northwestern's. With Capt. Hirschberg and Rip Colin at ends, Morris and Milligan at guards and Daugherty at center, they are stronger all the way through than Northwestern."

The Pittsburgh offense, according to Anderson, is at its peak and the Panthers are pointing for a victory Saturday with everything they have. Pitt started practice the last two weeks in August and has played four games, with Kansas, Iowa, West Virginia, and Western Reserve, to Notre Dame's none.

Sutherland Saves Regulars.

Against Western Reserve Saturday, Coach Jock Sutherland used only eight of his first string, saving Reidy and Clark in the backfield and Colbert at end. The varsity scored in eight plays and was promptly benched. The Pitt goal has not been crossed this year.

50,000 See Prep Elevens During Week

Many schools downstate are reporting that attendance at high school football games this season is far better than last year's figures, but preps in Chicago and vicinity are enjoying another good season. It is estimated that more than 50,000 watched 20 games over the week-end.

The first game played during the week drew 4,000 at Loyola stadium to watch St. Mel score a 7 to 6 victory over De Paul Friday night. Saturday 4,000 sat in the grandstands of Oak Park field to witness the annual Evanston-Oak Park contest, while close to 5,000 saw Harrison defeat Austin at Mills stadium.

The Mount Carmel-Leo contest at Rockridge field Sunday afternoon attracted 1,000. In the other Catholic league games played Sunday, St. Gregory-St. Patrick and De La Salle-St. Ignatius each drew crowds of more than 1,000. Here are some of the crowds on the week-end's games:

Austin-Mills	5,000
St. Pat-Evanston	4,000
Leo-Chicago	4,000
Mt. Carmel-Leo	3,000
Loyola-Tilden	2,500
Austin-Mills	5,000
Harrison-Austin	4,000
Oak Park-Evanston	4,000

Harrison Tech's squad will meet Morton, its second obstacle in the path toward the west section championship, Friday afternoon. No practice was called by Coach Bob Dougherty yesterday.

De La Salle and Mount Carmel, tied for the south division lead with two victories, will clash at Soldiers' field today in a charity game. Proceeds of the contest will be given to the building fund of the Sisters of Mercy. Sheriff William D. Meyering is chairman of the executive committee.

Bill Bierlow, the tall star of Bowen's basketball squad last year, was among the veterans who reported to Coach Clarence Applegran last week. Others were Eddie Orr and Joe Forbes. Coach Applegran was busy during the summer piloting the South Chicago American Legion baseball team to the junior world series championship.

Gets Thirty Days for Crash Injuring Mr., Mrs. Mallory

New York, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Francis J. Ward, who described himself as an explorer and is said to be an heir to millions, was sent to the workhouse for thirty days by Magistrate H. Stanley Renaud in Homicide court today for being intoxicated at the wheel of his automobile, which on June 17 last collided with a taxi and seriously injured Mrs. Molla Mallory, tennis player, and her husband, Franklin Mallory.

Ward, who is 23 years old and lives in St. Paul, also was held in $1,500 bail for special sessions on a charge of third degree assault. Sentence was suspended on a charge of reckless driving.

Mrs. Mallory, who lives at 480 Park avenue with her husband, suffered a fracture of the nose and loss of three teeth, and her husband's skull was fractured in the collision, which occurred on Madison avenue shortly after midnight.

Magistrate Renaud was told that the police have begun three damage suits against Ward which total $75,000 in claims, and that "he is in for that much."

BADGERS' NEWLY FOUND POWER IS THREAT TO PENN

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Wisconsin, which last year had a strong defense but a weak attack, is going out to score touchdowns this season—plenty of them.

The first indication of Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite's revised plan of battle came last Saturday against Purdue, when the Badgers piled up 21 points in the first ten minutes of play. Tomorrow the team begins work on an offense which it is hoped will be equally successful against Pennsylvania at Philadelphia next Saturday.

Lost to Yale in 1899.

It will be Wisconsin's first invasion of the east in 32 years. In 1899 the Badgers played Yale at New Haven and lost, 6 to 0.

The development of a scoring punch to combine with a good defense has been made possible by the rise of John Schneller, towering Neenah, Wis., full back, Mickey McGuire, the Hawaiian Irishman, and Buckets Goldenberg of Milwaukee. This trio, with Russ Rebholtz, who has been a regular for two seasons, gives Wisconsin a back field which can hit the line and run off tackle in addition to throwing passes.

McGuire's chief value to the team comes in his ability to direct the play. Badger fans hail him as the first star quarter back since Bo Cuisinier, who led the 1928 team to within a step of the Big Ten title.

Hard Game Is Expected.

The Badgers ran up a score of 27 to 0 on Pennsylvania last season, but do not anticipate such an easy time next Saturday. Penn has whipped several minor opponents by large scores. The most recent was Lehigh, which was beaten, 32 to 0, last week.

In its Big Ten games, Wisconsin will not have to go far to eclipse its 1930 scoring record, when the team collected 61 points to its opponents' 27 in five consecutive contests. And 54 of those points were scored against Chicago.

Here is the 1930 conference record:

Wisconsin, 24; Chicago, 0.
Wisconsin, 6; Purdue, 7.
Wisconsin, 0; Ohio State, 0.
Wisconsin, 7; Northwestern, 20.
Wisconsin, 14; Minnesota, 0.
Wisconsin total, 61; opponents, 27.

Following dismissal of the regulars this afternoon, the third team defeated the fourth string by three touchdowns in a practice game. The winners were reinforced with several varsity reserves. Pike, Kundert, Schiller, and Vallier were the outstanding performers, while Wested, at full back, looked best for the fourth team. The B team, which will play the Northwestern B eleven at Evanston next Saturday, will be selected from the men who played today.

PENN STAR RETURNS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Bill Graupner, University of Pennsylvania varsity quarter back, who has been on the injured list for several weeks, took part in his first hard workout today as the squad began preparations for the Wisconsin game here next Saturday.

Graupner scrimmaged in a back field that included Warren Gette, George Munger, and Jack Edwards. These backs worked behind a second team line against a third team combination until almost dark. The varsity line worked on the bucking machine.

Carl Perina, full back, who scored three touchdowns against Lehigh, has an injured leg. A late class kept him from the field, but it is believed he will be ready to resume practice tomorrow. Ed Lewis, sophomore half back, also came out of the Lehigh game with a bad leg, but limbered up for a short time today.

Mike Hanley, member of the Penn coaching staff, who scouted Wisconsin in its victory over Purdue, warned the team of the Badgers' strength and stressed the versatility of the back field.

American League May Adopt National's Ball Next Season

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The baseball in use in the National league last season is getting so much favorable publicity that the American circuit is beginning to think something will have to be done about it.

WM. HARRIDGE.

William Harridge, youthful president of the American league, admitted yesterday that he is collecting all comments on the matter as fast as the so-called experts can turn them out, and this is an indication that in his report at the annual December meeting here he may recommend that his eight bosses adopt the ball specifications now official in the National.

The National league already has acknowledged that with the new ball in play it is furnishing its patrons with a superior attraction. John Heydler, president of the National, even goes so far as to declare the ball made possible a style of game which helped to upset the Athletics in the recent world series.

The two leagues adopted certain ball changes last winter merely because they wished to experiment. The American decided on a ball that, except for raised instead of countersunk seams, was the same as the old article. The National elected to have the same embossed seams but a leather cover which was an infinitesimal fraction of an inch thicker than the horsehide wrapped around the American league's ball.

The season of play revealed, according to the National league's own broadcasters, just the things that were wanted to get away from the orgy of cheap homers and promiscuous hitting. The heavy cover slowed up the ball a trifle and the raised seams permitted a better grip for the pitchers, thus improving their brand of labor.

With some of the bullet-like speed taken from the ball, infielders had a chance to get grounders other than those not directly at them. With the old jack rabbit ball it was a case of safety first. This percentage in the fielder's favor naturally lessened the chances for run getting. And when runs are not easily made the attacking side will resort to other than slambang methods. That brings us up to Pepper Martin, whose base running in the world series was such a shock to the Athletics that they couldn't stop him. They hadn't seen it in their own league.

By comparing season's figures of the two leagues it probably is possible to show that the difference in the balls was of no consequence, but figures can be made to prove almost anything. The point is that not only the National league owners, but the ball writers who covered both circuits, concede that the brand in the National league was more appetizing.

The Giants are going to use Wrigley field, Los Angeles, for their 1932 spring training base, but the occupancy will not interfere with the preseason activities of the Cubs. The Cubs will do about three weeks of preliminary work at Catalina island, as was the case last spring. Then they'll move over for a similar stretch at Los Angeles, using their time by playing exhibitions with the Giants. Later the Cubs will go up to Frisco. Then they'll go back to Los Angeles for games with the Pirates and the Giants will move up to Frisco. On the journey eastward the Cubs and Pirates probably will play Saturday and Sunday engagements at Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex.

ILLINOIS PREPS VOTE TO CUT AGE LIMIT TO TWENTY

The legislative committee of the Illinois High School Athletic association voted yesterday to recommend that the age limit for competition be reduced from 21 to 20 in the 900 high schools who are members of a meeting at the Morrison hotel. This has long been a subject of contention in the association. Many sections, like the Chicago High schools, having adopted it independently, and most of the surrounding states have it. The recommendation is subject to the vote of the association before becoming part of the bylaws.

It was also recommended that football practice be allowed to start officially Sept. 1, instead of the first day of school.

Two amendments to clarify the constitution were also recommended. They were that officers of the board of control shall serve as ex officio officers of the association, and that they shall take office Jan. 1.

C. W. Whitten, manager of the association, presided. Twenty members were present.

Pojello Pins Babe Caddock in One Fall at Wilmington

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Karl Pojello, 194, of Chicago, pinned Babe Caddock, 190, of New York, in the feature match of a wrestling card here tonight. Pojello tossed Caddock for seven straight body slams before pinning him with a head lock. The finish came after 27 minutes and 59 seconds of a one-fall finish bout.

MALCEWICZ AND GEORGE ARRIVE TODAY FOR BOUT

Don George, former University of Michigan star, and Joe Malcewicz of Boston, who are scheduled to meet in the feature match of the Chicago Stadium's first wrestling show of the season on Oct. 27, will arrive today to begin training for their argument. Eight other wrestlers who are included in the supporting four matches on the card, also are due to begin preliminary work in loop gymnasiums today.

It was learned yesterday that two of the cast of ten have posted challenges with the joint relief committee of Cook county and also with the state athletic commission. This violates rule No. 1 of the Stadium's new wrestling code, which holds that any grappler who works in the west side ring must absent himself from the current controversy about the heavyweight championship.

Malcewicz and Jack Sherry of Toledo are the two who have stepped over the line, the former having deposited a check for $1,000 as a challenge for a match with Ed Strangler Lewis. Sherry is reported to have made a similar deposit. Sherry will meet John Grandovich in the semi-windup of the Oct. 27 program.

Other matches on the card bring together Len Macaluso and Boris Demitroff, Karel Zbyszko and Bull Martin, and Joe De Vito and Jos Komar. All of these will be thirty minute time limit matches, the George-Malcewicz struggle being two out of three falls, and Sherry and Grandovich one fall in a finish.

Another wrestling arrival yesterday was Charley [Midget] Fisher of Wisconsin, claimant of the middleweight and light heavyweight championships, who has agreed to meet any opponent named on the program to be conducted at the Stadium by the athletic division of Gov. Emmerson's unemployment relief commission on Nov. 2. Strangler Lewis and Wladek Zbyszko will meet in the feature match, the winner of which will be recognized as the world's heavyweight champion, according to Gen. John Clinnin, chairman of the state athletic commission.

Selph Will Not Leave Houston to Play for Sox

Houston, Tex., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Carey Selph, Houston second baseman drafted three weeks ago by the Chicago White Sox, is slated to confer here Tuesday with Lou Fonseca, new Sox manager, but Selph said today he would not report to the major league club.

"I will play baseball only in Houston," Selph said. "This is my positive decision in the matter. I believe that when the White Sox realize I am sincere in this declaration they will make no effort to force me to play with Chicago."

In addition to being a ball player of much ability, Selph is a husling insurance agent. During the last two years he has built up a thriving business here.

BEARS TO ADMIT WOMEN FREE AT BATTLE SUNDAY

It will be ladies' day next Sunday when the Bears meet the Philadelphia Yellowjackets at Wrigley field in the fifth National league test for the north siders.

Women will be admitted free, but they must write to the Ladies' day ticket office at Wrigley field and inclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope to secure admission tickets. Each request will receive two admissions. Letters postmarked before 6 p. m. tomorrow will be accepted.

It will be the first ladies' day in the history of the National Professional Football league.

The Bears came through the battle with the Cardinals without any serious injuries and went to work yesterday for Sunday's game.

Red Grange was the star of the intracity contest, but shared honors with Nagurski in carrying the ball, and with Bert Pearson, who made several fine tackles and was generally useful in pass defense.

Nagurski's run of 62 yards was the longest run made in the league this season. Bronko was aided by some spectacular blocking.

BUDDY HANFORD REGAINS FORM; RIDES 3 VICTORS

Wins Both Divisions of Gold Coast Purse Race.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jockey Buddy Hanford, who hasn't been doing so well in the saddle at Hawthorne lately, suddenly regained his brilliant form yesterday and came in on three winners.

The Gold Coast purse, a sprint at six furlongs, was run in two divisions and Hanford captured both of these events. He had opened the program earlier in the afternoon with a thrilling victory on Lawful Gamble, a 2 year old owned by Clayton Morris, which paid $20.10 for a two dollar ticket.

After a fine record last season Hanford came to Chicago this year and was expected to be one of the great saddle stars of the year, but one thing and another happened to him until he dropped almost out of the picture. Lately he has been improving but until he scored this triple his once great following would not come back to him.

Jockey Too Much for Listo.

The first division of the Coast purse found nine good sprinters accepting the issue and the finish was exciting when Ululu came from far back, squirmed between the early leaders a sixteenth out, and got the decision by half a length from Edward R. Bradley's Broad Meadows. Listo was third and was probably the best horse but little Melvin Lewis turned in a very bad ride.

He had Listo far out of it in the early stages, ran him into a pocket nearing the turn and then came on the extreme outside, losing much ground. Listo was running over horses all the way down the stretch but the early handicap was too much for him to overcome.

It was the first time Ululu has scored in a long time, although he has been trying with all his might a couple of times each week. Despite his numerous failures he had a following and paid $8.20 for a two dollar ticket, after running the six furlongs in 1:14.

Sundot Beats Fiddler.

In the other division of the Gold Coast, Sundot, the California 3 year old carrying the rose and white jacket of the Northway stable, was up in time to beat Fiddler by a length. Barney Sexton was a half length back in third place.

Princess Peroxide and Tombereau raced far out in front in the early stages but Sundot and Fiddler caught them tiring in the stretch and raced on past. Just as the battle ended old Barney Sexton came up on the inside and beat Tombereau out of third money.

The race was slower than the first division of the Gold Coast, being run in 1:14 3-5. Sundot had been the favorite and paid $6.32 for a two dollar ticket.

One other favorite scored during the afternoon when Miss Marr took the track and made the pace all the way to win the Aero purse, which was also at six furlongs. She had little trouble holding Bert John and Dis Dat safe, although they both challenged gamely in the stretch.

CHEFS SEE WINE AND BEER AS FOES OF DEPRESSION

Yearn for Revival of Art of Cooking.

A proposal for combatting the depression was suggested yesterday by master chefs who are among the sponsors of the National Food show, which opened yesterday in the Merchandise Mart.

"With prohibition, cookery is simply cookery and food merely food," declared Alfred Kristensen, one of yesterday's judges, with a gesture of despair.

"But bring back wines and beer, and the chef will return to his rightful vocation—that of the artist. Ah! Then will your prosperity come back! Then will your people begin to value food, when they have proper drink."

Kristensen touched on his experiences as personal chef to Admiral Sims in the navy for three years. He told how, when he was 14 years old, he had induced his father, a Chicago man, who was a sea captain and owner, to spend 1,200 francs a year to apprentice young Alfred to chefs in France, Germany, and England.

He Picks Chicago.

Pierre J. Berard, director of the exclusive and chef of the Merchandise Mart restaurant, who has won so many contests throughout the world that he isn't allowed to enter any more, believes that Chicago is the best town in America for the revival of a proper appreciation of food.

"The effete easterner is not a gourmet," he said, "and it is only a true gourmet who delights our hearts. Chicagoans retain fairly rugged appetites."

Mr. Berard founded an annual salon in New York at which chefs demonstrated their works, and it was his plan to originate a similar salon in Chicago. The Chefs of Cuisine and the Chicago Stewards' association hope to make the national food show an annual occasion.

"It requires 20 years to become a master chef, said Ernest Ghyssaert, pastry chef at the Drake hotel. For that reason the profession is not overcrowded. "In America no young men will be patient enough to serve three years' apprenticeship," he remarked.

Dyes Finest Dinners.

Joseph Van Mullem, chef at the Racket club, and president of the Club of Cuisine, asserted that food should be the last thing to which people economize in a depression.

"Our business men should eat the best of dinners," he said. "Then they will feel more cheerful."

Alphonse Regan, pastry chef at the Blackstone hotel, won the grand prize of the exhibit with a cake iced in the form of a telegram extending congratulations to Mr. Berard and the judges of yesterday's cake and confectionery contests.

Today is Chicago Stewards' day. Prize contests in cooking hot dishes will be held in the model kitchen at the exhibition.

Leo W. Barber, Head of Car Truck Company, Dies

Leo W. Barber, 55 years old, president of the Standard Car Truck company, died yesterday at Monrovia, Cal., after a short illness, according to a message received by friends in Chicago. Mr. Barber, who had been connected with the car truck company for thirty-five years, was active in the conduct of the business until a month ago. He was a member of the Chicago Athletic association, the South Shore Country and Olympia Fields clubs. His widow survives him. Funeral services and burial will be held at Fond du Lac, Wis., next Saturday.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Peaceful Days Again

SUIT FILED TO SEE WHO'S WHO IN LOUISIANA

'Governor' Cyr Versus 'Senator' Long.

Shreveport, La., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The controversy over who is governor and lieutenant governor of Louisiana became more complex today with the filing of an ouster suit against Huey P. Long as governor and the functioning of Alvin O. King, president pro tempore of the state senate, as lieutenant governor.

HUEY P. LONG. (Acme Photo.)

Paul N. Cyr, until recently the undisputed lieutenant governor, filed the suit against Long on the contention that Long is a United States senator and does not legally hold both offices. Cyr also ignored a meeting of the state pardon board and allowed King to preside over it as the lieutenant governor.

The Long faction claimed the undisputed acceptance of King as a member of the board by Attorney General Percy Saint indicated the latter recognized Cyr is "out of the office."

Is Getting Past a Joke.

The developments of the day brought a solemn mien to the populace, which had a big laugh over the situation after unemployed men had taken the oath of governor and lieutenant governor and set up their claims for the offices. These men were out of the picture today.

The petition in Cyr's suit sets forth that Long "irrevocably accepted" the senatorship when he voluntarily presented his credentials to the senate by which he procured for himself all the prerogatives, privileges, and immunities possessed by senators."

The petition further said "that the said Huey P. Long has received official recognition as senator from the state of Louisiana for the term beginning March 4, 1931, and is so recognized as such senator by the government of the United States."

Cites State Charter.

The Cyr petition charges that article 19 of the constitution of the state of Louisiana "forbids any member of congress to hold or exercise any office or trust or profits under the state of Louisiana."

The suit took its place on the regular court calendar and Long was given ten days in which to file an answer.

APPELLATE COURT REVERSES LYLE IN DRUGGAN CASE

The Illinois Appellate court yesterday reversed Municipal Judge John H. Lyle and set aside the sentence of one year for contempt of court which the judge imposed on Terry Druggan last November.

Druggan was sentenced after his attorneys had obtained a number of continuances of his hearing on a charge of vagrancy on the ground that he was too ill to attend court. Judge Lyle eventually led a raid on Druggan's suite in the Morrison hotel and discovered that the beer baron was out. The contempt sentence was imposed on the charge that Druggan's please of illness had been false. The vagrancy charge has since been dismissed.

The Appellate court held that Judge Lyle had no jurisdiction in the case at the time of the contempt hearing because Druggan then had pending a petition for change of venue on the vagrancy charge and, further, that if Judge Lyle had jurisdiction Druggan cleared himself of contempt by a sworn answer denying that he had misled the court regarding the gravity of his ailments.

Regarding Druggan's affidavit clearing himself of contempt, the opinion, written by Justice David Matchett, said:

"If the affidavit is true he is not only not guilty but he has been very much wronged. If it is untrue the state has a remedy much more drastic than prosecution for contempt—namely, indictment for perjury."

MAYOR ORDERS SURVEY MADE OF NIGHT PARKING

Mayor Cermak yesterday ordered the fire department to make a survey of night parking on streets in Chicago. He said that he had been informed that in some districts automobiles are parked in the streets in double lines all night long.

He also said that automobile insurance companies have notified him that unless thefts of automobiles are reduced in Chicago the companies will institute a raise in rates which will cost Chicago motorists an estimated $5,000,000 extra in premius each year. The insurance policies will also provide that the company is not responsible for losses by theft unless the owner of the car has garage space available.

The Midwest Garage association, one of whose organizers was David Ablin, known as "Cockeyed Mulligan," has made several attempts in the past to stop all parking in Chicago streets. At one time, under the last city administration, police made a practice of towing parked cars to public garages. That practice ceased when an anti-parking ordinance was declared unconstitutional.

ASTHMA CAUSE DISCOVERED

Free Booklet Mailed on Request

Indianapolis—Those who suffer from bronchial asthma and hay fever will be gratified to learn that at last science has succeeded in discovering the basic cause of these two stubborn maladies.

This discovery disproves the old theory that bronchial asthma is due solely to climatic conditions and hay fever entirely to pollen. The discovery of the real cause of these diseases has proved that these are merely aggravating factors and that the basic cause lies in the individual himself.

Fortunately for all who suffer from these diseases a way has also been found to overcome this basic cause in the individual instead of merely treating the surface symptoms, as has been done in the past.

For full information write for important booklet on the discovery of the cause of bronchial asthma and hay fever. It will be sent free to readers of this newspaper who will write to Department 7709 Fugate Company, 126 S. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.

MERCHANTS FROM ALL U. S. COME TO BUYING EVENT

Aid Is Seen in Credit Plan.

Retail merchants from all sections of the country and western Canada began to arrive in Chicago yesterday to attend a special meeting of the Interstate Merchants' council which will be in session until Friday. The meeting, normally held twice annually—in August and February—was called by the Chicago Association of Commerce to sponsor buying activity in the wholesale marts of the city.

Special displays have been arranged by the wholesalers and it is expected the meeting will greatly augment sales.

Expect 1,500 to Attend.

B. C. Getsinger of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who is in charge of the arrangements, said that probably 1,500 members of the council will be in attendance. All railroads, with the exception of those in the New England states, have cooperated by granting reduced fares to the buyers.

That the meeting will produce concrete results was indicated late yesterday when a number of wholesale houses told the Association of Commerce headquarters that large numbers of out of town buyers had visited their displays. One company reported that it had more visitors yesterday than it usually has in four weeks.

Sees Help in Hoover Plan.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said that interest in purchasing will be stimulated through the operation of the National Credit corporation. He pointed out that the beneficial results of the credit plan will make for general replenishment of stock by the retailers.

The wholesale merchants in cooperation with the Association of Commerce will entertain the out of town buyers at a luncheon tomorrow in the Hotel La Salle. Technical matters and routine business will be considered after the luncheon.

DOOLITTLE OFF ON CANADA-MEXICO AIR JAUNT TODAY

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Skyreads of three nations beckoned Maj. Thomas H. Doolittle in the "440 racer" biplane to Ottawa today.

He sped here in 111 minutes over the 340 mile aerial trail from Roosevelt field, N. Y., to prepare for a 2,500 mile three-stop flight tomorrow. That trip, he hopes, will make him the first man to visit the capitals of Canada, the United States and Mexico in a single day.

Doolittle, who recently wrested the United States transcontinental record from Capt. Frank Hawks, will leave Ottawa after breakfast at daybreak, heading for Washington. After a brief stop for luncheon and fuel, he will hop for Birmingham, Ala., where the plane again will be refueled. The third refueling stop will be at Corpus Christi, Tex., from where he plans a single hop to Mexico City.

DOCTOR, 64, TAKES BLAME IN DEATHS OF 76 INFANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LUEBECK, Germany, Oct. 19.—"I prescribed the anti-tubercular serum, Calmette, for 250 babies under my care. I believed in its utility. I was the victim of a scientific error—punish me—not my aids," cried the 64 year old Prof. Deycke, one of a group of doctors on trial here today for the wholesale deaths of 76 babies in 1930 and 1931, following treatments with Calmette serum.

Bereaved parents lining the courtroom witnessed the breakdown of the doctor, who was director of the Luebeck hospital. Fathers and mothers yelled their imprecations while others wept as the aged physician cried in agony. Prof. Deycke told of his faith in the serum at first and how, since the death of the babies, new experiments have convinced him that the use of the serum was not justified.

Prof. Deycke insists that all precautions were taken to keep Calmette serum pure so that no pollution was possible. The court adjourned until tomorrow in order to hear witnesses tell of a possibility of pollution of the serum, which its discoverer, Prof. Calmette, French bacteriologist, still claims has helped many cases.

Six Communists Fined $200 Each for Disorder

Six communist leaders, alleged to have incited colored residents of the south side to disorder, were each fined $200 and costs by Judge Eberhardt in the Wabash avenue court yesterday. Four of the men are colored. The other two, Carl Morris and Joseph Clark, were said by the police to have been sent to Chicago to stir up feeling among the Negroes. All were arrested Sunday while leading a parade and carrying banners stating that they were going to demand a $5 a day dole for every unemployed person.

STOMACH TROUBLES

HOW frequently we hear people complain of "indigestion." And how seldom there is actually anything wrong with the digestive organs!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali to neutralize the acids. But don't use any crude helps. Use what most doctors would advise; use what your own doctor prescribes in his daily practice for just that condition.

The very best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. You will find nothing else so quick in effect, so harmless, so efficient. One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Results are immediate, with no harmful after-effects to follow your relief.

This pleasant way to alkalinize your system is so much better—so much quicker—than attempting to accomplish the same thing by a diet! But you cannot do this with any form of magnesia. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the formula; it is the one preparation that gives you magnesia in perfect suspension. It is alkaline, its action is thorough, and there is nothing more soothing to an ailing stomach or more helpful to sluggish bowels. Druggists have Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in 25c and 50c bottles.

The best way to whiten teeth is with Phillips' Dental Magnesia—the ideal dentifrice. Try it and see for yourself how white your teeth become. At drug stores everywhere.

DENIES PLEA TO END CONTRACT OF ELECTRIC LINES

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday dismissed the petition of Arthur F. Albert against the Chicago Rapid Transit company and the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, seeking the dissolution of the existing trackage contract between the two companies. Albert's petition stated that the rapid transit company paid excessive rental for the use of North Shore tracks between Howard avenue and Niles Center, using the heavy expense as an excuse for high fares. The commission ruled that such a petition must be brought by persons party to the agreement.

AKRON PIONEERS IN NEW TYPE OF BANK POOL

Pattern Credit Corp. After Hoover Plan.

Akron, O., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Akron's industries, mercantile establishments and banks combined on a large scale today to solve their financial difficulties.

Pioneering in a new type of banking for a local community, they formed the Credit Corporation of Akron, which is patterned after the national credit corporation recently proposed by President Hoover.

Formation of the corporation followed the merger of the Central Depositors Bank and Trust company and the First-City Trust and Savings bank, the city's largest financial institutions, which have combined resources of $75,000,000. The new bank, capitalized at $7,500,000, will take the name of the First-City Trust, temporarily.

Has Many Subscribers.

Like the National Credit corporation, the corporation will use $12,000,000 for rediscounting bank mortgages and increasing the liquidity of the assets of the two merged banks.

Forty-four industries and the four large rubber companies—Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone, and General—were included among the subscribers to the credit corporation. Directors of the two banks subscribed $560,000 personally.

Fails to Open.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 19. — The American Trust and Savings bank did not open for business today. The bank was organized twenty-seven years ago. It is capitalized at $250,000. Its total resources are given at $2,675,974.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Estimate Income.

Estimates now place General Motors third quarter net at the equivalent of about 20 to 30 cents a share, or about $13,000,000, taking the top figure. Such a showing, added to the $1.83 a share earned in the first six months, would make for an indicated balance of about $2.13 a share for the nine months ended with Sept. 30. If these figures are approximately correct it would indicate that the big corporation will have fallen about $5,220,000 short of covering dividend requirements of $2.25 a share for the period.

Grow More Cautious.

One radical change in the situation which is viewed with satisfaction in conservative circles is the general disinclination to hazard a forecast on business and the market. A year or eighteen months back a hundred and one people, business men as well as bankers, seemed perfectly willing to venture a prophecy that the turn in the situation was near. Now, however, these same people are not "predicting." One industrial leader declared when queried recently "all previous predictions have gone far wide of the mark and another now might be found equally wanting"; the same holds true of comment on the stock market, no one in authority caring to suggest we have seen the bottom.

Rate Decision.

The effect of a favorable railroad freight rate decision, if it turns out to be that color, will be partly lost because of the delay in announcing it. Hearings were completed some time ago, but the interstate commerce commission, which certainly has few new facts to ponder on the situation, is determined to free itself of any accusation of undue haste in the matter. Wall street now thinks another week will mark the time limit, and shortly after that it expects details of the new plan devised by Washington to help railroad credit.

KEEP WATCH FOR DECISION ON RATE BOOST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—A sort of "death watch" has been established at the interstate commerce commission so that the moment the decision on the railroad application for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates and charges is announced the news will be broadcast to the country. Representatives of the press, business interests and the railroads are the watchers.

Sufficient time has elapsed since the conclusion of the arguments in the case on the last day of September for the commission to have reached a decision and there have been indications in the last few days that the commission will soon be in a position to take the public into its confidence and let it know what it thinks of the railroads' petition.

The commission makes announcements as to its decisions at 9:30 and 11 o'clock each morning and at 3:30 each afternoon week day with the exception of Saturdays, when it "speaks" at 9:30 and 12 o'clock.

It is believed the decision will be announced at 3:30 o'clock some afternoon or on Saturday at noon because of the effect, one way or another, the decision might have on the stock market.

CHICAGO STOCK TRADING QUIET; PRICES STEADY

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Speculative activity on the Chicago exchange yesterday ebbed to lowest mark in more than three years with total transactions reaching only 33,000 shares. One must go back to the days of early 1928 before the speculative movement had reached its majority, to find a day that could match yesterday's session for dullness.

Stock movements, too, were in keeping with the prevailing calm. Minor fluctuations in prices were the order of the day. Compared with last week's final quotations yesterday's trend was irregular but the close of the day found few net price changes of consequence on either side of the ledger.

Typical of Trend.

Market action of the utilities was typical of the day's trend. Most of the Insull securities finished with fractional gains offset by minor recessions in one or two issues. Among the motor, specialty, and miscellaneous shares gains and losses were about evenly divided.

Another of the large Insull operating companies yesterday reported earnings results for the third quarter. Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, which serves the metropolitan district surrounding Chicago, reported net profits for the three months ended Sept. 30 of $1,411,024, which is equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.98 a share on 579,600 shares of $100 par and no par common stock outstanding. This compares with net of $1,-245,956 or $1.95 a share on 503,600 shares in the corresponding period last year.

For the 12 months ended Sept. 30 net earnings totaled $7,198,639, or $10.51 a share on the present capitalization as compared with $7,750,449, or $13.32 a share on the common stock outstanding in the preceding 12 months.

The gain in earnings shown by Public Service in the third quarter contrasts with the shrinkage shown by Commonwealth Edison, which reported earlier.

Makes Application.

Illinois Northern Utilities company, a subsidiary of Middle West Utilities company, yesterday made application to the Illinois commerce commission for permission to sell its first and refunding mortgage bonds and preferred capital stock. To reimburse the company for expenditures already made for improvements and construction, the firm seeks authority

CHICAGO BANKS TO MAKE POOL PLEDGES TODAY

Expect Total of 30 to 40 Millions.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Chicago's banks are expected to make definite pledges today of between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 to the national banking pool designed to aid in "unfreezing" bank resources. Their subscriptions to the $500,000,000 National Credit corporation will be announced at a meeting of the Chicago-Illinois committee, which is headed by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank.

The group meeting was called yesterday by George M. Reynolds, who was elected chairman of the national organization on Saturday and who also is chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company. Mr. Reynolds returned from New York on Sunday and immediately plunged into final organization work for the Chicago federal reserve district, which is expected to be completed within a few days.

Continental Heads List.

The subscription list for this reserve district will be headed by the Continental Illinois bank with approximately $14,000,000 and the First National-First Union Trust group is expected to add around $7,000,000. The other Chicago banks probably will subscribe between $10,000,000 and $20,000,000, while pledges from other banks in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan are expected to make up the whole district quota of around $50,000,000.

Bankers from other states in the district will attend the meeting of the Chicago clearing house banks today. The question of organizing state groups or joining with the Chicago-Illinois group will be taken up. However, it is likely that groups will act for the states in subscribing to the fund and also in receiving applications for loans and recommending them to the National Credit corporation's headquarters in New York.

"The organization of the national corporation now is completed and banks in the twelve federal reserve districts should complete their local organizations within a week or so," Mr. Reynolds said yesterday. "The lending of money to solvent banks could begin soon thereafter. The big New York institutions already have pledged $150,000,000, having organized before the national corporation was completed.

Aids Confidence.

"The directors of the corporation, six from each reserve district, at Saturday's meeting reported that the formation of the pool has had a good psychological effect throughout the country. It seems to have started funds flowing back to the banks and to have done something to allay apprehensions of depositors. That should be an even more important result than the actual lending of money.

"There seems to have spread some misunderstanding of how the pool will make loans. It should be emphasized that it will not make loans to insolvent banks, but only to banks that can offer good collateral that will liquidate in time. In other words, the pool will rediscount collateral for a period of one to three years much the same as the Federal Reserve banks rediscount collateral for shorter periods. The pool is designed to help banks that otherwise might have to sell good securities at a heavy loss pending better times and market prices."

Cites Relief Measures for Dormant Building Industry

BY SCRUTATOR.

The prompt return of prosperity after the depression of 1921 was aided by a great boom in the building industry. America after the war was confronted with a shortage of almost every type of building except factories.

There was great incentive for capital to finance construction because of the potential profits. A real estate boom ensued. Credit was plentiful. As the boom reached inflationary proportions building costs mounted and wage levels soared.

Louis K. Boysen, chairman of the realty finance committee of the national conference on construction, in an address before a United States Chamber of Commerce group a few days ago explained that the building industry is suffering from a surplus of construction in many lines as a result of the real estate boom of 1924-'28 and that buildings that are needed are held up because construction costs have not paralleled the recent downward swing in average income of buildings.

Decline in Rents.

"Capital," he said, "will not again be attracted to the construction industry unless the physical cost of building drops to the level of its income value."

According to Mr. Boysen's figures rents have declined about 30 per cent from the high of 1924, and in addition taxes have risen sharply. On the other hand, cost of building has gone down only 13 per cent from the high of 1923.

If this picture is an accurate reflection of the present situation the building industry has one of two alternatives: It can remain dormant until the normal increase in population absorbs the surpluses in various kinds of building, or it can bring costs down to a point where construction that is needed can be financed on a basis that will attract capital.

Proposition Must Be Sound.

Real estate bond buyers who helped further the building boom by their readiness to finance construction at inflated levels have learned their lesson. Any proposition to be financed now must be sound and assure investors a return on their money.

Gerhardt F. Meyne, Chicago builder, has forwarded the writer a copy of a chart he has prepared showing the average hourly rate of wages for masons, carpenters and ordinary building laborers from 1900 to 1931 and the wages that would be paid had the war not dislocated the gradual but steadily rising trend that persisted from 1900 to 1917.

The hourly rate for carpenters, for instance, gradually increased from 42 cents per hour in 1900 to 70 cents in 1917. During the post-war inflation period the rate went up to $1.62½, where it is today. By projecting the pre-war average increase Mr. Meyne estimates that the present hourly rate would be about 96 cents, judging by the normal advancement during a period of peace.

Would Have Been Different.

"If the mean is projected from the point in 1900 through the average increases," says Mr. Meyne, "we find that the wage today would have been considerably different.

"I am not making any comments or recommendations as to lowering wages. That is being done without association action, and in spite of union action, and in spite of presidential recommendations.

"Now then, if repairs, modernization and cleaning up slums are so vital, why not start something in that direction by considering the wage in line with the cost and standard of living, minus the drop in commodity prices, plus the increased taxes?"

Sees Greater Building Activity by Next Spring

New construction in America for the nine months of 1931 has amounted to approximately $3,000,000,000, according to a survey by the Indiana Limestone company.

"While no sharp upswing in the building industry is anticipated in the near future," says President A. E. Dickinson, "viewing the industry over a longer period there is every indication that there will be a considerably higher rate of activity by early spring when business will have started back to normal."

ILLINOIS FIRM BUYS WINCHESTER ARMS; WAIT COURT APPROVAL

Representatives of the security holders and pensioners of the Winchester Arms company have approved the sale of the property to the Western Cartridge company of East Alton, Ill.

Actual consolidation of the concerns awaits only court confirmation of the deal, J. M. Olin, vice president of Western Cartridge, stated yesterday. Mr. Olin was in Chicago attending the convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers' association at the Palmer house.

The Winchester company, organized shortly after the civil war, and one of the nation's oldest munitions firms, has been in receivership since last January. Acquisition of the company by Western Cartridge marks the entrance of that company into the arms branch of the industry. At the present time the operations of the firm are confined to the manufacture of ammunition, nonferrous metals, explosives and related products. The company will maintain the New Haven plant of the Winchester company but certain activities will eventually be transferred to Illinois, resulting in enlargement of the East Alton plant and pay roll. The company now employs approximately 2,000 workers at the East Alton plant.

Mr. Olin declined to give the details of the purchase offer. He stated, however, that Western Cartridge is purchasing the assets of the eastern firm subject to the liabilities. Terms of the acquisitions will be announced later in the east, he stated.

Western Cartridge was organized in 1898 and has been a closed corporation since the beginning. Stock is held largely by the Olin family. F. W. Olin is president of the concern.

Gold Outflow Dwindles; Canada Prohibits Exports

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The flow of gold from New York to Europe dwindled to a mere trickle today. At the same time, it was said in leading banking circles that the Bank of France had made a $20,000,000 investment in the short term commercial credit market here.

Prominent bankers saw in these developments tangible signs that nervousness in Europe was subsiding. While they felt the outflow of gold would continue, they expected it would be in smaller volume than during the last month, in which there has been a wild scramble for the yellow metal, resulting from England's lapse from the gold standard.

The net loss of gold from the United States reported today was $1,129,700. This included an actual export of $310,000 to Holland, the earmarking of $500,000 for foreign account, and announcement of an additional earmarking of $420,800 on Saturday, which was too late for Saturday's statement. The gross loss was reduced by an import of $101,100 from Canada.

The net loss of gold from the United States since Sept. 29, when England quit the gold standard, is now approximately $656,000,000, today's loss of only $1,129,700 contrasts with $20,047,900 on Saturday, and $23,327,100 on Friday.

Will Meet Obligations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 19.—Canada today prohibited the export of gold, except under license, so as to insure her ability to meet all its obligations, payable in gold, outside of Canada, particularly in the United States.

The order, which will continue in force until March 1, 1932, unless previously rescinded, was issued after consultation between Canadian and United States financial authorities, who together analyzed Canadian-American financial commitments in relation to the depreciated Canadian dollar.

By ensuring adequate gold supplies with which to meet its obligations payable in gold in the United States, the Dominion of Canada saves the large sums it otherwise would have to pay in exchange on the depreciated dollar. At the same time Canada will maintain the statutory gold reserves in security for Dominion notes issued.

Pay for Accommodation.

The Dominion government will finance the provinces in supplying the gold they need for their outside commitments through the banks but the Provinces will pay the federal treasury for the accommodation.

Between now and the end of March next federal and provincial governments in Canada must meet maturities totaling more than one hundred million dollars in United States funds. American bankers advised Canada that the step now taken will help Canadian exchange.

The Canadian minister of finance is holding more than seventy millions of dollars in gold reserves at the present time in respect of dominion notes outstanding, totaling around $140,000,000. This is substantially more than required by federal law.

Of tremendous importance to Canadian gold mining companies whose stockholders tonight were fearful of a market crash should the government's order involve payment for bullion in Canadian funds, is the information from an official source that the dominion government will continue to pay Canadian mines for bullion in American dollars.

Grant Gold Rate Cut.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The cost of bringing gold into the United States in million dollar lots has dropped.

The Railway Express agency today was granted permission by the interstate commerce commission to reduce rates from St. Johns, New Brunswick, to New York via Vanceboro, Me., and Boston, to $1.65 per $1,000 worth. The former rate was $2.35.

The application explained that the Canadian government is planning to bring a large quantity of gold from abroad, due to the foreign exchange situation. This gold is destined for New York, but is to be landed at St. Johns.

Boosts Bank Rate.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—(AP)—The federal reserve board announced today the federal reserve bank of Richmond had increased its rediscount rate from 3 to 4 per cent, effective tomorrow. This brings to seven the number of rediscount rate increases by the federal reserve banks in the last two weeks.

New York increased its rate twice and now is 3½ per cent. Boston announced two increases to 3½, Cleveland one increase to 3, and Chicago one increase to 3½ per cent. BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Oct. 19.—For a prize exhibition of idleness attention might be directed to today's scene on the floor of the New York Stock exchange. The place literally reeked with unemployment.

The turnover was around 900,000 shares. Price changes were fractional for the most part, and hundreds of issues never came out on the tape at all. By and large, it was about the most colorless market the street has had to endure this year.

The financial community obviously was in a waiting mood, but just what it was waiting for nobody seemed to know. For more light on the far eastern war threat, some observers guessed. For the interstate commerce commission's long anticipated ruling on the railroad rate petition, guessed others. For whatever announcement—if any—the administration may have to make on its plan for aiding carrier bonds, still others opined. Maybe, one or two hazarded, there might be some uncertainty that could be cleared up by the forthcoming conference between the President and Premier Laval of France, now on the way over.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 8,000; hogs, 16,000; sheep, 17,000.

Light and underweight hogs, which were a drug on the market two weeks ago, were scarce yesterday and led a general advance of 10@25c, top prices recovering all but 10c of the loss recorded during last week. The general average price, due to improved quality, equaled last week's high day at $5.50, and was as high as any average in four weeks.

Prime 212@280 lb averages topped the market at $5.60, but the advance in lighter weights is closing up the gap in prices and numerous sales of 130@170 lb averages were made at $5.25 yesterday. Packing sows are exceptionally scarce and have moved up almost in line with extremely heavy butchers.

Sales of 350 lb packing sows were common around $5.00, while most 400@450 lb averages were sold at $4.75@4.90. Bulk of yesterday's offerings consisted of 190@210 lb averages and these showed the least strength. Weakness appeared later, but not until after bulk of best grades had sold. Some of the 6,000 estimated left at the close were being held off the market.

Bids Are Unchanged.

Bids for winter hog contracts were unchanged on the futures market yesterday. There were many buyers willing to pay $4.50 for hogs delivered any time during December or January, but no offers to sell were made. On the "to arrive" market, bids of $5.10 were made on 170@210 lb averages for today's delivery.

Cattle receipts dropped below expectations yesterday and prime weighty beefes went back up to $10.60, the high point of the season, while yearlings established a new top of $10.50 on 994@1,008 lb averages. Forty steers averaging 1,313 lbs from Guthrie county, Iowa, brought the extreme top. Hundreds of steers of almost all weights from 850 lbs to 1,700 lbs reached the $10 line, some 1,562 lb averages selling up to $10.40.

Prevailing quotations for bulk of steers are highest in recent months. Most beef steers sold at $6.75@10.25, against $6.50@10.00 the previous Monday. Owing to the scarcity of highly finished steers, much demand swung into the butcher stock trade and fancy baby beef heifers brought $9.50. Some mixed steers and heifers were sold at $10.40. Calves slumped sharply in sympathy with the break in slaughter lambs. Losses of 75c to $1.00 were noted in calves. Demand for stockers and feeders held up well and prices were fully steady.

Lambs Fall 25@50c.

The unexpected increase in sheep receipts yesterday carried lambs down 25@50c and some bids were off more considering the severe "sorts" insisted on by the buying side toward the finish, the low point of the day. Some lambs were carried over on sharply lower bids. Closely sorted natives went to packers at $6.25@6.50, while city butchers paid up to $6.85 for their "hand picked" selections, the first time top lambs have been below the $7.00 line since last Tuesday.

Top range lambs sold at $6.50 and below, but were of poorer quality. Sheep receipts at 32,000 compared with 19,183 the previous Monday, with 22,511 a year ago and with 17,700 two years ago. Only three Monday totals this year have been larger.

WHEAT PRICES MOVE AHEAD ON STEADY BUYING

Now Over 8 Cents Above Recent Lows.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An apparent bull market is on in wheat, according to well posted grain traders. Prices were on the upgrade from the start yesterday and moved steadily higher on persistent buying in small lots by houses with foreign connections, and export and cash interests which absorbed the profit taking by scattered longs.

Toward the last sellers of offers started to protect themselves and with buying by local operators prices advanced sharply, May touching 57¾c at the extreme, the best figure since Aug. 22, and held the full upturn. Net gains for the day were 1⅞@1¾c, with December closing at 53@53¼c; May, 57⅛@57¾c, and July, 57⅞@58¼c, the latter selling at a new high for the season.

There has been a marked change in sentiment regarding the trend of the grain markets in the past few weeks, and wheat has moved up 8½@9¼c; corn, 4⅞@4¾c; oats, 2⅜@3c, and rye, 4½@5¼c from the recent low, adding over $200,000,000 to the theoretical wealth of the farmer or over 10 per cent as compared with the prices prevailing a little over two weeks ago.

Bullish News Predominates.

Bullish factors predominated in the wheat situation yesterday. Further war talk from the far east; prospects that France would buy a large amount of government owned wheat; an excellent export demand and lack of pressure on futures all attracting attention during the day, and the trade in general showed a more general disposition to operate on the buying side than for some time past. According to some observers many of the locals who were bullish when the market was lower than at present went out of their lines recently and are awaiting for a reaction to get into the market again, and showed uneasiness yesterday because the expected recession failed to occur.

Cash wheat has been leading the advance with No. 1 red in the sample market selling at 54c yesterday, the highest price paid for this grain since July, 10, or about three and a half months. According to messages from the seaboard yesterday England bought some hard winter from the farm board during the day and there were intimations the trade might be surprised at the amount of business the latter has done when the figures as to its holdings are given out later in the year. It is thought that the sales have been much heavier than the trade has supposed.

Lack Information.

Chicago officials of the Stabilization corporation said they were without information as to the proposed sale of 50,000,000 bu wheat to France which was rumored as likely to be made during the coming visit of Premier Laval.

There were export sales of 500,000 to 600,000 bu wheat reported in all positions yesterday, with strong intimations that the actual business was well in excess of this figure. Houses with foreign, seaboard and milling connections were persistent buyers of futures at Winnipeg which gained 1¾@1⅝c for the day with the October leading. December there finished at 57¾c in Canadian currency, which was quoted at 10½c discount as compared with American. Liverpool was 5/6@⅝d higher with December at 56⅝c based on sterling at $3.83.

A decrease of 2,670,000 bu was shown in the domestic visible supply statement as compiled by the Chicago Board of Trade, but the report of the bureau of agricultural economics showed a reduction of 4,786,000 bu, the latter's figures including grain at the Pacific coast, and made the total 248,624,000 bu, against 214,407,000 bu last year.

More Buying in Corn.

Corn was dull and slightly easier early, but toward the last a better class of buying appeared in sympathy with the strength in wheat and the finish was at net gains of 1⅛@1⅜c with December closing at 36⅞@37c; May, 41⅝@41½c, and July, 43c. There was some buying of corn against sales of wheat by spreaders early. Field work was reported as progressing rapidly, due to the favorable weather conditions, but low bids for new corn to arrive are checking business. Purchases of old corn by local handlers aggregated 62,000 bu.

The trade paid no attention to an increase of 619,000 bu in the visible supply of corn the past week, and the total is now 6,961,000 bu, against 6,612,000 bu last year.

Oats held within narrow price limits early, but turned strong toward the last and gained ⅛@⅝c for the day with December, 23¾c; May, 25⅝c and July, 25½c at the last. There was a good class of buying after prices started upward. May rye sold at a new high for the season yesterday, with some talk of export business in Canadian grain, while mills were reported as buying futures at Minneapolis. Final trades were 1¼@1½c higher with December, 40⅝c and May, 44¼c.

LARD PRICES ADVANCE

Higher prices for hogs and grains yesterday checked offerings of lard futures and increased the demand from shorts and from the trade in general. Prices moved up and closed around the top, with gains of 15@20c on the most active futures and 7½c on January. It was especially hard to buy October lard at times because of smaller offerings. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d higher, the latter on January. Bellies were nominally unchanged. The cash trade in lard and meats was reported good. Hog prices were up 15@25c but closed weak. Receipts at western points were larger than a week ago but smaller than one and two years ago. Export clearances of lard for the week were 7,838,000 lbs, against 9,160,000 the past year. Of bacon they were 2,904,000 lbs, against 5,325,000 lbs last year. Prices follow:

SHOWS INCREASE.

Electric output of subsidiaries of the Central and Southwest Utilities company the week ended Oct. 10 show a gain of 5.8 per cent over the corresponding week last year. Jones C. Kennedy, president, reported that this was the third consecutive week the output had exceeded that of a year ago.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

While the foreign demand for North American cash wheat was less active than the previous week, the decreased interest was regarded as only natural in view of the immense business of the last few days. Sales in all positions were estimated at 500,000 to 600,000 bu, the advance in futures checking business to some extent. The Alberta pool sold a cargo of No. 4 Manitobas to China on Saturday.

Chicago handlers sold 12,000 bu wheat, 44,000 bu corn, and 36,000 bu oats to the domestic trade with 3,000 bu wheat, 62,000 bu corn, and 18,000 bu oats booked to arrive.

Red winter wheat went to a premium over hard winter in the local market for the first time in many weeks yesterday. Offerings were small and the basis was quoted as ¾@¾c higher while other kinds showed little change. No. 1 red was 2@2¼c over, No. 2 red 1¼@2c over, No. 3 red 1@1¼c over, No. 1 hard 1¾@2c over, No. 2 hard ¾@1¼c over, No. 3 hard ¼@1c over, No. 2 yellow hard and No 2 mixed ¾@1c over the December.

There was little change in the cash corn basis. Premiums as compared with December follow: No. 2 and No. 3 mixed, 2¾c; yellow, 3c; white, 3c; No. 2 mixed, 2¾c; yellow, 2½c; white, 2½c. New No. 4 white, 18.2 to 18.6 per cent moisture sold at 33½c, or 2½c under December; No. 4 yellow, 18.8 per cent moisture at 33½c, or 2¼c under; No. 4 yellow, 18.4 per cent moisture at 34¼c or 2c under, and No. 3 yellow, 16.4 per cent moisture at 35½c, or 1c under December.

Cash oats were in fair demand with the basis steady. No. 2 white was 1@1½c over and No. 3 white, December price to 1¼c over. No. 2 rye was nominally 4@5c over the future.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Monday: Wheat, 144 cars; corn, 218 cars; oats, 69 cars; rye, 3 cars; barley, 23 cars.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"The corn harvest in Illinois promises to be in full swing this week," says H. I. Baldwin of Decatur, Ill. "The first car of Illinois corn reached our market last week. It contained 19.8 per cent of moisture and 1.2 per cent damaged, with a test weight of 55 lbs, and was good corn. So far very little corn has been contracted. A large part of the soy bean crop was cut by mowers and self-binders. Should weather be good, harvesting will be general this week. The Illinois crop of soy beans was 6,500,000 bu, compared with 5,100,000 bu last year."

Estimated production of South Dakota's main crops shows little change for September, as given by the monthly crop report. The combination of drought, freezing temperatures during late May, record breaking high summer temperatures and a devastating grasshopper outbreak made one of the worst crop failures in the history of the state. In several of the northern and eastern counties there is a surplus of rough feed and many lambs, principally from Montana, are being shipped into those counties for fattening.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

May wheat, which is the center of attraction, is up almost 9c from the recent low point. The trade has become more accustomed to advances and the tendency is to work on the buying side. One of the largest pit traders said at the close: "Everyone has known that Europe will have to buy wheat, but have been afraid to buy it themselves. Now Europe is buying. Confidence has been restored and all traders are buying." Large operators are said to have accumulated considerable wheat, which comes out occasionally on bulges and the commission house trade has grown decidedly within the last few days. Setbacks are to be expected from time to time but everything favors holders of May wheat, which is the most attractive delivery. The war scare between China and Japan is having a constructive influence and is inducing more buying of wheat, particularly on weak spots.

The corn bulls have taken a new lease of life and there is more activity on the buying side as the market shows a disposition to do better. Selling pressure has been reduced and the market has developed a condition where news favorable to higher prices has more influence. Corn in Iowa is selling in some sections at about the cost of freight to Chicago, or close to 13c a bu.

"The general situation looks more healthy," said a cable from a prominent continental grain house to Norris Grain Co. "Political outlook in Germany helping everything."

"Everybody looks at the price of wheat, which is low, and possibly for the time being the line of least resistance is to purchase," says the Uhlmann Grain Co. "But, sentiment sometimes changes over night, and then the statistical positions will be more considered."

A Chicago cash grain man, who has been in Oklahoma within a week, says that estimates of wheat remaining in farmers' hands there indicates about 25 per cent of the crop. From observations, he believes there will be little reduction in acreage. Early seeded grain is up and looking well and rain is needed.

Grain men who have followed reports from Washington relating to large sales of farm board wheat to foreign countries, incline to the belief that while, having no confirmation of negotiations being on between the United States and France for the purchase of 50,000,000 bu of our wheat, intimate they will not be surprised to see confirmation of the report in the next few weeks.

WORLD WHEAT CROP 3,010,676,000 BUSHELS

World wheat production in thirty-five countries, as revised, this year aggregates 3,010,676,000 bu, or about 96 per cent of last year, as given by the United States department of agriculture. Slight reductions were made in Denmark, Lithuania, and Latvia. Small changes were officially made in Germany and Spain, with increases in Bulgaria and Rumania. Continental European crop, exclusive of Russia and Danube basin, which are exporting countries, are estimated at 989,654,000 bu, compared with 1,004,158,000 bu previously reported. The 1930 production was 982,039,000 bu. The total includes estimates for nineteen countries and in many cases is slightly lower than the latest official estimates available. Bulgaria's crop is 61,040,000 compared with 58,240,000 bu last year. Consumption requirements are 44,000,000 bu, leaving 17,000,000 bu for export. The Hungarian crop is the smallest in several years, 65,00,000 bu with home requirements of 54,000,000 bu. Harvesting in northern New South Wales started Oct. 15 and the crop is estimated at 168,000,000 to 182,000,000 bu. The forecast for Poland is 75,691,000 bu, compared with $2,322,000 bu last year.

BAR GARNET WHEAT FROM CONTRACT GRADES

A resolution has been passed by the western Canada grain board asking that the grain act be amended to exclude garnet wheat from contract grades of northern districts of the prairie provinces and that it be graded separately as No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3 Garnet. The Winnipeg grain exchange has been asked by the chairman of the board to so change their regulations, in case this amendment is made, to permit of garnet wheat so graded being deliverable on future contracts. Garnet wheat is a hybrid, ripens early, is a heavy yielder, but gives yellowish flour that will not bleach, will not temper equally with other red spring wheats when mixed, and is more difficult to grind.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small-loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1928, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example:
The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.
